Ex-Haryana CM OP Chautala moves Delhi HC challenging conviction

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, JULY 5

Former Haryana Chief Minister Om Prakash Chautala has moved to the Delhi High Court challenging the order of a trial court which sent him to four years of imprisonment in a disproportionate assets (DA) case.

Advocate Harsh Sharma on Tuesday confirmed that the appeal has been moved to the High Court challenging a trial court order of conviction and order of sentence against Chautala.

On May 27, 2022, the Rouse Avenue Court of Delhi ordered four years of imprisonment to Chautala. The Court had also ordered to confiscate four properties of him and also imposed a fine of Rs 50 lakh.

While passing the order, CBI Judge Vikas Dhull had also ordered to send Chautala in the custody of Tihar Jail.

During the argument, Chautala physically appeared and remained present in the courtroom. Appearing for Chautala, Advocate Harsh Sharma cited medical grounds for less punishment and submitted that "I, (OP Chautala), have been infected with polio since birth and I am partially disabled."

CBI's Special Public Prosecutor Ajay Gupta had opposed the submissions of Chautala's lawyer for a grant of concession on the grounds of ill-health and age.

CBI had urged the court that "maximum punishment shall be given as it would send a message to the society." "The person, in this case, is a public figure and giving minimum punishment would send a wrong message. He is not having clean antecedents. It is the second case, in which he has been convicted," CBI said.

Two properly dealers held for fraudulently selling 578 acres of village land in SAS Nagar

CHANDIGARH JULY 5 :

The Punjab Vigilance Bureau on Tuesday arrested two property dealers namely Rabbi Singh and Banarsi Das for tampering and fabrication of the revenue record regarding mutation of approximately 578 acres (4624 Kanals) of village common land of Majrian in SAS Nagar district in connivance with the officials of revenue department.

Disclosing this here a spokesperson of the Punjab Vigilance Bureau (VB) said that after verification of complaint number 370 of 2019 SAS Nagar related to the fabrication and tampering of revenue record of Village Majrian, Tehsil Kharar, a F.I.R No: 06 dated 08.05.2021 u/s 7 Prevention of Corruption Act and 409, 420, 467, 468, 471, 477 A, 201, 120-B of IPC at police station V.B. F.S-1, Punjab at SAS Nagar was registered against the officials of Revenue Department and private persons dealing as property dealers.

He informed that during the investigation of the above said case Economic Offence Wing of VB found that the tampering and fabrication in the revenue record regarding mutation (lunkal) was done under no: 3159 dated 21.05.2004 which was filed by the villagers of the village Majri for division of their respective land, of which they were actual owners as per mutation no: 2026 dated 07.05.1991 by the then consolidation officer, Mohali. The accused property dealers in conniving with revenue officials have fraudulently managed to alter the mutation of village land in which the 14 persons were shown as owners of the land measuring 558 Acres (4464 Kanals) of village Majri.

It has come to light that out of these 14 persons, 12 were totally bogus. They are neither the owners, residents of village Majri nor the cultivators of the above said land. Rest 2 persons are residents of Village Majri and owner of some land in question, but their shares had been increased from their actual shares by the accused revenue officials.

Passenger vehicle retail sales up by 40 pc in June as chip supply improves

NEW DELHI, JUL 5

Passenger vehicle retail sales in the country rose 40 per cent in June indicating an improvement in semiconductor supplies even as demand, especially for SUVs, remained robust, auto dealer body FADA said on Tuesday.

According to the Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations (FADA), passenger vehicle (PV) registrations rose to 2,60,683 units last month, as compared to 1,85,998 units in June 2021, registering an increase of 40 per cent.

"The PV segment continued to see robust growth. An increase in dispatches clearly shows that semiconductor availability is now getting easier," FADA President Vinkesh Gulati said in a statement.

Due to chip shortage, however, waiting periods, especially in compact SUV and SUV segments, continue to remain high, he added.

Despite long waiting periods, new vehicle launches are witnessing robust bookings thus reflecting a healthy demand pipeline, Gulati said.

Two-wheeler retail sales last month rose 20 per cent to 11,19,096 units, as compared to 9,30,825 units in the year-ago period, FADA data showed. Gulati noted that poor market sentiment especially in rural India, high cost of ownership, inflationary pressure and June generally being a lean month due to rains kept the two-wheeler sales at low speed. Commercial vehicle retail sales also witnessed an 89 per cent year-on-year increase last month at 67,696 units.

Three-wheeler registrations surged last month to 46,040 units, as against 14,735 units in June last year. Besides, tractor retail sales also increased by 10 per cent at 57,340 units last month, as compared to 52,289 units in June 2021. Overall retail sales increased by 27 per cent at 15,50,855 units in June, as against 12,19,657 units in the year-ago period. Gulati, however, noted that when compared to June 2019, a pre-COVID month, overall sales last month were still down by 9 per cent. On business outlook, he stated that with the prices of almost all essential items having moved northwards, it has put a pressure on the common man's household budget.

India's low-cost carrier SpiceJet said the flight was diverted when it was on the way to Dubai and flying on 5000 ft. The conversation between the SpiceJet pilot and ATC Karachi which has been accessed by a news agency, shows that the pilot has asked for a precautionary landing after suspected fuel leakage in the aircraft. "The SpiceJet pilot is heard telling ATC Karachi that the fuel leakage in the aircraft, requesting it for precautionary landing," ATC conversation read access by a news agency. "Karachi ATC confirming him whether any dangerous good on board. The pilots responded negatively. Later Karachi ATC confirms SpiceJet for landing after two minutes," the conversation further read. Natural farming answers

key questions troubling
agriculture: Rakesh Kanwar

SHIMLA, JULY 5

The two-day capacity building workshop of Prakritik Kheti Khushhal Kisan Yojana (PK3Y) began at Dr YS Parmar University of Horticulture and Forestry, Nauni in Solan district on Monday with Secretary Agriculture, Rakesh Kanwar throwing up some 'key questions' answered by natural farming in Himachal Pradesh. "The natural farming technique has already picked up in the state after the launch of PK3Y in 2018. It is time to go beyond and the field functionaries should now look at what difference it is making on the farms, when we don't use the chemical fertilizers or pesticides, whether it is about the soil, production, environment or nutrition," Kanwar said in his presentation on 'Agriculture- An Overview' at the workshop being attended by over 260 functionaries of Agriculture Technology Management Agency (ATMA) functionaries and other officers associated with natural farming in the state. The workshop is being organised by State Project Implementing Unit (SPIU) of PK3Y as an interactive exercise to come out with an action plan for PK3Y in Himachal Pradesh through threadbare discussion. The Secretary Agriculture said natural farming technique does answer critical questions troubling agriculture and some validation studies by PK3Y have already reflected that. He said PK3Y is now working on certification of the natural produce, establishing marketing mechanism, forming Farmer Producer Organizations and further expansion to take the natural farming concept forward. He said the field staff working with the PK3Y should know the national and international context in which the natural farming technique is significant. "You can take the concept down to the field if you are convinced first," he said. He said the Government of India's focus now is to ensure 'nutrition not just the food security' with agriculture which is climate resilient, protects environment, enhances farmers' income, improves livelihood standards and builds up sustainable food systems.

What lies ahead

The SARS-CoV-2 coronavirus harboured by bats crossed over to humans. The trigger for every viral pandemic in this century, including HIV, the influenza pandemic of 1918, and now Covid-19, has been a 'spillover' event — an infectious pathogen jumping onto humans after originating in animals. The possibility of a future pandemic is high; a major reason being environmental damage that is bringing humans closer to animals.

Considerable discussions are taking place to prepare ourselves against future pandemics. In a recent commentary in Nature, six eminent scientists stated, "A reactive response to catastrophe need not be the norm." UNESCO-TWAS (The World Academy of Sciences) has set up a Technical Advisory Committee on Covid-19 comprising scientists, including me, from 14 countries of the developing world. This committee noted that "The COVID-19 pandemic has demonstrated... the critical importance of genomic surveillance and data sharing..." Many countries had rapidly put together infrastructure for RNA sequencing and RT-PCR testing. But this was not possible for many countries of the Global South. It may not even be possible in the near future. Therefore, multiple networks of cooperation to share expertise and sequencing facilities must be formed, especially in the Global South, to prevent future pandemics. If the current inequities across countries persist with respect to genomic surveillance, pandemics can never be prevented. To arrest outbreaks and spread of infections, genomic surveillance is necessary but not sufficient. Surveillance data must be freely shared globally. During the initial stages of the present pandemic, many countries did not deposit RNA sequence data to a central database for others to track. Such hesitancy is unacceptable. Nations must come to an agreement on sharing sequence data of infectious pathogens, not just during epidemics but also in normal times.

Frequent episodes of spillover are worrying. Many of these spillovers have resulted in massive mortalities. How can we prevent spillovers? Those six scientists suggested four preventive measures: protection of forests; regulating wildlife trade; biosecuring farms; improving economic security of people to reduce their engagement in high-risk activities.

Deforestation brings us closer to wildlife that host pathogens. Agricultural productivity can be increased even without destroying forests through better management, redistribution of resources, and a strong political will.

India's position on Crypto currency vindicated by global trends

India's conservative position on not encouraging trading in Crypto currency is being rapidly vindicated by the negative experiences of various Crypto funds, with the latest being Singapore's Three Arrows crypto fund. In line with the dip in the overall crypto market valuation, the Singapore-based crypto hedge fund Three Arrows Capital (3AC), one of the high-profile crypto investment firms has run into difficulties and is reportedly in trouble.

Taking into account the latest crash in the crypto assets, many experts believe that India correctly predicted the adverse economic headwinds and perhaps saved a lot of investors from an economic ruin.

To just put things into context, the value of Bitcoin as a crypto asset has tumbled 55 per cent so far in 2022. The crypto market, at large, has fallen by about a third since it hit its peak sometime in November last year.

In line with the downturn in the crypto market, Bloomberg and Reuters quoted sources saying that the Singapore-based crypto hedge fund has entered into the process of liquidation after failing to make payments on a loan of 15,250 bitcoin (approximately USD 324 million) and USD 350 million worth of USDC, a stable coin.

News agency Reuters reported citing sources that a court in the British Virgin Islands, where the Singapore-based hedge fund firm is incorporated, issued the liquidation order on June 27. The Commercial Court there orders a company to be liquidated if it is regarded as insolvent because it cannot pay its debts.

The Singapore-based hedge fund firm 3AC was founded by former Credit Suisse traders Zhu Su, a Singaporean, and Kyle Davies at the kitchen table of their apartment in 2012. Zhu had famously predicted the bottom of the last crypto cycle in December 2018 when bitcoin was worth about USD 3,850. Further, according to blockchain analytics firm Nansen, its blockchain holdings were once worth close to USD 10 billion.

Adding to its woes, the Singapore central bank the Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS) last week reprimanded 3AC for breaching financial regulations.

On the other hand, the Indian regulator had attempted to ban cryptocurrencies only to be later overturned by the Supreme Court. Supreme Court of India in early 2020 overturned a circular put out by the country's central bank the Reserve Bank of India prohibiting banks and entities regulated by it from providing services in relation to virtual currencies (VCs), terming the circular as "disproportionate".

Taking one more step to dampen the crypto trading in the country, a one per cent tax deducted at source (TDS) on crypto transactions was introduced in the Budget for FY23, which kicked in on July 1. The one per cent TDS liability is the second majo provision of India's after the recently introduced 30 per cent capital gains tax on all transactions on virtual assets took effect on April 1, 2022.

India's crypto community has been up in arms over the new provisions and warned that it will have a severely negative impact on crypto trading in the country, especially with the latest global market slump. Sumit Gupta, co-founder and CEO at CoinDCX in a tweet has said that this tax "would do more harm than good". He said developers and entrepreneurs might flee to friendlier jurisdictions, while adding that a 30 per cent taxation rate coupled with one per cent TDS was "unfair".

The Indian government has been very careful not to legitimise crypto trading. The rationale behind imposing taxes on the virtual assets spelt out by the government was that taxing on the crypto was imposed as because people were profiting from it. "We have been cautioning against crypto and look at what has happened to the crypto market now," said Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Governor Shaktikanta Das in a CNBC-TV18 interview earlier this year after the value of cryptocurrencies took a tumble. He had warned about the dangers of investing in something that has no underlying value. "Our position remains very clear, it will seriously undermine the monetary, financial and macroeconomic stability of India," the Governor had said.

Recently, Das has said that cryptocurrencies are a clear danger and anything that derives value based on make-believe, without any underlying, is just speculation under a sophisticated name. He mentioned this in the foreword of the Financial Stability Report (FSR) released in late June by RBI. "While technology has supported the reach of the financial sector and its benefits must be fully harnessed, its potential to disrupt financial stability has to be guarded against.

As the financial system gets increasingly digitalised, cyber risks are growing and need special attention," he further said. According to cryptocurrency data aggregator CoinGecko, the total market cap of cryptocurrencies has shrunk by more than a third, down to around USD 930 billion from a high of about USD 3 trillion reached in November of 2021.

Although the crypto market has been on a decline this year, there isn't a specific reason for the same. Analysts have, however, suggested that the wider global economic situation of higher interest rates, and a looming recession, coupled with investors' lower risk appetite have caused the slump. It has caused various calamities in the market. Some believe a crypto winter has arrived. Besides 3AC, among the recent disasters is the collapse of terra USD stablecoin and sister coin luna, and liquidity issues at lenders Celsius Network and Babel Finance.

Russia tries to press its offensive into Ukraine's east

Russian forces tried Monday to press their offensive deeper into eastern Ukraine after taking control of a key stronghold.

The Ukrainian military confirmed that its forces had withdrawn from the city of Lysychansk, the last bulwark of Ukrainian resistance in the Luhansk province, one of the two regions that make up the country's eastern industrial heartland of Donbas. The Russians also control about half of Donetsk, the second province of Donbas. The General Staff of the Ukrainian military said the Russian forces were currently focusing their efforts on pushing toward the line of Siversk, Fedorivka and Bakhmut in the Donetsk region.

The Russian army also has intensified the shelling of key Ukrainian strongholds of Sloviansk and Kramatorsk deeper in the Donetsk region.

On Sunday, six people, including a 9-year-old girl, were killed in the Russian shelling of Sloviansk and another 19 people were wounded, according to local authorities. Kramatorsk also came under fire on Sunday.

Russian President Vladimir Putin has made capturing the entire Donbas a key goal in his war in Ukraine, now in its fifth month. Moscow-backed separatists in Donbas have battled Ukrainian forces since 2014 when they declared independence from Kyiv after the Russian annexation of Ukraine's Crimea. Russia formally recognized the self-proclaimed republics days before its Feb. 24 invasion of Ukraine.

After 3 feet of rain, 32,000 in Sydney area may need to flee

More than 30,000 residents of Sydney and its surrounds have been told to evacuate or prepare to abandon their homes on Monday as Australia's largest city braces for what could be its worst flooding in 18 months.

Parts of the city of 5 million people are facing a fourth flooding emergency in a year and a half after torrential rain since Friday caused dams to overflow and waterways to break their banks. The latest information we have is that there's a very good chance that the flooding will be worse than any of the other three floods that those areas had in the last 18 months, Emergency Management Minister Murray Watt told Australian Broadcasting Corp.

The current flooding might affect areas that managed to stay dry during the previous floods, Watt added. New South Wales state Premier Dominic Perrottet said 32,000 people were impacted by evacuation orders and warnings. You'd probably expect to see that number increase over the course of the week, Perrottet said. Emergency services had made 116 flood rescues in recent days, 83 of them since 9 p.m. Sunday, he said. Hundreds more requests for help were made by Monday morning.

Australia's Bureau of Meteorology manager Jane Golding said some areas between Newcastle, north of Sydney, and Wollongong, south of Sydney had received more than a meter (39 inches) of rain in the previous 24 hours. Some has received more than 1.5 meters (59 inches). The system that has been generating this weather does show signs that it will ease tomorrow, but throughout today, expect more rain, Golding said. Rain was forecast across New South Wales's coast, including Sydney, all week, she said.

POEM

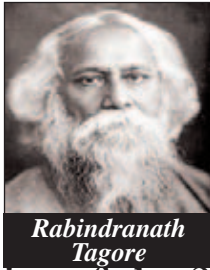

The Little Big Man

I am small because I am a little child. I shall be big when I am as old as my father is.

My teacher will come and say, "It is late, bring your slate and your books." I shall tell him, "Do you not know I am as big as father?"

And I must not have lessons any more." My master will wonder and say, "He can leave his books if he likes, for he is grown up." I shall dress myself and walk to the fair where the crowd is thick.

Mindful interactions and relationships can bring about more harmonious, healthy workplace

A new study suggests the real payoffs emerge when an individual's mindfulness is translated into mindful interactions and relationships. Such interactions infused with intentionality, compassion and presence can bring about more harmonious and healthy organizations.

"An understanding of how individuals bring mindfulness with them to work, and how these practices may contribute to interaction and relationship quality, is especially relevant as work landscapes are ever-changing and interdependence is increasingly becoming the norm," said Christopher S. Reina, Ph.D., an associate professor of management and entrepreneurship in the VCU School of Business. In the study "Your Presence is Requested: Mindfulness Infusion in Workplace Interactions and Relationships," which was published in Organization Science, Reina and management professors Glen E. Kreiner, Ph.D., of the University of Utah; Alexandra Rheinhardt, Ph.D., of the University of Connecticut; and Christine A. Mihelcic of the University of Richmond explore how individuals bring mindfulness to work and how it infuses their workplace interactions. These practices may be formal, such as engaging in a mindful pause before beginning a meeting, or informal, such as listening to someone with a high level of attention.

The qualitative study draws on the experiences of actual leaders to explain how they bring mindfulness into the workplace. Primary data sources included interviews and on-site participant observation. The researchers conducted 30 formal interviews with managers, professionals and consultants who practice mindfulness in the workplace, and more than 50 informal interviews with a wide variety of individuals who apply mindfulness principles at work. "Interestingly, interviewees noted how other individuals around them had noticed the emotional effects of their mindful behaviors on interactions and relationships," Reina said.

"We found initial evidence that our interviewees' efforts toward bringing their mindfulness into the workplace were seen by their colleagues as having a positive effect." High-quality connections are shown to improve individual functioning, and positively affect group outcomes, such as psychological safety and trust.

In addition to mindfulness arising within an interaction, the study also found that mindfulness practices could be used to set individuals up for success in future interactions, such as when preparing for a difficult or important conversation.

"Mindfulness reminds us that our thoughts and emotions are complex," Reina said. "They are contextualized by prior events experienced within a social environment, and within this social environment, individuals must be aware of both their own and others' thoughts and emotions in order to navigate these complexities with skill and compassion."

Growing Burden Rheumatic Diseases, Lack of Rheumatologists in India

CHANDIGARH: Ankylosing spondylitis (AS) is a chronic, inflammatory disease that causes spinal fusion over time. It refers to abnormal functioning of the body's immune system, where the system starts mistakenly attacking the body's own normal tissues causing inflammation (swelling) of the joints in the spine. It is important to control disease progression, failure to which there is a risk of permanently damaging other organs or body parts such as the heart, eyes, hips, and knees. Cause of delay in intervention- While lack of awareness is one important factor for delay in diagnosis among Rheumatic diseases, such as Ankylosing Spondylitis, the other factor responsible for the delay is owing to lack of specialists. Despite the growing need, there are less than 1300 practicing rheumatologists in India, with 1 rheumatologist available for more than 0.5 million arthritis patients.2. It is quite alarming, given that rheumatic diseases are rapidly becoming a growing concern in India where Rheumatology practices are still in their infancy. A Rheumatologist is an expert in treating Ankylosing Spondylitis and must be consulted early in the course of illness. Advanced therapies like biologics used by Rheumatologists to help slow down or stop the disease progression altogether. Biologics have been the most significant advancements towards managing the condition, especially for patients who advanced treatment therapies like the biologics today, that help control the progression of the disease. Lobbying with the government, national medical agencies, and institutions to bring in more seats for rheumatology can help bridge the gap of knowledge around this disease, significantly. Research suggests that AS is present in 0.9-1% of the Indian population, especially the youth and women. Even though the disease presentation amongst men and women is quite different with respect to the treatment and behaviour, consultation with a rheumatologist remains key for all patients."Lack of Rheumatologists: How to fill the gap- Musculoskeletal and rheumatic disorders are on the rise in India. But it is not a new problem; unaddressed concerns have been around for decades. Moreover, formal rheumatology training courses did not begin until the late 80s3. A long period of shortage of proper training and practices have left a void. Rheumatology practices must rely on training, not just the doctors but also auxiliary health professionals (AHP) such as physiotherapists, occupational therapists, nurses, psychologists, and other workers. This multidisciplinary approach can help ensure that rheumatology practices are not just medication dispensing services. They can impart comprehensive patient care, wherein tailoring the right treatment and improving understanding and awareness among patients can be a focus point. At a crucial stage where India lacks enough rheumatologists to bear the burden, AHPs are untapped resources that can share these responsibilities and fill the gap in this industry. It has become crucial given the treatment and management of rheumatic diseases such as Ankylosing Spondylitis requires a holistic approach including lifestyle modifications with healthier practices. Rheumatology practices must make a patient feel better, motivated to continue, and open to the prescribed treatments.

DPR-HP-2241/2022-2023

On behalf of Governor of Himachal Pradesh

A cricket loving nation should love women's team equally: Taapsee

With a common goal of equal recognition for women in their career, much like her current on-screen avatar as Mithali Raj, actor Taapsee Pannu says she plunged into her hardest role of the former Indian women's cricket team captain in the biopic Shabaash Mithu .

Regarded as one of the greatest female cricketers ever, the legendary Indian batter redefined the sport, usually referred to as 'the gentleman's game', in the country.

Pannu, known for films Pink , Naam Shabana , Mulk , and Thappad , said her and Raj's attempt at making their respective professions a level-playing field for women was the binding force behind the upcoming film.

In our country there are two religions cricket and films. If you call yourself a cricket loving nation then you should love women's cricket equally, you are not just men's cricket loving nation. The cricket should matter and not the gender.

Same way, the gender of the protagonist shouldn't matter. It should be about how the film is. You do pre-booking of a movie if it is a male protagonist but wait for reviews for a female protagonist. That is where I connected to her, the 34-year-old actor told a news agency in an interview.

Pannu said she felt "embarrassed" as she was unaware about the former Indian skipper, her journey and achievements, till Raj expressed her displeasure over comparison to their male counterparts in cricket.

On the eve of the 2017 ICC Women's World Cup, Raj was asked who her favourite men's cricketer was between India and Pakistan teams. In a sharp retort, she had asked, Do you ask a male cricketer who their favourite female player is?

It is a similar scenario in the film industry, pointed out Pannu, adding that female actors too are often asked these questions.

I have been answering this question for over 10 years. "Who is your favourite male star? Who do you want to be paired opposite?"

I hardly see the male stars answering the (same) question. I felt this will be my connecting thread to her character and from there I will build whatever I need to, to be her, the actor added.

Directed by Srijit Mukherji and written by Priya Aven, the upcoming film is a coming-of-age story of women's cricket in India as witnessed by the most successful woman cricketer. It will chronicle the highs and lows, setbacks and moments of euphoria of Raj's life.

Last month, Raj ended her glorious 23 year-long run after amassing 7805 ODI runs in 232 matches at an average of over 50. She also scored 2364 runs in 89 T20Is, as well as 699 runs in 12

Tests, including a century and four half-centuries. From Soorma , Saandh Ki Aankh , Rashmi Rocket to Shabaash Mithu , Pannu has become the face of sports-based films. The actor said she took up these films as the stories challenged her and with every movie, the scale got bigger.

In all these films my effort has gone beyond doing that film and learning that sport has been up after every film. After Rashmi Rocket', I had to work harder on this film to learn a sport from scratch. And it has gone bigger for me scale wise, she said.

Pannu said she has been offered more sports and action films but she rejected all of them. Reason: she wants to up her game. She had boarded Shabaash Mithu in 2018 when production banner Viacom18 Studios had acquired the rights to make a movie on Raj and had the research material but there was no script.

The actor was required to commit to the film and dedicate time to learn the game of cricket, she added. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. It is probably going to be the hardest I have worked on the film but then that's the fun part." Pannu said she had started training for cricket while filming of Looop Lapeta , which released on Netflix in February. Three months before Looop Lapeta came out, Rashmi Rocket had released, a film in which she had played an athlete.

Having worked on these two films, Pannu said she was at her fittest when she dived into Shabaash Mithu and only had to learn the techniques of cricket. The actor undertook lessons in cricket for six months under four coaches, including former India cricketer Nooshin-Al-Khadeer and physiotherapist Akanksha.

"My introduction to Mithali's playing techniques or what she does and how she felt, was through my trainers, she said, adding, she did not meet Raj in person during filming as she was actively playing cricket then.

Recalling her meeting with the former cricketer before she began work on the film, Pannu said they are "diametrically" opposite as people.

As an actor, Pannu further said she had to restrain her performance as Raj is not an expressive person.

It is not that I see varied expressions on her face, like she is feeling happy or is thinking, so you can't gauge it. I had to unlearn. My range of performance is so minimal in terms of expressing, she is not a very expressive person.
