All eyes on 10 Janpath after high drama in Rajasthan Cong

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, SEP 26

All eyes are on Congress chief Sonia Gandhi as top leaders converged at her 10, Janpath residence here on Monday after a series of developments in the last 24 hours in Rajasthan, where a majority of the party MLAs have rebelled against Sachin Pilot and want Ashok Gehlot to continue as the chief minister.

Party observers Mallikarjun Kharge and Ajay Maken, who were sent to Rajasthan, returned to Delhi on Monday after a planned meeting of the Congress Legislature Party (CLP) failed to take place. They met Gandhi at her residence soon after their return from Jaipur.

The high drama has also put a question mark on whether Gehlot would still run for the party president's post or someone else would replace him as a candidate supported by the current leadership. Gehlot has maintained that the "one man, one post" formula does not apply to him as the Congress presidential poll is an internal affair.

In Jaipur Congress Working Committee members have demanded from Sonia Gandhi to pull the state chief minister out of the race for the party chief and select another candidate for the top post, sources said on Monday.

Miffed over the recent political developments in the crisis-hit state and the conduct of the MLAs of the Gehlot camp, the CWC members have registered a complaint against him with the party chief and said, "It would not be good to lay faith in him and give him the responsibility of the party. The party top leadership should reconsider his candidature".

The members have urged Sonia Gandhi to make another such person a candidate who is a senior leader and also loyal to the Gandhi family.

Sonia Gandhi, at the behest of Ashok Gehlot, has taken cognizance of the MLAs of his camp not meeting the two observers- Mallikarjun Kharge and Ajay Maken - sent to Jaipur by the party leadership.

Notably, the MLAs of the Gehlot camp had not attended the meeting of the Congress legislative party (CLP).

Yamuna water enters fields

NIRMAL RADAUR: The water level of Yamuna river has increased after heavy rains. Late night, about two lakh 95 thousand cusecs of water that came out of Hathnikund barrage reached Gumthala and Jathlana area early in the morning. Tehsildar Suresh Kumar gave information about this. Announcements were also made in the villages about this. After the rise in the water level of Yamuna river, about three to four feet of water got accumulated in the fields situated in low-lying areas across the Yamuna river due to which the crops of paddy, sugarcane, green fodder and sesame standing in the fields of the farmers got submerged. The damage caused to the farmers can be assessed when the water recedes.

On the other hand, there is also a danger of soil erosion on the river edges. At present, the work of the bridge being built on the Yamuna river has also been delayed due to the water coming into the Yamuna river. The completion of the bridge construction work may also take more time due to the damage on both the sides. Surjit Singh Bhura, former sarpanch and social worker of village Gumthala, said that about 400 to 500 acres of crops have been submerged by the water of Yamuna river. The water of Yamuna river has accumulated in the green fodder, paddy and sugarcane crops standing in the fields. This is expected to cause huge losses to the farmers. He told that 40 acres of farmer Mahindra Pal, 19 acres of Rajpal, 18 acres of Lakhwinder, 22 acres of Surendra Kumar, 17 acres of Mukhtyar Singh, 12 acres of Buta Singh, Man Singh 10 acres, Dilbagh four acres, Hukam Singh about three and a half acres of, Malikit six acres, Prakash five acres, Chic Singh's three acres, Kulwant nine acres, Vinod Batra's nine acres, Pawan Kumar's five acres, Palvindra's seven acres, Sukhvindra's five acres, Five acres of Singram Saini, two acres of Qurban, three acres of Naseem etc. have accumulated water. All these farmers are on the other side of Yamuna river. Water has started coming out somewhere on this side too, but after the water recedes, the risk of erosion will remain high.

Arhtiyas postpone strike on Hooda's appeal

SHIV KUMAR SHARMA KARNAL, SEPTEMBER 26

Former Chief Minister and Leader of Opposition Bhupinder Singh Hooda reached the new grain market in Karnal today to talk to farmers. He appealed to the arhtiyas sitting on hunger strike for the last four days to postpone their fast unto death for the farmers. He also assured that he will fight the battle of farmers and arhtiyas with his organisation in the assembly and outside. If his government comes, he will fulfill all their demands. Agreeing to this appeal, the arhtiyas sitting for the last four days decided to suspend their fast. State President Ashok Gupta and Rajneesh Chaudhary, who were on fast unto death, got them finished by drinking juice and getting juice. Along with the arhtiyas, farmers and laborers are also facing problems due to the strike. Talking to reporters at Ashok Khurana's establishment, Hooda said that if he becomes the Chief Minister, he will abolish the family identity card. Due to the family identity card, the pension of the elderly, disabled and widowed women is being cut. He said that the crop of the farmer is getting ruined both in the market and in the field. The farmer is facing the brunt of the weather in the field and the government delay in the mandi.

Despite repeated demands, smooth procurement of paddy has not started in the mandis so far. On the other hand, due to heavy rains for three days, the farmers have suffered heavy losses. Farmers need government help. The government should give proper compensation to the farmers by getting Girdawari done at the earliest. On the issue of INLD claiming the formation of a Third Front, Hooda said that Nitish Kumar himself and other leaders had claimed this. It is impossible to build an anti-BJP front without Congress. Therefore, making such a claim by a party with a legislator is irrelevant. INLD is just struggling to find its political ground. On this occasion, former assembly speaker Kuldeep Sharma, former minister Ashok Arora, MLA Mewa Singh, former MLA Bhim

Treatments and home remedies for stretch mark removal

In these days of selfies and filters, it is understandable to feel the pressure to maintain a flawless body and complexion. Due to celebrity influence, we have become fascinated with unattainable bodies and skin. If stretch marks have recently affected your confidence, you are not alone. Read further to discover the facts regarding stretch marks shared by Dr. Geetika Srivastava, Dermatologist & Founder of Influenzz Skin & Hair Clinic.

What Are Stretch Marks? Stretch marks, also known as striae, are caused by the actual "stretched" of skin. Consider our skin as a stretchy balloon. That balloon can only hold so much air/water before it bursts beyond a "stretch" threshold. That is exactly what occurs with our skin. Our skin is composed of collagen and elastin fibers, which maintain skin suppleness. Due to numerous causes including: Rapid weight gain Pubertal growth spurt Pregnancy Hormonal disbalances as in Cushing's disease Types Of Stretch Marks Stretch marks are of two types and they are: Striae rubra, or early stretch marks, are formed early and are red/purple in color.

Striae Albicans, or mature stretch marks. Stretch marks can fade to form shiny, white, atrophic lines on the body. These are linear scars formed on breasts, thighs and abdomen in women and arms and buttocks in men. These stay lifelong until medical intervention is done. Home Remedies

Stretch marks are not as rare as you may believe. According to a recent survey, up to 90 percent of people suffer from stretch marks. Some far more than others. Aloe vera, coconut oil, almond, and olive oil are among the many home cures for stretch marks that are abundant on social media. But what is the exact truth?

Despite the fact that many companies claim to be able to cure stretch marks, this is not the case. Stretch marks can only be treated by preventing them in the first place. The most effective home cure for stretch marks is moisturising the skin so that they do not appear or are less severe if they do. Vitamin A

In skin care products, vitamin A is referred to as a retinoid. Retinoids can help skin appear more youthful and supple. Many over-the-counter (OTC) topical cosmetic products contain them. Vitamin A products at times can irritate the skin, so it's advisable to carefully follow the recommendations if you decide to use them. Aloe Vera The aloe vera plant's inner leaf gel can be applied directly to the skin to soothe and hydrate. Regular application of gel from the plant or aloe gel purchased from a store has an effect on stretch marks.

Coconut Oil Virgin coconut oil has several proven skin advantages. It can help maintain the protective barrier of the skin. There is limited evidence to support the use of coconut oil for stretch marks, but it has been suggested that gently rubbing oil into your skin could prevent stretch marks.

Sikhs worries over SC ruling on Hry gurdwaras, Punjab BJP tells PM

RAKESH NAYYAR
CHOHLA SAHIB/TARN TARAN: Bharatiya Janata Party's Sikh leader Prof. Sarchand Singh Khayala apprised the Prime Minister Narendra Modi about concern in the Sikh community over the dwindling influence of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee. He has appealed to the PM to intervene and fulfill the long-standing demand of the Sikhs by making and implementing the All India Gurdwara Act. In a letter written to the Prime Minister, Prof. Sarchand Singh Khayala said that with the decision of the Supreme Court, the scope of the Shiromani Committee will be limited to Punjab. This is an emotional, sensitive and serious issue for the Sikh community. Because the Shiromani Committee not only takes care of the historical Gurdwaras of Punjab, Haryana and Chandigarh, but also because it is concerned with matters related to the Sikhs living all over the world, it is the Parliament of the Sikhs and the central axis for the Sikh community. In this regard, if the court order is implemented, it will not be the division of the Shiromani Committee but the division of 'Panth Sata' for the Sikhs of the world, which a large population of Sikhs is not in a mood to tolerate. With this, there is fear of spreading chaos among the Sikhs and inter-fraternal war.

It was released in theatres on May 12. In the film, Mahesh played the role of a US-based money lender, who travels to India for personal reasons. But, as the story proceeds further, he is drawn into a woman's life, who has suffered from the nexus between politicians and banking officials. He then takes a pledge to help the woman and ends up fixing the banking system in the country.

The film wasn't received well by critics and didn't do expected business at the box office either. However, it did manage to be a profitable one, owing to Mahesh Babu will also be seen sharing the big screen with Pooja Hedge in 'Jana Gana Mana'.
