Panun Kashmir calls revocation of J&K’s special status ‘real New Delhia’!

Prime Minister Narendra Modi is likely to address the nation on Thursday evening which he is expected to explain government’s decision on abrogating special status of Jammu and Kashmir and splitting the state into two union territories of Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh.

The move, approved by NDA Parliament in a joint statement on Sunday is a result of multiple days of discussion. New Delhi: The Prime Minister may address the nation on Thursday evening to announce the decision to scrap Article 370 and 35A of the Indian Constitution, which confer special status to Jammu and Kashmir.

The government, in its statement, said the decision to abrogate special status was taken after an extensive discussion with all the political parties and leaders from the region.

The statement also said the government is committed to promoting peace and stability in the region.

After the announcement, there were widespread protests in Kashmir and many Kashmiri leaders condemned the move.

The move is expected to have a significant impact on the political landscape of the region and could lead to further tensions between India and Pakistan.

On October 12, 2019, the government of India enacted the Jammu and Kashmir Reorganisation Act, which led to the abrogation of Article 370 and 35A of the Indian Constitution.

The move was widely condemned by Pakistan, which has described it as a violation of the provisions of the United Nations Security Council resolutions and the UN Charter.

The government also announced the formation of two union territories of Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh, with Jammu and Kashmir being divided into three districts: Jammu, Kashmir, and Ladakh.

The move has been welcomed by many in India, who see it as a step towards national integration and a way to bring peace and stability to the region.

However, the move has also faced criticism from some Kashmiri leaders and organizations, who have called it a violation of the region’s autonomy and a step towards the integration of Kashmir into India.

The government has argued that the move is necessary to bring peace and stability to the region and to promote national integration.

In a statement, the government said the move is aimed at promoting peace and stability in the region and ensuring that the people of Jammu and Kashmir can enjoy the same rights as other citizens of India.

Celebrating 70 years of ‘Swachh Bharat Mission’

A message that is ethereal yet resonates with the beauty of nature is the soul of Swachh Bharat Mission. It’s a call to action to the world to join hands in a global campaign for ‘Swachh Bharat’ (Clean India). The mission aims to achieve a clean, green and sustainable India by 2022, the 75th anniversary of independence. The movement has already made a significant impact on the lives of millions of Indians, empowering them to take ownership of their environment. The mission is not only about cleanliness but also about creating a sense of pride and responsibility towards our shared environment. It encourages the spirit of community involvement and makes every citizen a part of the solution.

The journey of Swachh Bharat Mission began on 2 October 2014, with a goal to make India clean within a period of 5 years. The campaign has continued to evolve, with each passing year seeing a significant increase in participation and a marked reduction in solid waste, plastic waste, and water pollution. The mission’s impact has been felt across the country, with millions of volunteers, including students and teachers, playing a pivotal role in its success.

To mark the 70th anniversary of Swachh Bharat Mission, Aakash students and faculty held a drive to make the city green, students attended by around 700 students. They are passionate about to help. They have organized various activities like cleanliness drives, waste segregation, and recycling workshops to encourage the younger generation to undertake tasks for a cleaner India. They are considering something that cannot be measured in money, but a commitment to the future of the planet.

In an intergenerational initiative, the students from Aakash Institutions have joined hands to work towards a greener future. The collaboration between the school and the students demonstrates the importance of involving the younger generation in the fight against environmental degradation. The students are not only participating in the activities but are also spreading the message to their peers and family members.
