Here's how Neeharika Roy recreated the scooty scene from the film '3 Idiots' in Pyaar Ka Pehla Naam Radha Mohan

CHANDIGARH :Zee TV's popular fiction offering, Pyaar Ka Pehla Naam Radha Mohan, is a mature romance based in modern-day Vrindavan. It captures the story of Mohan (Shabir Ahluwalia), who was once an effortless and easy-going charmer with women swooning around him. However, he has somehow lost that smile along the way and is, today, an intense, brooding man. On the other hand, Radha (Neeharika Roy) is a spiritual and optimistic girl on a mission to bring back Mohan's smile. The audiences who love Radha and Mohan's chemistry are in for some nail-biting action-packed drama in the upcoming episodes.

In the recent episodes, viewers got to witness how smartly Mohan, Radha, and Kadambari (Swati Shah) saved all the kids from the bus with a bomb that Damini had planted. However, right after the rescue Mohan got injured and has been in an unconscious state in the hospital. Taking advantage of this situation Damini (Sambhabana Mohanty) is planning on marrying Mohan in the hospital itself. To stop the marriage, Radha will be seen entering the hospital with Gungun (Reeza Choudhary) just like Aamir Khan from the film '3 Idiots'. Neeharika Roy, mentioned, "This is the first time I rode a scooty in my life, I never thought I needed to learn one but because it was the scene's demand, I learnt it a little bit. I was extremely scared to shoot for the sequence not because I have never ridden one."

A saree affair: Kamna Pathak's love for the nine yards!

BUREAU CHANDIGARH : Sarees are undoubtedly one of the most elegant and stylish traditional Indian attire that can be worn for any occasion. And that's precisely why classic and fusion drapes find a place in every woman's wardrobe. Speaking of which, actor Kamna Pathak, aka Rajesh Singh from the immensely popular &TV's gharelu comedy Happu Ki Ultan Paltan, is obsessed with the nine yards and has a huge collection of all types of sarees. The actor enjoys wearing them during the shoot and can be spotted in a saree when not shooting. Her love for sarees goes beyond daily wear, with her collection comprising all traditional and fusion sarees from different parts of the country. Shopping for a saree is a must-do on her domestic travel list!

Talking about her love for the nine yards, Kamna Pathak, essaying Rajesh's character in &TV's Happu Ki Ultan Paltan, says, "Rightly said that a saree can never go out of fashion and is a must-have clothing in one's wardrobe. It is one attire that makes every woman look elegant and attractive, regardless of size or shape. Whether get-togethers, parties, formal events, or traditional ceremonies, a saree can be the best choice to make a style statement. It is one attire that has never become obsolete and has only evolved with time. Sarees have always been one of my favourite garments and first love! I fell in love with them at a very young age. My mom used to drape a dupatta as a saree, and I would keep admiring myself in the mirror all day long (laughs). My family made good fun of me back then. My love for the nine yards grew as I grew up, and I started wearing sarees more often. And when I started earning, I started collecting sarees. Soon enough, as I began travelling, I started collecting authentic traditional drapes popular in the cities I was visiting. Over time, I have collected different types of sarees and have created a separate space to store them. Recently, I visited Gwalior for Navratri and then Varanasi for Dev Deepawali.

celebrations and gorging on local street food, shopping for a saree was one of my top priorities. So I picked up not one but 5 Banarasi sarees! Collecting sarees from various cities has become a ritual now. If I don't get to do that, I feel my trip is incomplete (laughs)."

Elaborating on her favourite celebrities in sarees, Kamna shares, "Rekha Ji is hands-down India's style icon for sarees. Her sheer individualism and elegance in her style statement always attract attention whenever she makes an appearance. She has an impeccable sense of style that continues to inspire generation after generation. Interestingly, I recently picked up one red saree inspired by Rekha Ji's Kanjeevaram in Varanasi. The shopkeeper told me that many shoppers came asking for Rekha Ji's various saree looks and many women eyed the red saree I bought, but I was destined to buy it! My other favourite saree-style icon is Vidya Balan, who has a distinct fashion sense, both conventional and off-beat. I must add that I also adore my character, Rajjo's saree look in Happu Ki Ultan Paltan. Her wardrobe has sarees in vibrant hues with traditional work. While some may complain that daily saree wear can be daunting, especially on the shoot."

Mayur Lad: "Bala's character is a shade of grey. He has a kind heart, but his ways and means are wrong. Playing that layered character is a challenge I love to face daily."

CHANDIGARH : Actor Mayur Lad, who essays Bala in &TV's popular show Ek Mahanayak – Dr B.R. Ambedkar, has come a long way in his acting career and is thoroughly enjoying this phase of his life. Mayur, who has been a part of films and television, talks about his journey in the entertainment industry and how his current show became a watershed moment in his career.

1. How did you bag the role of Bala in Ek Mahanayak - Dr B.R. Ambedkar?

Jagannath Nivangune Ji, who plays Bhimrao's father, Ramji, in the show, introduced me to the makers of Ek Mahanayak – Dr B.R. Ambedkar. I have known him for many years, and we have worked on several assignments together. I am grateful to him to have guided me to this wonderful opportunity. One night, he told me that the makers were looking for an actor to essay Bala's character and that I must audition. Immediately, I sent my audition video, and the next day I received a call from the production team. Rest, as they say, is history. Bala's character is quite popular with the audience. So, I can say I ended up being at the right place at the right time with the right opportunity. It has been quite a learning experience.

2. Tell us about Bala's character.

I essay Bala Ram, the elder brother of Dr BR Ambedkar. Bala's character is a shade of grey. He has a kind heart, but his ways and means are wrong. Playing that layered character is a challenge I love to face daily. I had to do a lot of homework to prepare for the role. One had to study the character in depth and his personality lot to understand his character's nuances and work accordingly.

4. Apart from Atharva, who are you closest to on the sets?

Everyone on the set is like family to me. Be it our director, all my co-actors and the entire crew. Even though I am one of the last entrants in the show, the warmth and support have been very encouraging. As I mentioned before, I have known Jagannath Nivangune Ji for over a decade, and he has always supported me greatly. He has been a friend, mentor and guide. His advice and suggestions have greatly helped me, and I look up to him.

5. How did your acting journey start?

Acting has always fascinated me. I used to actively participate in school plays. However, coming from a middle-class family with no connections in the entertainment industry, I had never imagined getting a breakthrough. It was always a dream to see myself on screen someday. I came from a humble background and used to sell firecrackers during my college days.

Rajiv killers’ release: Govt plea raises key questions

The Union government moving the Supreme Court seeking a review of its November 11 order releasing all six remaining convicts undergoing life imprisonment for the assassination of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi is sure to spark serious discussions on certain constitutional and administrative topics.

The apex court has made use of two constitutional provisions while ordering the release of all the seven convicts. One is Article 161, which says the governor of a state shall have the power to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment or to suspend, remit or commute the sentence of any person convicted of any offence against any law relating to a matter to which the executive power of the state extends. Since the governor acts on the aid and advice of the council of ministers, the court has cited the September 9, 2018, decision of the Tamil Nadu Cabinet to grant pardon to all the convicts who were serving their sentence then. The court also invoked its rarely used plenary power under Article 142 which empowers it to “pass such decree or make such order as is necessary for doing complete justice in any cause or matter pending before it”.

The court also cited the good character of the convicts during their long duration of their sentence, the academic pursuits they made and the earlier decision of the apex court to release A.G. Perarivalan, the youth who had not participated directly in the assassination, under similar provisions.

The Union government’s primary contention that it was not heard before the court decided the case which is about the assassination of a former Prime Minister of the country. It has said the petitioners did not implead the Union of India as a party and it is a procedural lapse.

The most important of the contentions is that four of the six convicts who have been granted remission are Sri Lankan nationals. Granting remission to a terrorist of foreign nation, who was duly convicted in accordance with the law of the land for assassinating the former Prime Minister, is a matter which has international ramifications and, therefore, falls squarely within the sovereign powers of the Union of India, it has said.

The Supreme Court had disapproved of the action of the Tamil Nadu governor forwarding to the President the recommendation of the state council of ministers to pardon Perarivalan. It found no reason nor the source of the governor’s power backed by the Constitution to refer a recommendation made by the state Cabinet to the President, and termed his action as “contrary to the constitutional scheme”.

Climate change crisis is deepening inequalities

The climate change crisis is deepening inequalities, making the vulnerable more so, not only across countries but also within countries. This should be blindingly obvious to anyone who has been following discussions around climate change. But the fact that it needs to be spelt out explicitly, yet again, in mega meets such as COP 27 at Sharm el-Sheikh tells you a lot about the enormity of the challenges ahead.

As climate justice expert Yamide Dagnet pointed out in a recent interview to InterPress Service, a global news agency: “Unfortunately, inequalities in the world (and) within each country will be exacerbated because of climate change. The impact of climate change will affect the most vulnerable populations from class and gender, with inter-generational impact and from a race point of view. All aspects of inequality will be amplified.”

We all know that deadly heatwaves, floods, storms, droughts, wildfires and so on, or what scientists call “extreme weather events” have become more erratic and more frequent globally. Their impact, however, has not been uniform. The worst-affected are the poor and those living on the margins. What does this mean for India, which has a largely young population, a deeply iniquitous socio-economic fabric, and which is the seventh most vulnerable country with respect to climate extremes?

Take extreme heat, as an illustration. Globally, heatwaves kill nearly half a million people a year. The number by itself, however, tells you only a part of the story.

A new report by Unicef, the UN’s children’s agency, points out the danger that extreme heat poses to children. Children, the report points out, are affected by heat in two broad ways -- risks to health and well-being, and social and educational risks. Child exposure to extreme high temperatures was highest in Africa and Asia in 2020 and will also be highest in these two regions by 2050. It says that by 2050, millions more children across every region in the world will have to face more extreme high temperatures and more frequent, longer lasting, and more severe heatwaves, it notes.

Currently, 23 countries fall into the highest category for child exposure to extreme high temperatures. This, says Unicef, will rise to 33 countries by 2050 under the low emissions scenario and 36 countries under the very high emissions scenario. India is among the countries which are expected to remain in the highest category in both scenarios. The others are Burkina Faso, Chad, Mali, Niger, Sudan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Pakistan.

Unsurprisingly, “the most disadvantaged are the most at risk”, as the report points out. “Children from the poorest communities from the poorest countries face the greatest risks from heatwaves and yet receive the least support. They often lack access to coping mechanisms that could offer protection such as air conditioning, shelter, water for hydration and healthcare for treatment.” Clearly, in India’s cities and villages, children who come from better-off families that can afford air-conditioners or air coolers are better-insulated from heatwaves than those whose parents eke out a living.

At Sharm el-Sheikh, a fact sheet released by Natural Resources Defence Council (India) pointed out that during the summer of 2022, India experienced weeks of searing heat that “were made at least 30 times more likely because of planet-warming greenhouse gas pollution from burning fossil fuels”.

Unpacked, this points to the dangers of more premature deaths and a dip in productivity. According to a 2019 study by the International Labour Organisation, heat stress is projected to reduce total working hours worldwide by 2.2 per cent and global GDP by $2,400 billion in 2030. In absolute terms, India is expected to lose the equivalent of 34 million full-time jobs in 2030 as a result of heat stress.

Keep in mind that most Indians work in the informal sector, without social safety nets. The impact in India is likely to be felt mostly in the agricultural sector, also the construction sector, where heat stress affects both male and female workers.

What is being done? How seriously are we taking the looming challenges triggered by climate change?

We have begun thinking about these issues; work has begun. But a lot more needs to be done, given that millions in this country are severely exposed to heat and work in precarious conditions. In the Indian context, affordability must be key. And context matters.

Some experts are advocating a “heat vulnerability index” which factors in landscape, demography, and socio-economic factors.

India’s demand for air conditioning is expected to surge hugely to help counter worsening heat, but clearly everyone in this country will not be able to afford air-conditioners, nor live and work only in air-conditioned surroundings. If the rise in demand for cooling energy is met by electricity supplied mostly by burning fossil fuels, it can aggravate the climate change crisis. Ahmedabad, which developed the country’s first Heat Action Plan (HAP) in 2013, offers insights into what can be done. A key component of the HAP is a Cool Roof programme using light-coloured roofing material which can reflect the sun’s rays.

Many Indian cities have followed the Ahmedabad example but the effectiveness of HAPs varies. Given the differential impacts of heatwaves and other climate change-fuelled extreme weather events, there can’t be one uniform solution. Significantly, we do not yet have easily accessible hard data on how heatwaves are impacting different segments of the population.

Literature & Health

What is that awful smell?

Sometimes, when a person speaks to us, the bad smell from their mouth is enough to wake the dead. Even a child can have terrible halitosis or mouth odour. Yet, paradoxically, it is the people he or she is speaking to — the ones who don’t have halitosis — who feel self-conscious about averting their faces or stepping back. They have a fear of offending others.

Do you have bad breath? Check it out. Cup your hands over your mouth and breathe into it. Smell your breath. Lick the back of your hand, wait for the saliva to dry and smell the hand. Is it foul?

Mouthwashes, rinses and special toothpastes fly off grocery store shelves as people try to “cure” their mouth odour. This is a futile exercise as the odour returns within an hour or so unless the underlying, precipitating cause is removed. Alcohol-based mouthwashes dry the mouth and worsen the odour.

Halitosis can originate in the mouth itself. There may be poor dental hygiene and teeth with caries or cavities. Food particles get trapped in these and emit a foul odour as they degenerate and become infected. With increasing age, the teeth may play out and gaps may form between them, trapping food particles. The teeth may become loose, leading to swollen, infected, painful, malodorous gums.

Dental check-ups should be done twice a year to fix these minor problems. Scaling and cleaning should also be done if needed. Sinusitis, post-nasal drip, polyps in the nose, tonsillitis and infected adenoids can cause the mouth to smell. Sometimes the tonsils have crypts (little depressions) which get filled with food debris. These get infected and form white spots, which do not disappear even after rinsing the mouth. The tongue can be coated and contribute towards the odour.

Avoid vapourising mosquito repellents, agarbattis and room fresheners. This will help prevent allergic polyps in the nose. Use saline or non-absorbable steroid like fluticasone nose drops. Inhale steam three times a day to clear the passages.

Tonsillectomy can be considered along with adenoidectomy in children, if, in addition to the bad breath, more than seven infections occur in a year, there is breathing difficulty or recurrent ear infections. In adults, uncontrollable halitosis is an indication for tonsillectomy.

Children stuff all kinds of objects into their noses. It may be small stones, peas, peanuts, chalk pieces or erasers. The parents may not even notice it. This may lead to foul-smelling nasal discharge and halitosis. At any age, cancer of the nasopharynx or in the throat or oesophagus can cause a foul smell. There may be a blood-stained discharge as well. Lymph nodes may be enlarged, providing a clue to the diagnosis.

Choke the carbs: The ketogenic diet

The diet is hailed as a “weight-loss wonder” which apparently reduces hunger, controls diabetes, treats epilepsy, manages high blood pressure and even prevents fat deposition in the body.

The ketogenic or keto diet — low on carbs with little protein but high on fat — is one of the fad diets in the West and many westernised youth in India swear by it. Although the exact ratio of its constituents is a debatable issue, in general the intake of 70-80 per cent fat, 5-10 per cent carbohydrate and 10-20 per cent protein is considered a keto diet.

Dr Asish Chaudhuri is an aging research scientist who works as a consultant for US pharmaceutical firms. Previously, he was a senior scientist at the Buck Institute for Research on Aging in California in the US, where he and his colleagues discovered a unique mechanism of the keto diet. He says, “Our findings indicate that one of the key components of the keto diet is beta hydroxybutyrate (BHB), which acts like a vacuum cleaner, removing soluble toxic proteins (considered causative elements for neurodegeneration) that roam around your body as you get old.” The diet resets how our body uses food. Usually carbs (such as staple starch food) provide most of the energy to keep us moving or working. But as we age, we move or work less and can’t burn the carbs that eventually lead to obesity, diabetes, hypertension and several other disorders.

The keto diet lowers the amount of carbs you eat and teaches the body to burn fat for its energy requirement. This process is called ketosis as the body makes things called ketones, which it can use as fuel. According to Chaudhuri, BHB is the key fasting fuel as it provides a key metabolite called Acetyl CoA — a versatile bio molecule involved in carbohydrate, protein and lipid metabolism.

This molecule finally gets converted to adenosine triphosphate or ATP, the source of energy for use and storage at the cellular level, through a metabolic cycle called tricarboxylic (TCA) cycle. “As BHB helps skip multiple steps of energy conversion in the body, it’s called the fasting fuel,” adds Chaudhuri.

POEMS

Chain Of Pearls

Mother, I shall weave a chain of pearls for thy neck with my tears of sorrow. The stars have wrought their anklets of light to deck thy feet, but mine will hang upon thy breast. Wealth and fame come from thee and it is for thee to give or to withhold them. But this my sorrow is absolutely mine own.

Hedgie, Modi and FTA: Why desperate UK needs a deal...

“The autumnal breeze assails the trees Soon it will be winter which promises a freeze – The days make us older, this relentless time Oh Bachchoo don’t suffer From the shortage of a rhyme!”

From Dill lagi Ki Dillagi, by Bachchoo

Hedgie Sunak talks to Narendraji at the G-20 summit in Bali. They discuss a possible trade agreement by first talking about visas allowing Indian citizens entry into the UK for work and study. Hedgie is, as Liz Truss, BoJo and all other Brexiteers, desperate to alleviate the economic crisis that Biden and no mention was made of such a deal. President Biden and President Barack Obama before him were very clear that Britain outside the European Union will have to await its turn for a favourable trade agreement. In fact, phrases such as “back of the queue” were thrown about.

The spanner in the works of Liz Truss’ attempt to broker this deal was thrown by her home secretary, Suella “Cruella” Braverman. This nasty piece of work, pandering to the racist right of the Tories, had declared that Indians were not welcome here as they were notorious for overstaying their visas. The Indian government was not amused. Now, Hedgie is desperate not only for the trade deal but also to get over the labour shortages -- in the National Health Service, short by the tens of thousands of doctors, nurses and care workers; in scientific research; and in the hospitality, transport and building industries. His government desperately boasts that the UK is experiencing the lowest number of people registered as unemployed.

And yet there are, paradoxically today, 5.3 million individuals claiming welfare benefits. These are people reluctant to work in the sectors short of labour on the wages that these sectors offer.

Statistics can be seen, as Cruella suggested in one of her outbursts, as proving that a chunk of the British workforce is lazy, exploitative and con-scientists who can fill the NHS vacancies. Will he mention nurses and unskilled labour – the sort that goes to the Middle East to fill labour shortages for ambitious buildings in, say, Qatar? Hedgie re-employed Cruella as home secretary precisely six days after she had been forced to resign for a breach of the ministerial code when she leaked confidential documents to the wrong people from her private e-mail address and claimed it was a “mistake”.

Congress demands inquiry into foodgrain ‘smuggling’ in Goa

PANAJI, NOV 19

In the backdrop of an alleged foodgrain smuggling racket busted by Goa Police, the Congress on Friday demanded a high-level inquiry into the matter headed by a retired high court judge. "The Congress Legislature Party (CLP) has decided to demand for a high-level inquiry under a retired high court judge of all procurements and distribution of foodgrains and commodities by the state government from 2020 onwards," Leader of Opposition Yuri Alemao said while addressing a press conference after the CLP meeting. MLAs Carlos Alvares Ferreira, Altone DaCosta and GPCC President Amit Patkar were present at the presser. "The insensitive and irresponsible BJP government headed by Chief Minister Pramod Sawant has failed in every sector, which has now resulted in the collapse of administration in Goa," Alemao said. He said that Congress will approach the Governor and seek his immediate intervention in this issue. The Crime Branch of Goa Police had on Tuesday arrested five persons for allegedly stealing rice and wheat from the civil supply department's godown for smuggling in Karnataka. The police seized 761 rice bags and 253 bags containing wheat in this connection. The police have said that the accused persons were smuggling rice bags and wheat bags stolen from the civil supply godowns from Goa. However, the civil supply department has clarified that there is no 'mismatch' in their storage and supply. Civil supply director Gopal Parsekar said that they had sought a report of stock from all the 11 godowns in the state, which suggested that there is no mismatch in the records of storage and supply.

Govt not launching projects aiming polls, working 24 hrs for development: PM

AGENCY
ITANAGAR, NOV 19

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday said that his NDA government is not launching projects with an eye on the elections, but is working round the clock for the country's development. Lambasting critics and asking them to change their old mindset, Modi said without knowing the details, the "commentators" commented on the government's works and policies. While inaugurating the 'Donyi Polo' Greenfield airport in Itanagar and dedicating the 600 MW Kameng Hydro Power project to the nation, the Prime Minister said that since independence, the northeast has been the most backward region. The overall change of the area began when Atal Bihari Vajpayee became the Prime Minister and created a separate ministry (Development of North Eastern Region) for the region's all round development. "A fresh momentum started after 2014. The Northeast region is now not far away from New Delhi. The remote or the last village of the region is considered as the first village of the country," he said.

Saying that "our dream is for the welfare of the mother India", Modi said that his government has been working hard to take the country forward by laying equal emphasis on all the spheres. He said that the primary objective of the present government is for the all round development of the country. "Culture to agriculture, commerce to connectivity, trade and tourism, telecom to textiles, drone technology to agricultural technology, every aspect is being provided top priorities. For constructing the longest rail route or bridge and big highways, the northeast region has been accorded the highest priority now."

Since India's independence and till 2014, there were only nine airports in the northeastern region and the present

allegations against him ‘baseless’

BHOPAL, NOV 19

Former Chief Minister and Madhya Pradesh Congress Committee (MPCC) president Kamal Nath has said that he is not the kind of person "who wastes his energy on countering baseless allegations".

Nath, who on Friday completed 76 years of age, was responding to BJP's accusations against him of insulting Hindu religion. Nath drew courted controversy after he cut a "temple-shaped cake with the portrait of Lord Hanuman on it" during a ceremony at his home town in Chhindwara on Thursday.

Born on November 18, 1946, Nath-the 'Doon school buddy' of Sanjay Gandhi, joined the Youth Congress in the 1970s and since then his political journey continues, and with his restless efforts at this age has once again energised the entire Madhya Pradesh Congress for a heated assembly elections in November 2023.

A Commerce graduate from the St. Xavier's College, Kolkata, in 2012 Nath had replaced Pranab Mukherjee to help the United Progressive Alliance (UPA) government win a crucial debate on foreign direct investment in India (FDI).

For Nath, former Prime Minister (late) Indira Gandhi had dropped sitting MP Gargi Shankar Mishra, who had survived the Janata wave. Since then, the Kanpur-born Nath made Chhindwara his home, won nine Lok Sabha elections and headed several ministries, besides serving as a key functionary of All India Congress Committee (AICC). If sources are to be believed, he was offered by Sonia Gandhi to become AICC president, however, Nath decided to focus on the responsibility he took over in 2018 and to bring the Congress back in power in 2023. At a crucial juncture when the Congress leadership is making all out efforts to revive the grand old party with the 'Bharat Jodo Yatra' led by Rahul Gandhi, crisis broke out in Rajasthan, which led to twists and turns in the filing of nomination for the Congress presidential poll scheduled on October 17.

TN farmers relieved as crop insurance
deadline extended to Nov 21

CHENNAI, NOV 19

Farmers in the 27 districts of Tamil Nadu are a relieved lot as the Centre has agreed to extend the deadline for crop insurance till November 21.

Chief Minister M.K. Stalin had taken up the matter with the Union government with a plea to extend the November 15 deadline to November 30.

Primary Agricultural Cooperative Societies, Cooperative banks and Common service centres are witnessing a heavy rush of farmers paying the premium of insurance. The state government has also directed these institutions to function on November 19 and 20 to help farmers pay the premium amount.

R. Radhakrishnan, a farmer in Myladuthurai told IANS, "We were expecting the central government to extend the deadline till November 30. However, we are satisfied that at least we got time till November 21. The farmers are really thankful to the Chief Minister M.K. Stalin for having taken up this matter before the central government and getting the deadline extended."

It may be noted that with heavy rains, several crops have perished and this has led to the farmers in a no man's land. With the crop insurance deadline fixed for November 15 and many of the farmers not having paid the premium amount, it was a tough situation for the agriculturalists in Tamil Nadu and the initiative of Chief Minister Stalin to take the matter up with the Central government has given breather of life for the beleaguered farmers of the state.

Chanapora arms recovery case

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

The National Investigation Agency (NIA) on Friday filed a chargeheet before a Special court in Jammu against five accused in a case relating to arms haul recovery from Chanapora in Srinagar.

Investigation has also revealed that the above said accused persons used to receive these arms consignments from Pakistan," the NIA said in a statement. The NIA has mentioned that during investigation, it has been found that the accused persons were associated with their Pakistan based handlers of LeT/TRF, and radicalised, motivated and instigated vulnerable youth to join terrorist groups in Kashmir. "The recovery of lot of incriminating materials relating to arms, ammunitions, chats about terror funds besides others materials from the mobile phones of accused persons, has established the fact that these accused persons were engaged in terror activities for long time and thereby threatening the Security, Integrity and Sovereignty of India," the Central agency said.

If comes to power, Trinamool will not control
Meghalaya from Bengal: Abhishek Banerjee

SHILLONG, NOV 19

Trinamool Congress' National General Secretary Abhishek Banerjee, who led a massive rally in western Meghalaya's Tura on Friday, announced that if his party comes to power in the next assembly elections, the new government would not be controlled from Bengal.

Saying that "sons of the Meghalaya's soil" would run the state government after the assembly polls, Banerjee announced that former Chief Minister Mukul Sangma would be the party's chief ministerial face in the upcoming polls. He said that

government led by National People's Party (NPP) rule anymore and the Trinamool as a party "wants to give them (the people) a platform to raise their concerns". "We are on a mission to ensure that welfare reaches to each and every person in our beautiful hill state," Banerjee said. "... we promise to continue serving the people with utmost dedication. We won't be cowed down before the autocratic forces," he said. "Why did the Centre fail to include Khasi and Garo languages in the eighth Schedule of the Constitution," the Trinamool leader asked and termed the ruling NPP, which is a constituent of the BJP led NDA, as "National Puppet Party". "The double-engine government has everything at their disposal. Then, what's stopping them. Does MDA's internal conflicts supersede the interest of people," Banerjee asked. He said that the Trinamool Congress' symbol has two flowers and three petals in each flower.

Mediatory talks in TN
Congress over action against party legislator
Ruby R. Manoharan

CHENNAI: Senior leaders of the party have commenced mediatory talks on the disciplinary action against Ruby R. Manoharan, Nanguneri MLA of the party over a scuffle in the party headquarters Sathyamoorthi Bhavan a couple of days ago.

Former Union Minister and senior leader of the Tamil Nadu Congress Dhanushkodi Adityan told media persons that even as the senior leaders of the party, including district presidents, passed a resolution for the disciplinary action against Ruby R. Manoharan, mediatory talks were on to prevent this.

On November 15, a few supporters of Ruby R. Manoharan entered into a scuffle with some party office bearers at Sathyamoorthy Bhavan over some organisational appointments in Tirunelveli district when an organisational meeting of senior leaders presided over by TNCC president K. S. Alagiri to discuss the preparedness for the 2024 loksabha elections was underway.

The party leaders in the open stated that there was no move to remove Ruby R. Manoharan from the party and instead he was served a show-cause notice to the incidents that took place in Sathyamoorthy Bhavan. However, Ruby R. Manoharan had in a public statement clarified that he did not have any role in the violence that took place at party headquarters. The Nanguneri MLA also told media persons that the disciplinary proceedings against him were uncalled for and that he had applied to the party high command against this move.

Dhanushkodi Adityan told media persons that the MLA should not have brought people in seven buses while a meeting of party senior office bearers was taking place in the headquarters. The former union minister also said that the scuffle and fight for party positions was a clear indicator of the growing clout of the Congress party in the state.

Three Bengaluru
students booked for raising pro-Pakistan slogans

BENGALURU: Three students of an engineering college in Bengaluru have been booked for raising pro-Pakistan slogans in a cultural programme, police said on Saturday. The students, including a girl, had shouted slogans of 'Pakistan Zindabad' in a cultural fest organised on the premises of the college on Thursday.

After the video of three students raising pro-Pakistan slogans went viral on social media, the college management had taken action against them and lodged a complaint with the police.

The police have started questioning the students in this regard and taken their mobiles into custody. The students have been asked to attend an inquiry on Saturday.

The police have stated that the students are claiming that they raised Pakistan Zindabad slogans for fun in the cultural fest. The two students raised the slogans and another had made its video.

The students were slammed and questioned by their fellows and locals after the incident.

The students had apologised for their act and maintained that they did it only for fun.

Mamata Banerjee to attend PM-convened meeting in New Delhi on December 5

AGENCY
KOLKATA, NOV 19

West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee will attend a meeting convened by Prime Minister Narendra Modi on December 5 with chief ministers of all states to discuss the preparatory process for the country hosting the G20 Summit in 2023. According to state secretariat sources, the chief minister might use the opportunity of her visit to New Delhi to have a separate meeting with the Prime Minister on the occasion, where she can again raise the demands on the pending central dues to the West Bengal government. However, no confirmation has reached the state secretariat as yet on whether the separate meeting will happen or not.

Few months back, Mamata Banerjee went to New Delhi, had a separate meeting with her counterpart Arvind Kejriwal and requested him to clear the pending central dues under two heads namely state' share in goods & services tax and pending funds under Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA).

Although in the meantime, the Centre has released funds under centrally-sponsored schemes, the state's dues on account of MGNREGA are still pending. Recently, at a public meeting, the chief minister also aired his grievance in this matter and questioned whether she will now have to touch the feet of the Prime Minister for the pending

MP road accident turns out to be murder case

BHOPAL: An investigation into a road accident in Madhya Pradesh which killed a 50-year-old man revealed that it was a well-planned murder case and the perpetrator was the victim's son, police said on Saturday. The police received information on November 10 that the victim, Chhagan Pawar, was killed in the accident in Barwani district, some 350 km from the state capital Bhopal. As investigations continued, the police started to suspect that it wasn't just a road accident. After interrogating several people, including family members and relatives, for over a week after the incident, the police found evidence that it was in fact a murder. A CCTV footage also showed that the the victim's body was thrown on the roadside by his son Anil and three of his friends and trying to make it look like Pawar was killed in an accident, the police said. "During interrogation, Anil confessed that he along with his friends killed his father. He told that there was a dispute between them over money and properties. Three other accused who helped Anil to execute the crime were also arrested. They have been identified as Golu, Pintu and Karan," SP Barwani Deepak Shukla said on Saturday.

Satyendar Jain undergoing physiotherapy for spinal injury: Sisodia on Tihar video

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

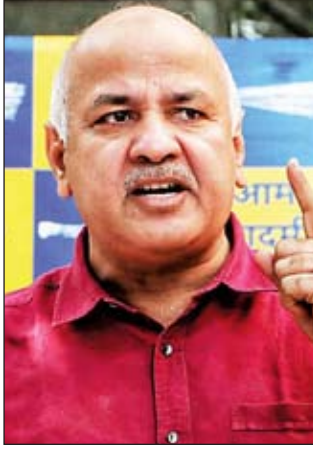

Soon after after CCTV footage of Delhi minister and AAP leader Satyendar Jain getting massage in Tihar Jail surfaced on social media on Saturday, Delhi Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia said that Jain was undergoing physiotherapy for a spinal injury.

Addressing mediapersons, Sisodia said: "Jain had sustained injury to his spine and that led to pinched nerve. He was also admitted to hospital."

"He (Jain) underwent two surgeries. The doctor had advised physiotherapy upon discharge and those videos show him getting physiotherapy," he said.

Sisodia further said that anyone can suffer injury and fall ill but only the BJP can make "cruel jokes" by leaking CCTV footage of an injured person's treatment.

Sisodia said, "The Prime Minister of a country may also fall sick. Even they may require treatment."

Lashing out at the BJP, Sisodia claimed that his colleague had been lodged in a false case and that the BJP was making fun of Jain's illness.

"They (BJP) are losing the MCD and Gujarat polls and that is why they are resorting to cheap theatrics. They should fight the MCD election in Delhi on issues," he said.

Weather System over the Bay of Bengal to bring heavy rain in TN

CHENNAI, NOV 19

After a lull for a few days, Chennai and other districts are expected to receive heavy to very heavy rainfall in the coming days from Monday onwards.

The heavy rain, according to the Indian Meteorological Department (IMD) will be due to a slow-moving weather system over the Bay of Bengal.

Weather department in the statement said that on November 21 and November 22, rainfall could be extremely heavy and possibilities are there for 20 cm rainfall on these days in some districts.

Heavy rains are also expected at one or two places in Chengalpattu, Cuddalore, and Villupuram districts on Sunday. The IMD also said that heavy rains are expected in Chennai, Myladuthurai, Cuddalore, Perambalur, and Chengalpattu districts of Tamil Nadu on November 21. The weather department also predicted that the rainfall area may change after Tuesday based on the movement of the weather system over the Bay of Bengal. National Disaster Response Force (NDRF) volunteers and State Disaster Response Force (SDRF) volunteers have sounded an alert on the heavy to extremely heavy rains expected on November 21 and November 22.

However, the IMD officials said that the low-intensity weather system may not reach the next stage of intensification like the deep depression.

Tihar's high-security walls offer gangsters safe havens to operate

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

One of the largest and highly secured prisons in South Asia, the Tihar Jail in Delhi has been in the news recently for all the wrong reasons. For years, criminals and gangs have operated from inside the secured walls, giving rise to questions on the involvement of jail officials and the security apparatus of the prison that houses some of the most dreaded criminals of India.

Tihar houses many gangsters. Sources have said that high-profile criminals like Lawrence Bishnoi and Neeraj Bawana have also set up their small gangs within the prison and they operate through other inmates who are not under the radar of the jail officials. "The gangsters have a huge network and small petty criminals who are lodged in the jail would like to associate with them for protection both within and outside the jail. Such gangsters give them protection and, in turn, the petty ones carry out their job," the sources claimed. Famed Punjabi singer Sidhu Moosewala was gunned down on May 29 this year close to his native village near Mansa in Punjab. Ten days after the murder, Bishnoi's involvement in the crime was openly announced by the police. On June 8, the special cell made the startling revelation that "Lawrence Bishnoi was the mastermind behind the singer's killing". But at the time of the murder, Bishnoi was lodged in Tihar. The question arises how can an inmate who is lodged in South Asia's largest prison complex, having a stringent security apparatus, carry out such meticulous planning from inside the prison? During the media briefing on June 8, Special Commissioner (special cell) H.S. Dhaliwal said that it was a brazen and well-planned murder having organised dimensions. Was Bishnoi getting any outside support inside the prison? Was he in contact with his gang members who are still out? And if yes, then how? These questions which remain unanswered, give rise to the suspicion that gangs can still operate freely even from behind bars.

In March this year, Shekhar Rana alias Sannata (29), an associate of jailed gangster Sunil, a.k.a Tillu Tajpuriya, was shot dead inside a car in Rohini. Police probe has revealed that the conspiracy to murder Rana was hatched from inside Tihar allegedly by one Rohit Moi, an old associate of slain gangster Jitendra Gogi.

Thevar initiative builds bridges between OPS, V.K. Sasikala

CHENNAI, NOV 19

The deposed leader of the AIADMK and former Chief Minister of Tamil Nadu, O. Panneerselvam (OPS) seems to be gradually aligning with V.K. Sasikala, former interim general secretary of the AIADMK and close aide of late Chief Minister J. Jayalalithaa.

Both Panneerselvam and Sasikala belong to the powerful Thevar community which has major inroads and political decision making powers in South Tamil Nadu. Thevars have been a mainstay for the AIADMK and the deposing of OPS by Edappadi K. Palaniswami and his associates from the party has not gone down well with the community. IANS had reported earlier that Sasikala and Panneerselvam were in the process of reaching an alignment at the behest of Thevar community.

In a recent interaction with the media at his Theni residence, OPS has said that he would meet T.T.V.

Dhinakaran of Amma Makkal Munnetra Kazhagam (AMMK) if he gets an opportunity. Dhinakaran is the nephew of V.K. Sasikala has been calling the shots from behind for a long.

Meanwhile, Dhinakaran had also told mediapersons that there was nothing wrong in meeting OPS as he was a reformed man from his earlier stand of attacking Sasikala. He also said that he and his party would in no way align with the EPS faction in the AIADMK. With the AIADMK openly stating that some allies of the ruling DMK would cross over to the AIADMK-led alliance, the announcements of OPS and Dhinakaran assume significance. OPS has also said that he would be appointing office-bearers of his group in all districts of the state and tour the entire Tamil Nadu. Dr Kamalakannan, Professor of Political Science at a reputed university of Tamil Nadu while speaking to IANS, said, "While EPS and his associates think that they have edged out OPS, the ground reality is something different which the Central BJP leadership knows for sure. In South Tamil Nadu, the Thevar community is a powerful force and OPS and Sasikala are the best faces of the community in the state. Thevar are a powerful community with deep social connectivity across South Tamil Nadu and the community has not taken the snubbing of OPS lightly and hence the alliance with Sasikala and OPS at its behest. This can be a game changer in Tamil Nadu politics and both the AIADMK factions are aiming for 2026 Assembly elections."

Mehrauli murder: Delhi Police collect victim's clothes from Chattarpur house

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

A Delhi Police team has collected Shradha Walkar's clothes from the rented house in Chattarpur she shared with her live-in partner Aftab Ameen Poonawalla, in an effort to find more clues to help in the ongoing probe into her brutal murder. The police claimed that the rented accommodation, the place of offence, is being closely inspected by the crime team and forensic experts. From the house where Aftab killed Shradha on May 18 and the chopped up her body into 35 pieces, multiple items have been seized already. "Following up on the disclosures by Aftab, various combing operations have been carried out at various places, including some forest areas, from where bones were recovered," a senior police official said. To ascertain that the bones belong to Shradha, the blood samples of her father and brother have been collected for a DNA analysis which will take 15 days.

"To find out if any incriminating evidence resides in the digital devices seized from the place of offence, the same have also been sent for forensic retrieval of data," said the official. He added that every word being uttered by Aftab during interrogation is being assessed upon the crucible of admissible evidentiary value. "Police teams are also carrying out search operations to recover the missing skeletal parts. Several inter-disciplinary teams are working round the clock for documenting, finding discrepancies and further refining the versions and the motives being put forth by the accused," said the official.

It's 'neither publicity nor a stunt', says
IAS officer after EC move

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

Abhishek Singh, the IAS officer who was barred from election duty for sharing his posting on Instagram, said that it was "neither publicity nor a stunt". Taking to Twitter on Friday night, he said: "I accept the Hon'ble ECI's decision with all humility. Though I believe there's nothing wrong in this post. A public servant, in a car bought by public's money, reporting for public duty, with public officials, communicating it to the public. It is neither publicity nor a stunt!" His remarks came hours after the Election Commission said that it removed Singh from election duty after he shared his posting as General Observer on the social media platform. "Now, it has come to the notice of the Commission that Sh. Abhishek Singh, IAS (UP:2011) has used social media platform 'Instagram' for sharing his posting/joining as General Observer and used his official position as a publicity stunt," the EC said in its order. "Abhishek Singh, is, therefore, directed to leave the constituency immediately, latest by today i.e. 18.11.2022 and report to his Nodal Officer in the parent cadre. Further, all government facilities provided to the officer to facilitate the discharge of his observer duties shall be withdrawn accordingly by the District administration." Singh was appointed as General Observer for Assembly Constituency 49-Bapunagar and 56-Asarwa of Gujarat's Ahmedabad district.

KOLKATA, NOV 19

Role of certain sub-inspectors of school education in West Bengal are currently under the scanner of the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) sleuths probing the multi-crore teachers' recruitment scam in the state. As many as 15 such sub-inspectors of school education have been summoned at the office of CBI's anti-corruption wing of the agency at Nizam Palace in central Kolkata on November 21. CBI sources said that their sleuths are adopting a district-wise approach on this count and in the first stage all the 15 sub-inspectors who have been summoned are from Murshidabad district. Each sub-inspector was in charge of one block in that district. In due course sub-inspectors who are in-charge of blocks in other districts will also be summoned periodically by the central agency sleuths. "Till now we had been focusing on the corruption on this count by the top rung in the state's school education system like ministers, politicians and top-officials of the different affiliate bodies of the state education department. But surely a scam of such magnitude could never have been possible unless there had been some involvement of the lower rung staff in the system. Now in order to crack the corruption in the lower we have started the process by summoning the sub-inspectors," said a CBI official. Recently, Justice Abhijit Gangopadhyay, who is virtually monitoring the scam investigation outcome almost on a daily basis, expressed displeasure over the slow pace of probe in the matter. However, at the same time, he said that he is still pinning hopes on a "CBI-magic" on this count. Recently, Justice Gangopadhyay, also reconstituted and expanded the special investigation team (SIT) of CBI constituted for that purpose, by replacing two members with four.

France voices support for India, Germany, Brazil, Japan as permanent UNSC members

UNITED NATIONS, NOV 19

France has reaffirmed its support for India, Germany, Brazil and Japan as permanent members in an expanded UN Security Council, underlining the need to take into account the emergence of new powers willing and able to assume the responsibility of a permanent presence in the powerful world body.

"France's position is constant and well known. We want the Council to be more representative of today's world, in a way that further strengthens its authority and effectiveness," Deputy Permanent Representative of France to the UN Nathalie Broadhurst said on Friday. She was addressing the UN General Assembly plenary meeting on the 'Question of equitable representation on and increase in the membership of the Security Council and other matters related to the Security Council'.

"We must indeed take into account the emergence of new powers that are willing and able to assume the responsibility of a permanent presence in the Security Council," Broadhurst said. Broadhurst said that to preserve its executive and operational nature, an enlarged Council could have up to 25 members.

"France supports the candidacy of Germany, Brazil, India and Japan as permanent members. We would also like to see a stronger presence of African countries, including among the permanent members.

The remaining seats should be allocated in order to achieve equitable geographical representation," she said.

She said the question of the veto is "eminently sensitive", and it is up to the states requesting the granting of a permanent seat to determine themselves.

"In this reflection, the objective must remain twofold: on the one hand, to consolidate the legitimacy of the Security Council; on the other hand, to strengthen its capacity to fully assume its responsibilities in the maintenance of international peace and security," she said.

Zomato plans to lay off 3 pc of its workforce

BENGALURU: Online food delivery platform Zomato on Saturday said it is planning to lay off nearly 3 per cent of its workforce on account of cost-cutting efforts and to turn profitable. The decision comes after many tech giants and social media sites announced layoffs. Zomato stated that layoffs will be based on regular performance. "There has been a regular performance based churn of under 3 per cent of our workforce, there's nothing more to it," said a Zomato spokesperson.

The company currently has nearly 3,800 employees. In May 2020, Zomato laid off about 520 of its employees, or 13 per cent of its staff, in response to a slump in business following the Covid pandemic. Meanwhile, Zomato's co-founder Mohit Gupta quit the organisation on Friday. Moreover, the food delivery platform announced earlier this week that Rahul Ganjoo had ended his 5-year tenure as Head of New Initiatives.

In a first, India uses 'she', 'her' to refer to all genders in draft law

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

In a first in the legislative history of India, pronouns such as 'her' and 'she' have been used to denote all genders in a draft law.

The draft Digital Personal Protection Bill, 2022, which has been put up for public consultation on Friday, finds mention of the two pronouns.

"With the philosophy Prime Minister Narendra Modi's government works, we have attempted to use the word 'she' and 'her' in the entire Bill instead of 'him' and 'his'. This is an innovative thing attempted in the bill," Union Minister for Railways, Communications, Electronics and Information Technology Ashwini Vaishnaw said on Friday. The focus of the Bill is to protect internet users from online harm and create a safe and trusted digital ecosystem as India is a digital economy powerhouse today. For the record, three months after the withdrawal of the Digital Personal Data Protection Bill from the lower house of the Parliament, the central government today came up with a new draft Bill seeking views from the public. The central government during the recent Monsoon session of Parliament withdrew the Bill from the Lok Sabha several months after it was introduced.

Vaishnaw had earlier said that the Bill was withdrawn because the Joint Parliamentary Committee recommended 81 amendments in a bill of 99 sections. "Above that it made 12 major recommendations. Therefore, the bill has been withdrawn and a new bill will be presented for public consultation," he had said. The reintroduced draft Digital Personal Data Protection Bill, 2022, has proposed six types of penalties on non-companies to companies. To prevent a personal data breach, a penalty of up to Rs 250 crore is being proposed in the draft bill which has been put out for public comments earlier today. Besides, failure to notify the Board and affected Data Principals in the event of a personal data breach and non-fulfilment of additional obligations in relation to Children may attract Rs penalty up to Rs 200 crore.

Counter case lodged against AMU student injured during cricket match violence

ALIGARH (UP), NOV 19

A counter case has been registered against an Aligarh Muslim University student who suffered serious injuries after allegedly being hit on the head earlier this week when a tiff during a cricket match turned violent, a police official said on Saturday.

Sajid Husain, the victim, and Shobhit Singh—who allegedly hit him on the head with a cricket bat—are second-year students of the varsity's Zakir Husain College of Engineering and Technology, spokesperson Omar Peerzada had earlier said.

Husain, a native of Jammu and Kashmir, was rushed to Jawaharlal Nehru Medical College in an unconscious state, he said.

Doctors at Jawaharlal Nehru Medical College have described the condition of Husain, who suffered serious head injuries, as "stable". The police action follows a report by Singh's father. Singh was arrested on Wednesday and is currently lodged in the district jail. Circle Officer (Civil Lines) Shwetab Pandey on Saturday said based on CCTV footage from the varsity hostel, a case was registered against Husain under sections 323 (punishment for voluntarily causing hurt) and 506 (Punishment for criminal intimidation) of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) on Friday at Civil Lines police station. On Friday, BJP MLC Manvendra Pratap Singh, who hadendra senior police officials, asserted that "one-sided action" in the case was not acceptable. Pushpendra Pachuri, regional joint convenor of the BJP's teachers' cell, demanded that both sides should be held accountable. The varsity authorities have also constituted a three-member fact-finding committee to probe into the incident. The committee had been asked to submit its report within five days. Peerzada said immediately after Wednesday's clash, Singh was escorted from the hostel and handed over to the police. He has been suspended and barred from the varsity campus pending further inquiry, he said. A case has been registered against him under Section 307 (attempt to murder) of the IPC at Civil Lines police station, officials had said.

UGC chief's poser to teachers: Are you ready for NEP reforms

NEW DELHI, NOV 19

UGC chief M Jagadesh Kumar has said teachers in the Indian higher education system need to change their attitudes for National Education Policy 2020 reforms to be implemented.

Addressing "Gyanotsav", an event on the challenges for NEP Implementation, being organised in the capital by RSS affiliate Shiksha Sanskriti Uththan Nyas, Kumar said most teachers came from a system that lacked flexibility and that was a challenge.

Noting that implementing the NEP 2020 was like scaling Mount Everest which required preparation and mental conditioning, Kumar said, "We need to bring about a change in our attitudes to implement the NEP. There are 15 lakh teachers in our higher education system. Are they prepared to implement the reforms we are suggesting in NEP 2020?"

Kumar went on to say that he saw a challenge on the front of teachers.

"Most of the teachers have come from a system where there is a lack of flexibility. They come from a system where working in teams is unheard of, communicating with each other is unheard of. We work as individuals in silos and that is what we need to break," the UGC chief said, urging teachers to prepare students to challenge authority, be it their own or of textbooks or established theorems.

That is the only way to create new knowledge, he said at the event which was also addressed by Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan and MoS for Electronics Chandrashekhar. Kumar said there were 300 million students in the 15 to 25 year age group and 40 million were enrolled in higher educational institutions. "Students want to be learners. How do we stand up to their aspirations? We need to look into ourselves. I urge teachers and academicians to look into our inner capabilities and where we lack to prepare ourselves to implement NEP 2020," he said. Kumar added that the UGC was working very seriously to create an Indian Digital University to reach students who cannot come to physical institutions to study. He further asked all institution heads to draw a roadmap for NEP implementation rather than "await UGC guidelines".

Take away the powers of deciding Anti Defection Law from the Speakers : Jain

CHANDIGARH: Sh. Satya Pal Jain, Additional Solicitor General of India, Ex-MP and a Member of the Panjab University Syndicate has said that the time has come when the 10th scheduled of the Constitution of India (Anti Defection Law) should be amended and power to decide the disqualification petition should be taken away from the Speakers of Vidhan Sabha and given to some independent and neutral agency like Election Commission of India etc etc.

He also said that the time has come when in addition to Parliament and State Vidhan Sabha this law should be made applicable to the Municipal Corporations, Municipal Committees, Zila Parishad, Panchayat Samiti etc etc.

Jain was speaking at a webinar organized by Bhartiya Vidyapeeth, New Delhi on the topic of Anti Defection Law.

Jain said that the power of deciding disqualification petitions were given to the Speaker with a view that he will quickly decide those petitions as per the constitutional mandate but experience shows that most of the Speakers, decide the petitions keeping in view the interest of their Political Party rather than the Constitution of India. He said that if it suits their Political Party, they decide such petitions within few days but if it does not suit their Political Party the Speaker keep the petition pending for years together. Sh. Jain said that it should also be decided by amending the Anti Defection Law that the Competent Authority will decide the petition within three to four months.

Jain said that now the Elections to the Municipal Corporations etc are also held on the symbol of the political parties and people change their party after the election for their personal games. Therefore, time has come when the Anti Defection Law should also be made applicable to the Municipal Corporations, Municipal Committees etc etc.

A large number of teachers, students of the Bhartiya Vidyapeeth as well as other institutions participated in the regular.
