SHIV KUMAR SHARMA AMBALA: National President of Anti Terrorist Front India Viresh

Shandilya expressed concern over the increasing misuse of Facebook platform and said that not only the culture of India is getting tarnished but the younger generation is also getting misguided. The growing misuse of Facebook and social media is more dangerous for the society than termites, karona, cancer and AIDS and the Supreme Court should take serious cognizance of this and issue notice to the central government and Facebook till there is no decision. The Supreme Court should bring the users of social media and Facebook under the purview of the law and the SC should draw the Lakshman Rekha of strict laws for those who misuse Facebook and social media. Issue a guide line to the Director Generals of Police of the country to get the offenders under non-bailable sections so that the growing misuse of Facebook can be stopped immediately and Indian culture and young generation can be saved.

Boost for defence exports

raditionally, India has been among the global top five arms importers. However, following a major focus on the policy of self-reliance to deal with an increasingly uncertain world, the situation is changing. According to the latest official figures, the export of military equipment and technology has increased significantly in recent times, touching Rs 13,000 crore during 2021-22, with the private sector accounting for 70% of the exports. This is a significant milestone for a country that was, at one point, totally dependent on imports. The defence exports target of Rs 35,000 crore by 2025 may appear very ambitious but it is not impossible to achieve. What lends promise to coming close to achieving the goal is the increasing global interest in what India has to offer and the capability developments.

The BrahMos missile is being exported to the Philippines, opening doors for sales to various other Asian countries. A deal with Malaysia on the Tejas fighter jet is also on the cards. The consistent progress in the indigenisation of weaponry is in line with the mission to become self-reliant, reduce dependence on imports and give more weightage to the export of military equipment to friendly countries. India is seeking to boost defence exports to strengther defence manufacturing and production. It has imposed a phased import ban on 310 different weapons and systems during the last two years, which helped boost export. These weapons and platforms will be indigenised in phases over the next five to six years. The increased partnership with the private sector has led to a substantial rise in defence exports

At present, India is the 23rd largest arms exporter in the world and the target is to expand the defence manufacturing sector and become a bigger arms exporter. A reflection of that is visible in India's defence industry, which is participating in the global supply chain significantly. More than half of the exports are going to leading manufacturers in the US.

The prime challenge is to establish itself as a provider of dependable goods at competitive prices and aim at producing highvalue items. The recent commissioning of INS Vikrant, the first indigenous aircraft carrier built at a cost of Rs 23,000 crore, was a defining moment in India's journey to emerging as a defence industrial and technological base. The launch of the Navy's third Nilgiri-class guided-missile frigate, Taragiri, adds to the list of stateof-the-art homegrown projects meant to strengthen the marine defence system. As it shoulders this huge responsibility, the defence industry, both private and public, needs all the assistance it requires. The latest BrahMos sale enables India to ensure its place as a reliable defence partner to its Southeast Asian neighbours. This will provide the much-needed headway to export the cruise missile to countries like Vietnam and Indonesia

New risk emerges for Taiwan's military

new threat has emerged for Taiwan's military which faces Chinese civilian trolling through drones. They are flying drones over a military site on a nearby Taiwan-controlled island, Kinmen.

The 15-second video clip is among a number of videos that have popped up recently on the Chinese social media site Weibo and show what appear to be civilian-grade drones trolling Taiwan's military. The island's military later confirmed these mysterious menaces are indeed civilian drones from mainland China, reported.

The videos show detailed, drones'eve footage of military installations and personnel on Taiwan's outlying Kinmen islands. The drone incursions come amid increased tensions following a visit by US House Speaker Nancy Pelosi to Taiwan, a selfgoverning democracy of nearly 24 million people, in August, reported

That trip angered China's ruling Communist Party -- which views Taiwan as part of its territory, despite never having governed it -- and it responded by launching unprecedented military drills around the island, sending warplanes across the Taiwan Strait and firing missiles over the main

Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen has claimed the drone incursions are the latest ratcheting up of this pressure; a new front in China's "grey-zone" warfare tactics to intimidate the island. On September 1, after warning it would exercise its rights to self-defence, Taiwan shot down a drone for the first

Accompanied by soundtracks ranging from ballads to dance music and plenty of emojis, the clips seem designed to highlight the unpreparedness of Taiwan's troops.

One video captures the moment four soldiers from Taiwan realize they are being watched by a drone that's hovering in the sky above their guard post. Caught off guard, they respond by throwing stones at the intruding drone, which zooms in so close you can make out the faces of individual soldiers.

Video footage of these bizarre encounters has gone viral on Chinese social media and is attracting hundreds of comments mocking Taiwan's military. The clips seem to expose a stunning vulnerability: the ability of Chinese drones to photograph restricted military sites in Taiwan at any time,

Analysts say the footage being beamed across the internet -- showing military sites and personnel in fine detail for all the world to see -- is at best embarrassing for Taiwan and at worst, outright dangerous.

Meanwhile, Beijing has brushed off the drone incursions as "no big deal." Questioned about civilian-grade drones flying in the Kinmen area, a spokesperson for China's Ministry of Foreign Affairs recently responded: 'Chinese drones flying over China's territory -- what's there to be surprised Fuelling suspicions, China hasn't removed the videos from its otherwise highly-censored internet or prevented the drones from travelling through its own highly controlled airspace, reported news agency.

Isabel Hilton, an international journalist and longtime China watcher, said it was impossible to know who was piloting the drones -- and that was precisely what made them so wellsuited to "deniable harassment."

The machines appear to be civilian models, but could "be operated by anybody, including the military," said

Hilton, the founder of China Dialogue, suggesting that "government agencies in the guise of a popular movement" could be behind the controls

Hilton drew a parallel to events in the South China Sea, where China has been accused of using a maritime militia to enforce its territorial claims by swarming disputed areas with hundreds of what are ostensibly civilian fishing

"This is all very demoralizing for Taiwanese, and it's kept at a level designed not to let Taiwan relax, not to let Taiwan forget the threat," Hilton

Taiwan has faced the threat of invasion ever since the end of the Chinese Civil War in 1949, when Chiang Kai-shek's defeated Nationalists fled there to set up a new government, having been chased out of the mainland by Mao Zedong's Communist Party.

More than 70 years later, the Communist Party continues to view Taiwan as something akin to a breakaway province that must be "reunified" with the mainland at all costs -- and it has made clear it is prepared to use force, if necessary, to fulfill that objective.

If China were to invade, the Kinmen islands -- most of which have been controlled by Taiwan since the end of the war -- would make a tempting first target. Lying just a few miles from the mainland Chinese city of Xiamen -- and hundreds of miles from Taiwan's capital Taipei -- they are acutely vulnerable, reported CNN.

For Taiwan, the problem is that the nature of that invading force is changing. The Kinmen islands' proximity to the mainland puts them well within the range of commercially available drones, which are cheap and plentiful in China, home to the world's second-largest market for the machines and no shortage of potential operators among its population of 1.4 billion.

Shortly after the series of drone incursions, Taiwan's Ministry of National Defence announced that the island would deploy a new antidrone system at military bases beginning next year. It also announced plans to boost its overall defence budget to a record USD 19.4 billion, a 13.9 per cent increase over Taiwan, meanwhile, appears to have realized that ignoring drones and their mystery operators is not an option. Within days of shooting down its first drone, it released a series of pictures to the media showcasing its shiny new anti-drone weapons. It appeared to be sending its own propaganda message: next time the drones come calling, it will be ready.

cause and cause-specific mortality.

More than 171,000 participants from the U.K. without known heart disease or cancer were asked several dietary and health behaviour questions to determine coffee consumption habits. The authors found that during the 7-year follow-up period, participants who drank any amount of unsweetened coffee were 16 to 21 percent less likely to die than participants who did not drink

> They also found that participants who drank 1.5 to 3.5 daily cups of coffee sweetened with sugar were 29 to 31 percent less likely to die than participants who did not drink coffee. The authors noted that adults who drank sugar-sweetened coffee added only about 1 teaspoon of sugar per cup of coffee on average. Results were inconclusive for participants who used artificial sweeteners in their coffee

Any accompanying editorial by the editors of Annals of Internal Medicine notes that while coffee has qualities that could make health benefits possible, confounding variables including more difficult to measure differences in socioeconomic status, diet, and other lifestyle factors may impact findings. The authors add that the participant data is at least 10 years old and collected from a country where tea is a similarly popular beverage.

nvestigators have designed a study that simulated night work and then tested the effects of daytime and nighttime eating versus daytime eating only. The team found that, among participants in the daytime and nighttime eating group, depression-like mood levels increased by 26 per cent and anxiety-like mood levels by 16 per cent. Participants in the daytime-only eating group did not experience this increase. suggesting that meal timing may influence mood

"Our findings provide evidence for the timing of food intake as a novel strategy to potentially minimize mood vulnerability in individuals experiencing circadian misalignment, such as people engaged in shift work, experiencing jet lag, or suffering from circadian rhythm disorders," said co-corresponding author Frank A. J. L.

"Future studies in shift workers and clinical populations are required to firmly establish if changes in meal timing can prevent their increased mood vulnerability. Until then, our study brings a new 'player' to the table: the timing of food intake matters for our mood.'

Shift workers account for up to 20 per cent of the workforce in industrial societies and are directly responsible for many hospital services, factory work, and other essential services. Shift workers often experience a misalignment between their central circadian clock in the brain and daily behaviours, such as sleep/wake and fasting/eating cycles. Importantly, they also have a 25 to 40 per cent higher risk of depression and Participants underwent a Forced Desynchrony protocol in dim light for four 28hour "days," such that by the fourth "day" their behavioural cycles were inverted by 12 hours, simulating night work and causing circadian misalignment. Participants were randomly assigned to one of two meal timing groups: the Daytime and Nighttime Meal Control Group, which had meals according to a 28-hour cycle (resulting in eating both during the night and day, which is typical among night workers), and the Daytime-Only Meal Intervention Group, which had meals on a 24-hour cycle (resulting in eating only during the day).

BJP activists of the Hamirpur Parliamentary constituency especially in the Hamirpur district are unhappy and aggrieved over the missing photo of their leader Prem Kumar Dhumal from the publicity vehicles that were flagged off from Hamirpur by the party leaders on Saturday. Though, the former Chief Minister, Prem

Kumar Dhumal was the chief guest at the function yet workers fumed when they saw the photo of Dhumal missing from the vehicles that were flagged off by Dhumal, HP BJP chief, Suresh Kashyap, and HP food and Supplies Minister, Rajendra Garg from Hamirpur.

When contacted, HP BJP chief, Suresh Kashyap said it was the decision of the party high command whose photos were to be pasted on the publicity vehicles and he knew nothing except this. He further evaded questions on this despite the presence of Dhumal along with him at the press meet.

Not only this, the photo of the local MP and Union Information-cum-Broadcasting Minister, Anurag Thakur was also put on the back side of the vehicles giving the wrong signal to the party activists of Hamirpur.

Meanwhile, the party leaders and workers of the district have demanded a grant of a party ticket to PK Dhumal from the Hamirpur district to give impetus to the party activities. Dhumal unsuccessfully contested the election from the Sujanpur assembly seat in the 2017 elections. However, he has been working continuously in the Sujanpur constituency besides working in other parts of the state including Hamirpur district since 2017 and that is why there is a demand from the workers to give him a ticket despite his advanced age.

On another hand, in a recent interview with a leading English daily in India recently, the HP Chief Minister, Jai Ram Thakur told the reporters that he was not aware of this. But if he was keen to contest, the senior party leadership will take a decision on his candidature.

Political pundits of the area say that if Dhumal is ignored this way, it will be difficult for the party to win majority seats from the Hamirpur parliamentary, where his writ still runs as he had represented this seat in different capacities since 1984.

Cashless health insurance claim denied, rues Y'nagar resident

VINOD DHIMAN JAGADHRI, SEPT 18

When the insurance company has to sell its product, it makes big promises. But the reality on the ground is something else. Something similar happened to Baljeet, a resident of Yamunanagar, who had taken a cashless insurance policy from Star Health Company to make his life easier. When his health suddenly deteriorated, his family members informed his brother about it. Without any delay, the brother rushed him to Fortis Hospital in Mohali, where he recovered after receiving timely treatment. As soon as he asked the hospital for his bill, how will he pay, he told me that he has a cashless policy of Star Health Company. On this, the hospital sent his bill to the company for approval, but to his utter shock, the company rejected his bill. After which he contacted the insurance agent from whom he had taken the insurance. His attitude had also changed. He made it clear to his brother when he was being taken for treatment, the company should have been informed then. But his brother said that if they had waited to inform the insurance company, the patient would have lost his life. But he was told that this was written in the policy terms and conditions. He again submitted his bill request to the company, and the company rejected the request again. Disturbed by this, the hospital did not discharge his brother and admitted him again. Then, the brother deposited the money after arranging the same with great difficulty and got him discharged from the hospital. Rs 85,000 spent on treatment of his brother has yet not been paid to his company. And the company is reluctant to pay the amount. Now action should be taken against such a company because it works to trap people by telling lies When we spoke to the manager of Star Insurance Company about this, he said that the company pays cashless policy in two ways. One is when there is a serious illness based on the report, the other is if they feel that the disease is not being understood, then they pay in it after checking the original paper.

I've been bit light on cricket this summer: England's Kate Cross

London: As England gare up to start the ODI series against India on Sunday at Hove, England bowler Kate Cross is set to unleash the frustration of a quiet English summer for the team.

In her last outing, she took 4 for 63 and 2 for 56 in the drawn Test against South Africa which kicked off the international home season.

"You just want to play as much cricket as you can, and I feel like I've probably been a bit light on cricket this summer." ESPNcricinfo quoted Cross as saying "I've played three games for England, which feels really - compared to last year especially - like not a lot of cricket. You do all the training so you can go out there and enjoy those moments as a team. I've had one of the best seats in the house to watch that T20 series and see the youngsters go out and do their thing, so I just can't wait to get out there," she added. Cross was a member of England's T20I team for the South Africa trip, the Commonwealth Games, and the recently concluded series with India. "It's always frustrating when you're in a squad and not playing. But I think from my point of view, there's a bit of experience that I can bring to the group even when I'm not playing," said Cross. "That's been something that I've tried to do with this team as we've obviously not got Nat [Sciver] or Katherine around, so as a senior bowler it's nice to have a bit more responsibility and some youngsters listening to what you're saving," she added. "They've been so impressive. They've just had no fear when they've come out to play for England, which is everything that we want moving forward. It's what we're trying to achieve as a team. It's a type of cricket that means that you can't fail and they've just come in and done exactly that." Cross said.

Bajrang Punia, India's most successful wrestler at the world championships with one silver and two bronze, began the day with a hard-fought 5-4 win over Cuba's two-time world bronze medallist Alejandro Valdes.

Though Bajrang Punia won the bout, the Indian ace picked up a cut on his head and had to get bandaged up.

Wrestling with the injury, Bajrang Punia's hopes of a first gold medal at the world championships ended after losing to former Pan-American champion John Diakomihalis of the USA in the quarter-finals.

The Indian wrestler struggled against his younger opponent and lost 10-0 via technical superiority. However, John Diakomihalis made it to Sunday's final, pulling Bajrang Punia into the repechage.

India's other two wrestlers competing on the day could not make it past the qualification rounds.

Vicky Chahar was tied 2-2 with two-time European championships silver medallist Samuel Scherrer of Switzerland at the end of the second period in 97kg. However, Samuel Scherrer scored the last point of the bout to claim the victory by criteria.

Umesh replaces Shami in India squad for Australia series

AGENCY

NEW DELHI: The seasoned Umesh Yadav was on Sunday drafted into the Indian team as veteran seamer Mohammed Shami's replacement for the threematch T20I series against Australia. Shami was ruled out of the rubber, starting on Tuesday, late on Saturday night after he had tested positive for COVID-19.

"Fast bowler Mohd. Shami will not be able to take part in the upcoming three-day Mastercard T20I series against Australia after testing positive for COVID-19. The All-India Senior Selection Committee has named Umesh Yadav as his replacement," the BCCI said in a statement. Since July 2022, the 32-year-old has not been seen on the field. He hasn't played a T20 International since November 2021. Nonetheless, his experience and performance in the IPL - 20 wickets in 16 matches for the champions Gujarat Titans were viewed as valuable assets by the selectors, driving them to retain him on standby for the World Cup.

The matches against Australia on September 20, 23, and 25 and South Africa on September 28, October 2 and October 4 are India's final T20Is before the World Cup next month. As such, they provided an opportunity for the team to assess Shami's fitness following a two-month break from cricket.

These matches will serve as quality game practice for Men in Blue for ICC T20 World Cup 2022, which will go on from October 16 to November 13 this year.

Asian Games gold medallist Sudha Singh hangs up her boots

NEW DELHI: Sudha Singh, the 36-yearold Indian distance runner, has decided to retire from competitive international athletics. Over the course of her career that spanned over 13 years, the two-time Olympian and Asian Games gold medalist competed and brought India laurels across the globe.

Born in Amethi, Uttar Pradesh, Sudha Singh burst onto the national athletics scene after winning the 3000m steeplechase event at the 2007 National Games. She broke India's national record at the national championships in Jamshedpur with the timing of 10:18.76 in the same year.

Sudha Singh dominated the 3000m steeplechase events across India for the next few years and clinched her first international medal at the 2009 Asian Championships by winning silver.

Sudha Singh's biggest achievement came in 2010 with the introduction of women's 3000m steeplechase at the Asian Games in Guangzhou, China. Sudha Singh clocked 9:55.67 and pipped home-favourite Jin Yuan for the gold medal.

Son Heung-min's hat-trick helps Spurs to defeat Leicester 6-2

LONDON: An incredible display from substitute Son Heung-min fired a 13-minute hat-trick to power

Tottenham Hotspur to defeat Leicester City 6-2 in Premier League at Tottenham Hotspur Stadium on Saturday

It was 3-2 in Spurs' favour when Son stepped onto the pitch after Youri Tielemans had given the visitors an early lead with a twicetaken penalty, before goals from Harry Kane and Eric Dier put us in front, only for James Maddison to level it up at the break. Rodrigo Bentancur scored his first Spurs goal in 26 appearances for 3-2, before Son's superb cameo.

Davinson Sanchez tripped James Justin on the edge of the area, putting the Foxes ahead after five minutes.

But Spurs were level three minutes later, with Kane heading home Dejan Kulusevski's back-post cross for his 20th goal against the Foxes. And it was 2-1 in the 21st minute, with Ivan Perisic whipping in a corner to the near post, where Dier flicked a header home.

KL should open, probably got more ability than Kohli, Rohit: Gambhir

AGENCY NEWDELH:

Dismissing suggestions that Virat Kohli should open the batting in the T20 World Cup, former India opener Gautam Gambhir has firmly backed KL Rahul to do the job, and said the out-of-form batter has "probably got more ability".

Kohli's return to form in the Asia Cup, especially as an opener when he ended his long wait for a century with a 61-ball 122 against Afghanistan, fuelled debate whether he should be preferred over Rahul at the top in the next month's showpiece in Australia.

"You know what happens in India? The moment someone starts doing very well, for example, when Virat Kohli scored a hundred in the last game, we all start forgetting what Rahul and Rohit have done over a long period of time," Gambhir said on Star Sports during a virtual press conference ahead of India's threematch T20I series against Australia.

"When you talk about Kohli opening the batting, imagine what happens to KL Rahul... Imagine the amount of insecurity he (Rahul) must be feeling. Imagine if he gets a low score in the first game, there will be another debate on whether Kohli should open in the next game." Returning from a long injury layoff post the IPL, Rahul is yet to hit the straps and has scored one half-century from seven innings. In the Asia Cup, he averaged 26.40, with 132 runs from five innings.

2 runs from five innings.
But Gambhir, who mentored the Rahul-led Lucknow Super Giants in the IPL earlier this year, said the batter should be allowed to play freely. Under Rahul, LSG bowed out in the Eliminator, going down to Royal Challengers Bangalore by 14 runs.

"You don't want your top class

players in that position, especially KL

Rahul who has probably got more ability than Rohit Sharma or Virat Kohli." "Imagine KL Rahul going into the World Cup thinking, 'what if I don't score runs against Pakistan? What if I get replaced by Virat Kohli?" You don't want that. We should start thinking about how India can flourish, rather than certain individuals," Gambhir said.

With Dinesh Karthik and Rishabh Pant both in the Australiabound squad, there's also no clarity on the designated wicketkeeper's role.

Karthik was preferred ahead of Pant in their Asia Cup opener against Pakistan, but the left-hander returned in the Super 4 matches against Pakistan and Sri Lanka, while both featured against Afghanistan when skipper Rohit Sharma sat out.

In fact, the legendary Sunil Gavaskar has also spoken about playing both the keeper-batters, but Gambhir disagreed.

"You can't do that. If you do that, and you would not go into the World Cup with five bowlers. You need to have a backup. "Unless you drop someone like a Suryakumar Yadav, or KL Rahul has a bad tournament, and you can start

you will miss out on a sixth bowler

Suryakumar Yadav, or KL Rahul has a bad tournament, and you can start with Rishabh Pant opening the batting. Otherwise, I don't see both of these players in the middle-order," he said.

DK has no interest batting higher up Gambhir further said Karthik, who plays the role of a finisher, has "shown no interest" in batting at higher positions.
