Myanmar's ousted leader Aung San Suu Kyi jailed for six more years

AGENCY
NAYPYIDAW, AUG 16

Myanmar's ousted leader Aung San Suu Kyi has been convicted of corruption charges on Monday, adding six more years to her prison sentence.

Aung San Suu Kyi has been alleged to have used her position to rent public land at below-market prices. The ousted leader has been sentenced to three years for each of the four cases but the sentences for three of them will be served concurrently, giving her a total of six more years in prison, Al Jazeera reported citing a legal official.

Suu Kyi, 77, had already been sentenced to 11 years in prison on sedition, corruption and other charges after the military detained her in February 2021 as it seized power in Myanmar.

However, Aung San Suu Kyi denied all the charges and her lawyers are expected to appeal, reported Al Jazeera. Lambasting Myanmar's Junta, the foreign minister for Myanmar's National Unity Government, Zin Mar Aung, said the decision was "yet another act of (the) junta's desperate attempts to discredit those democratically elected" and called for Aung San Suu Kyi's release. As per analysts, numerous charges against Aung San Suu Kyi and her allies are part of the military's attempt to remove the popular politician from politics ahead of an election it has said it will hold next year. Meanwhile, Malaysia's Foreign Minister Saifuddin Abdullah who has been pressing the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to discuss the issues of Myanmar, which is also a member of the 10-member group, also condemned the latest jail term, according to Al Jazeera. Myanmar later extended the state of emergency in the country for six more months, just ahead of the one-year anniversary of the military coup. Myanmar's military leader Senior General Min Aung Hlaing is the one who led a coup against an elected civilian government in 2021 and detained Aung San Suu Kyi over alleged election irregularities. In August last year, Min Aung Hlaing declared himself Prime Minister of a newly formed caretaker government. During an address to the nation on August 1, he repeated a pledge to hold elections by 2023.

time, then the game of displacement will start anew on 100 families and all the families will come on the roads. India achieved 10 pc ethanol blending target ahead of schedule: PM

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, AUG 16

India, the world's third biggest oil importing and consuming nation, achieved the target to blend 10 per cent sugarcane-extracted ethanol in petrol ahead of schedule, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said. Addressing the nation from the ramparts of the Red Fort on the 76th Independence Day, he rooted for energy independence and a nation self-sufficient in meeting its energy needs. "We need to be Aatmanirbhar (self-sufficient) in our energy sector," he said. For a nation, 85 per cent dependent on imports for meeting its oil needs and 50 per cent for gas requirement, the key is alternate energy sources - from renewable power to hydrogen and switching to electric vehicles from current petrol and diesel-run automobiles. "From solar energy to Mission Hydrogen to adoption to EVs, we need to take these initiatives to the next level for energy independence," he said. In a bid to cut reliance on imported oil, the government is pushing for mixing of ethanol, made from sugarcane and other agri commodities, in petrol. Modi said India achieved the target of blending 10 per cent ethanol in petrol ahead of schedule. The target of supplying petrol mixed with 10 per cent ethanol (10 per cent ethanol, 90 per cent petrol) was achieved in June, ahead of the original schedule of November 2022.

Encouraged by the success, the government advanced the target of making petrol with 20 per cent ethanol by five years to 2025. Last week, the Prime Minister had stated that 10 per cent ethanol blending had resulted in saving of about Rs 50,000 crore of foreign exchange, reduced greenhouse gas emissions and gave farmers an alternate source of income. India is the world's fifth largest producer of ethanol after the US, Brazil, EU and China. Ethanol worldwide is largely used for consumption but nations like Brazil and India also dope it in petrol. Supply of petrol with 20 per cent ethanol will result in a saving of an estimated USD 4 billion annually.

The increased blending will expand the use of renewable energy in the world's third-biggest oil importer and consumer, and help turn the nation's surplus rice and damaged food grains into ethanol. As much as 10.17 per cent of ethanol is being doped in petrol now, up from 8.10 per cent in 2020-21 and 5 per cent in 2019-20. Ethanol blending in petrol was 1.53 per cent in 2013-14. According to the oil ministry, 2 million tonnes of crude oil was substituted due to the blending of ethanol in petrol during the first three and half months of the current fiscal year that began in April. In 2020-21, 2.14 million tonnes of crude oil was substituted and 1.34 million tonnes in the year prior to that.

EDITORIAL

When the past matters

Of late, we have heard resounding complaints about our history having been written by self-serving liberal, pseudo-secular historians who write selectively to erase the contribution of great Hindu rulers. There have been repeated appeals to rescue Indian history from these wilful distortions and remedy the injustice done so far. The following is my response as a historian.

We cannot study historical events in isolation. We have to view the past in relation to its context. If we arbitrarily dissociate the field of inquiry from its framing context, we dislodge its very foundations.

We also need to realise that the past and the present, although connected, are distinct from each other. It is important to identify the links between past and present and also discern the obvious differences between the two. We often tend to blur these differences to achieve designated ends in the here and now. The historian's job is to guard against this potential blurring and suggest meaningful ways of studying these divergent, interrelated, time frames.

Tweaked narrative

We cannot simply transpose our beliefs and perceptions of the present to the past. This is what films and soap operas, claiming to be based on historical events, seek to do. For instance, in most cinematic and television productions of Mughal rule, Hindu characters, irrespective of their caste, gender and status, speak in Sanskrit-glazed Hindi while Muslim characters use a smattering of Urdu to frame their conversations. Persian, the language of the Mughal court, finds no place here. This convenient trick manages to accomplish two things: it erases the historical importance of Persian in the subcontinent and, simultaneously, creates a forced dichotomy between Hindu and Muslim subjects.

The historical knowledge that is available to us is not a given. It did not emerge on its own or on the strength of popular beliefs. Rather, it has been meticulously built through rigorous research and inquiry. This is not to deny that there are no blind spots in history. They continue to exist and can be addressed only through dedicated research, archival exploration and interrogation of a variety of historical sources. We cannot set out to balance history on the basis of what we believe or wish to believe. For instance, an all-too-familiar discourse deployed in the Indian context in the face of evident historical gaps relates to our civilisation's antiquity and greatness.

Monsoon seasons

The latest generation of climate models projects an increase in severity and frequency of very wet Indian summer monsoon seasons, a new study by scientists from the Potsdam Institute for Climate Impacts Research shows.

The South Asian monsoon affects the lives of more than one billion people and a changing monsoon might have tremendous consequences for millions of people faced with floods and landslides. The researchers find that very wet monsoon seasons are projected to occur 8 times more often in 2050-2100 compared to 1965-2015 under unabated climate change.

With modest mitigation efforts, this is reduced to a factor of 6 in the future period. Besides, this increase in frequency and intensity of extreme monsoon seasons is accompanied by a shift from days with light rainfall to days with moderate or heavy rainfall. Additionally, the number of wet days is projected to increase.

The particular character of the change depends on the determination of humankind to reduce carbon emissions and implement mitigation measures.

There have been numerous floods in recent years associated with the Indian summer monsoon (ISM) as a component of the South Asian monsoon, for example, the Mumbai floods in 2005, floods in North-west India and Pakistan in 2010 as a response to a strong La Nina event or those in Kerala in 2018.

Since the 1980s, there have been more than 95,000 deaths associated with floods and landslides in the countries of the Indian subcontinent. Hunt and Menon (2020) found that the Kerala flooding event in 2018 could be 36 per cent more rainfall-intense under an RCP8.5 climate. Almazroui et al. (2021) projected an increase in the annual maximum consecutive 5-day precipitation in the Asian monsoon regions and derived a higher risk for extreme flooding in the Asian monsoon regions.

Given the agricultural yield's sensitivity to the monsoon rainfall variability and associated extremes, understanding how the ISM responds to global warming is also crucial for crop yields and food security in the region as well as for numerous other aspects of public and individual life, like water management or the country's economy.

The data from various phases of Coupled Model Intercomparison projects (CMIPs) has been widely used to examine the projected changes in the global climate as well as its different components such as the ISM. In the last generation of climate models - which were the basis of earlier studies on seasonal extremes - studies identified monsoon rainfall features that were not yet well represented in the CMIP5 models.

Recently, the data from the latest phase 6 of CMIP (CMIP6) has become available and it was confirmed that they bring relevant improvements regarding the ISM's characteristics. By updating deep convective schemes, modifying the indirect effects of aerosols in cloud formation as well as implementing finer resolutions, the models have undergone further improvements.

The improved model capacity in capturing the meridional moisture flux convergence might have contributed to the reduction in dry and wet biases in the Asian monsoon region as well as to the model's capacity in reproducing extreme precipitation (Dong & Dong, 2021). Nevertheless, other dynamics as the relationship between the ISM rainfall and the Equatorial Indian Ocean Oscillation are not yet fully captured adequately in many models. Given this relationship's crucial impact on the interannual variability of the ISM, also in this generation of CMIP, there still remains potential for further improvements.

There is a widespread agreement among global climate models that the rainfall during the ISM will increase throughout the 21st century.

Using 32 models of the latest climate model generation (CMIP6), Katzenberger et al. (2021) quantified the projected summer monsoon rainfall increase to be between 9.7 per cent and 24.3 per cent by the end of the 21st century depending on the underlying emission scenario. Also, a linear dependence of the ISM rainfall and the global temperature independent of the scenarios was found and estimated to be 0.33 mm/day per degree Celsius which corresponds to 5.4 per cent of the current annual rainfall. Thus, the rainfall of the ISM domain is more sensitive to rising global temperatures than global precipitation. In addition, an increase in the interannual variability of seasonal rainfall is projected, raising the amount of rainfall in some seasons even further.

While the literature on the projections of the ISM's interannual variability has been converging toward an intensifying tendency, the particular outcome for wet seasonal extremes had only drawn limited attention until recent years, which was the motivation for Kamizawa and Takahashi (2018) to use 22 CMIP5 models to address this research question.

In their study, the changes in the wettest (driest) and second wettest (driest) seasons between 2007-2031 and 2076-2100 were examined under the Representative Concentration Pathway 4.5 (RCP4.5). Most of the CMIP5 models projected that the wet seasonal extremes expand over the Indian subcontinent, but it has to be noted, that focusing on the maxima is a method highly susceptible to the bias of outliers.

Depriving girls of secondary education costs USD 500mn to Afghan economy

Keeping girls out of secondary school costs Afghanistan 2.5 per cent of its annual GDP, according to a new analysis by UNICEF.

If the current cohort of three million girls were able to complete their secondary education and participate in the job market, girls and women would contribute at least USD 5.4 billion to Afghanistan's economy, the UN agency said as the Taliban completed one year of Afghanistan's takeover. UNICEF's estimates do not take into account the non-financial impacts of denying girls access to education, such as upcoming shortages of female teachers, doctors and nurses, the ensuing impact on decreasing attendance for girls in primary school and increasing health costs related to adolescent pregnancy. The estimates also do not account for the broader benefits of education, including overall educational attainment, reduced child marriage and reduced infant mortality. "The decision on March 23, not to allow girls back to secondary school was shocking and deeply disappointing. Not only does it violate girls' fundamental right to education, it exposes them to heightened anxiety, and greater risk of exploitation and abuse, including child trafficking, early and forced marriage," said UNICEF Afghanistan Representative, Dr Mohamed Ayoya.

Iconic WTC displays animated Tricolour to celebrate India's I-Day

The iconic World Trade Centre in New York displayed the Indian Tricolour on the eve of August 15 to commemorate the world's largest democracy, India celebrating 75 years of Independence.

The building was illuminated in the hues of the Indian Tricolour to mark the auspiciousness of the occasion. As India celebrated its 76th Independence Day, the Indian Flag was displayed digitally on one of the iconic structures of America by South Asian Engagement Foundation which organized the event.

The World Trade Center is the tallest building in America that stands on the site of the 9/11 terror attacks.

It was lit up with the Indian flag on August 15, on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of India's Independence.

People in huge masses welcomed the sight of the tricolour on the iconic Dubai landmark. Several videos have been floating on social media that showcased the crowd cheering as a waving Indian flag appeared on the Burj Khalifa on Monday.

India celebrated 76th Independence Day earlier on Monday with Prime Minister Narendra Modi hoisting the Tricolour at Delhi's Red Fort.

Addressing the nation from the ramparts of the Red Fort on the occasion, the Prime Minister took aim at the twin evils of nepotism and corruption and sought the people's cooperation to fight them.

While addressing the nation for the ninth time on August 15 from the Red Fort on the occasion of Independence Day,

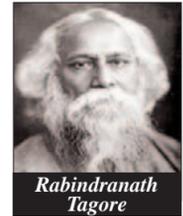

Prime Minister Narendra Modi urged the youth to dedicate the next 25 years of their lives to the development of the nation and highlighted five resolves to accomplish the same. As part of the Mahotsav or grand celebration, several events and campaigns have been organised over the last 75 weeks to celebrate independence and the glorious history of India's people, culture and achievements. The official journey of Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav commenced on March 12, 2021, which started a 75-week countdown to the 75th anniversary of India's independence and will end post a year on August 15, 2023.

POEM

Freedom

Freedom from fear is the freedom I claim for you my motherland! Freedom from the burden of the ages, bending your head, breaking your back, blinding your eyes to the beckoning call of the future; Freedom from the shackles of slumber wherewith you fasten yourself in night's stillness, mistrusting the star that speaks of truth's adventurous paths; freedom from the anarchy of destiny whole sails are weakly yielded to the blind uncertain winds.

Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav

PUPUREN ORAM

Today is the sacred Independence Day celebration. On this day, we became free from the clutches of British rule and were made the ruler of our nation. To mark the 75th year celebration of our independence, AzadiKaAmritMahotsav is being celebrated across the country. On this occasion, HarGharTirangaAbhiyan has also been launched.

As many as 30,000 students of the world's biggest tribal institution KISS are actively involved in this celebration. I feel proud and privileged as a student of KISS while participating in this unique programme. Many distinguished guests like High Commissioners and Ambassadors joined KISS in this celebration and encouraged us throughout. We remembered the Father of the Nation Mahatma Gandhi on this momentous occasion. Thirty thousand students of KISS from Class I to the PhD level -- from 30 districts of Odisha and neighboring states are now studying on the campus; 40,000 students had already graduated. Ten more branches are likely to open very soon in various districts across the State.

Today the entire Indian subcontinent is overjoyed with the celebration of independence. We also feel equally excited on this occasion. Here, I would like to mention that had we not been educated, we could not have felt the pride of this great day.

All the 40,000 brothers and sisters who had passed out from KISS and are engaged in different organizations and serving the motherland are also feeling equally proud of their education and knowledge, they have gained from the alma mater.

Behind all our happiness and pride lies the contributions of KISS and the untiring efforts of our Founder DrAchyutaSamanta. We are amazed and wonder how could a person at the young age of 25 during 1992-'93 could imagine an institution like KISS. At that time, he could realize that through quality education only, the development of the tribal people would be possible. Even many of our parents and guardians are not educated. He established KISS with a vision and a clear thought that if one generation of a family is educated others would be educated automatically.

If I would have not been part of KISS, then I would have been burdened with many difficulties and my association with the Maoist activities.

My pathetic tale is like this. When the Maoists captured me and took me hostage, I ran away from their trick, otherwise, I would have been forced to mingle with them. However, KISS has brought a wave of changes into my life. With my interests in football, today I could become a national-level player and have become part of the national football team. Not only me but if KISS were not there, thousands and thousands of children like me would have been facing a life of misery and distress.

For the last 30 years, the Founder of KISS has taken all steps to see us smile, and see our overall socio-emotional and academic growth. Even during the time of calamities like cyclones, floods or pandemics, we were never ignored. Rather during the recent pandemic for two consecutive years when we were in our villages, the KISS Founder had sent 10 KG of dry food and educational aids to us through the teachers and staff of KISS.

I hope, it would have not been possible for any common person to think and act in this manner. Nowadays Central and State Governments have widened their scope to ensure the development of various tribal communities.

For those who have love, respect and regard for the tribal population, this type of difficult work could feel doable.

We always think the Founder of KISS is our patron and visionary pathfinder. His sincere efforts over the last 30 years could make KISS the biggest tribal university in the world.

Cultivation of maize, moong & mustard should be promoted; experts

CHANDIGARH: "Cultivation of maize, mustard and moong need to be promoted in a big way across the country and this must be accompanied by adoption of modern technology in the agriculture sector." Speaking during an Indian Agricultural Research Institute (ICAR) consultation meet on 'Emerging challenges in plant protection of major kharif crops' at a hotel in Chandigarh, Dr. AK Singh, deputy director general (Agriculture Extension), ICAR and commissioner Agriculture, Govt of India said that crop diversification must be promoted in a big way. Instead of focusing on wheat and rice, cultivation of 3Ms - maize, moong & mustard - should be promoted as it can help the country in attaining self-sufficiency and at the same time help in enhancing the income of the farmers, he opined. The meet was organized in association with agri-input company Dhanuka Group. Several well-known agriculture scientists from 33 Krishi Vidyalaya Kendras (KVKs), as well as scientists from ICAR, participated in meet, which also witnessed the participation of policymakers, industry players and farmers among others. Murray overcomes Wawrinka in 3 sets in

AGENCY MASON (OHIO), AUG 16

Andy Murray pulled out a 7-6 (3), 5-7, 7-5 win over Stan Wawrinka in the first round of the Western & Southern Open in a match-up of three-time Grand Slam champions trying to put injuries behind them.

Murray and Wawrinka both have a U.S. Open title among their Slam championships, and both required multiple visits from trainers to treat leg problems during the 2-hour, 57-minute match at the hard-court tournament that serves as a tuneup for the U.S. Open.

Wawrinka, 37, of Switzerland, had two surgeries on his left foot in 2021 and has lost in the first round in each of his last four events. Murray, 35, of Britain, suffered an abdominal strain two weeks before Wimbledon but reached a second round for the first time in his last three tournaments.

"I was hanging on in the third set," Murray said in an on-court interview. "I was struggling a bit. So was Stan. We're not young any more."

Serena Williams had been scheduled to face 19-year-old Emma Radu-canu of Britain, the defending U.S. Open champion, in a first-round match on Monday that was pushed back to Tuesday because of what the tournament described as a number of factors related to scheduling.

Raducanu was anxious to face Williams, 40, the 23-time Grand Slam winner who is preparing to walk away from tennis.

"It's an amazing opportunity to play the greatest tennis player of all time for probably the last time," Raducanu said Sunday.

"For our careers to have crossed over, I'm really fortunate that I got to play her.

Whatever happens, it's going to be an incredible experience for me and something I'll probably remember for the rest of my life."

Williams has said she wants to have another child and pursue business interests. She has not said what her last event will be, but she has made it sound as if her final farewell will come at the U.S. Open, which begins Aug. 29 in New York.

Williams lost 6-2, 6-4 to Belinda Bencic on Wednesday night in Toronto in her first match since she announced her intentions.

Rashid's all-round performance helps Afghanistan to register 27 run win over Ireland

AGENCY BELFAST, AUG 16

Najibullah Zadran's half-century and an all-round performance by Rashid Khan helped Afghanistan register a 27 run win over Ireland in the fourth match of the five-match T20I series on Monday.

In a rain-curtailed 11-overs-a-side contest, the visitors put up 132-6 after hard-hitting knocks from Najibullah Zadran (50 off 24) and Rashid Khan (31 off 10).

Chasing 133, Ireland had a short but blistering opening stand. Opener Paul Stirling's got the innings moving from ball one, and Balbirnie went four, four, six in the second over as Ireland drove to 28-0 after nine deliveries.

But Balbirnie's stay on the crease was short, and the losses of Stirling and Lorcan Tucker a couple of overs later left Ireland in serious trouble. In-form George Dockrell tried to ensure that his team reached three figures. He smashed 41 off just 27 deliveries with four fours and two sixes. He couldn't get support, and Ireland fell short of 27 runs. Earlier, Ireland won the toss and chose to bowl first but it was Afghanistan who took the early initiative; Rahmanullah Gurbaz hooked a six to make it 17 runs off the opening over, bowled by Josh Little. Gurbaz scored 24 off 13 deliveries, and eventually went back to the pavilion in the third over when Mark Adair took a catch at short fine-leg off the bowling of Barry McCarthy.

Afghanistan recovered well from 55-4, led by Najibullah, who smashed 50 runs in the 24-ball with another sparkling knock. His 24-ball stint saw him smash four fours and three sixes, and Rashid also shifted the gears and smashed three sixes in an effective cameo. The duo took their team to a comfortable total of 132/6 in 11 overs.

Nadal to miss Davis Cup group stage, Djokovic leads Serbia

LONDON: Carlos Alcaraz will lead Spain against Novak Djokovic's Serbia next month in the Davis Cup group stage after Rafael Nadal wasn't named to the Spanish team on Monday.

Nadal is set to return to competition at this week's hard-court tournament in Cincinnati after an abdominal injury caused the 22-time Grand Slam champion to pull out of Wimbledon ahead of the semifinals.

The injury also kept him out of this month's event in Montreal, another hard-court warm-up event before the U.S. Open, which begins in New York on Aug. 29.

Spain and Serbia also play Canada and South Korea in Valencia, one of four European cities hosting the group stage Sept. 13-18. The other cities are Bologna, Hamburg and Glasgow.

Former world No. 1 Andy Murray will play in the tournament for the first time since 2019 after being named to Britain's team that will face the United States, Kazakhstan and the Netherlands in Scotland. Second-ranked Alexander Zverev, who had surgery in June to repair torn ligaments in his right ankle, will lead the German team in Hamburg against France, Belgium and Australia.
