JAKARTA, NOV 21

At least 56 people died in an earthquake that hit Indonesia's main island Java on Monday, Channel News Asia reported citing an Indonesian government official.

In the morning, a shallow 5.4 magnitude earthquake hits Indonesia's western province of West Java, according to the United States Geological Survey (USGS).

The earthquake's epicentre was on land in Cianjur, about 75km southeast of Jakarta, and at a depth of 10km.

According to CNA citing several reports, stated that around 700 people were injured in the West Java town.

"The latest data showed that 46 people were killed. Victims kept coming from many areas. Around 700 people were injured," Herman Suherman, the head of the administration in Cianjur, told broadcaster Kompas TV.

He also earlier told broadcaster Metro TV that many of the injured "had fractures from being trapped by the ruins of buildings".

A 5.6- magnitude earthquake rattled the Indonesian capital of Jakarta for several seconds on Monday, the country's weather and geophysics agency (BMKG) said, adding there was no potential for a tsunami.

The epicentre was determined to be at 6.840 degrees south latitude and 107.107 degrees east longitude. Java's largest city is the national capital of Jakarta.

Java is a volcano-dotted island that lies between Sumatra and Bali and is situated at the geographic and economic centre of Indonesia.

Herman Suherman, the head of administration in Cianjur town, told local media at least 46 people had been killed, the BBC reported.

"Victims kept coming from many areas. Around 700 people were injured," he told Kompas TV.

Videos on social media showed the destruction to houses and shops.

SC says Gujarat Morbi Bride collapse incident was an "enormous tragedy"

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, NOV 21

The Supreme Court on Monday said that the Morbi Bride collapse incident which claimed over 140 lives was an "enormous tragedy" and asked the Gujarat High Court which is already hearing a suo motu case on the same issue, to hold periodical hearings.

"It is an enormous tragedy and this will require weekly monitoring to see the award of contract, credential of the party awarded the contract, attribution of responsibility for those guilty," observed a bench of Chief Justice DY Chandrachud and Justice Hima Kohli.

The apex court noted that a division bench headed by the Gujarat High Court Chief Justice has already taken a suo motu note of the incident and has passed three orders, it will not hear the petitions as of now.

It asked petitioners to approach the High Court with their pleas seeking an independent probe and award of dignified compensation to those who lost their family members.

The British-era bridge on the Machchhu river in Morbi collapsed on October 30 leaving over 140 dead including 47 children.

The top court was hearing a plea filed by the person who lost his two relatives in the incident, seeking a CBI probe, award of dignified compensation to those who lost their family members, the need to fix responsibility against officials of the Nagar Palika and that the agency entrusted to maintain the bridge is held accountable. It was also hearing a PIL seeking direction to appoint a judicial commission under the supervision of a retired top court judge to initiate a probe on the Morbi Bridge collapse incident. During the hearing, the bench said the Gujarat High Court had already taken suo motu cognisance of the Morbi bridge collapse on October 30 hence it wouldn't hear the case. It said the High Court would "undoubtedly be seized of ensuring a regulatory mechanism so that such incidents do not recur." "We are of the view that the High Court would also bring to bear its time and attention on other aspects of the matter which have been highlighted above while recording the submissions of the learned counsel of the petitioner," the bench stated in its order.

Benefits of pranayama & poses you can perform at home

Breathing is a crucial part of living, and it's essential that you pay full attention to your breathing patterns now more than ever. Many factors such as physical habits, pollution, stress, and tensions affect the breathing pattern. Unconsciously, you compromise the flow of breath and, in turn, impact the energy flow in the body. Worried? Don't be! You can easily keep a check on your breathing by practicing pranayama. All About Pranayama

In simple words, pranayama means to control and regulate your breathing. The word comes from two Sanskrit words, prana, which means vital energy of life and yama, meaning to control. It connects the body to the mind. You can practice these breathing exercises or practice them along with yoga asanas and meditation. Not only does it help in maintaining the oxygen level in the body and eliminating toxins from the body, regularly practising the form has plenty of physiological and psychological benefits too!

Pranayama is always performed in three phases; Purak (inhalation), kumbhak (retention), and rechak (exhalation). The duration of the phases may differ with various forms.

Boons of Pranayama Yoga is not just bound to a few asanas that benefit the body, it also helps enhance the overall health of the body and mind. And, pranayama, an integral part of yoga, helps clear any obstructions in our body to let the breath or life energy flow properly. Practising these exercises regularly increases your oxygen intake capacity, which helps in reducing stress, and getting good sleep. This also enables you to concentrate better. The various pranayamas strengthen the lungs and enhance the performance of the brain.

Pranayamas To Practice
In yoga, the easiest pranayama is anulom vilom.

It is simply inhaling through one nostril and exhaling through the other while you are in a meditating position. And, if the idea of what your breathing sounds like is intriguing to you, then we suggest you try out bhrumari pranayama, also referred to as humming bee due to the vibrations and humming created by the chanting of om. This exercise helps calm the body and the mind.

On the other hand, if you want to increase your body heat, start practising kapalbhati. Also known as the breath of fire, kapalbhati's primary purpose is to generate heat in the body and boost the vibrational life energy by exhaling forcefully. Slightly contrasting to kapalbhati is bhastrika pranayama. It is also called bellows of breath. The significant difference is that, in bhastrika, both inhaling and exhaling are forceful. These are some of the easiest, effective, and most common breathing exercises in yoga.

Spirometry Key to Addressing the Challenge of COPD Under-diagnosis in the Country

Jalandhar -: World COPD (Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease) Day is observed in November, to raise awareness about this chronic lung condition which is the 2nd leading cause of death and accounts for approximately 9.5% of the total deaths in India.1. An umbrella term for a group of chronic inflammatory lung disorders, COPD is characterized by obstructed airflow and damage to the lungs. The onset of COPD is gradual, leading to patients failing to recognise their condition and not seeking timely medical intervention. Early diagnosis of COPD has proven to be critical in addressing the COPD burden and can result in significantly improved outcomes.

Highlighting the importance of a spirometry test, Dr. H.S. Dhingra, Chest Specialist, Jalandhar said, "Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) is characterised by persistent respiratory symptoms and lung airflow limitations. Given the progressive nature of COPD, early symptoms are often ignored by most patients until more severe late-stage symptoms occur. Often in clinical practices, patient history and a clinical examination are relied upon to diagnose COPD, making it easy to miss the early warning signs of the disease. Standardising the diagnosis by use of a spirometer test as the first stage of intervention for patients experiencing early-stage symptoms is critical to ensure early diagnosis and treatment.

ACC committed to address water scarcity in surrounding villages of Gagal

BARMANA: ACC Limited, the cement and building materials company of Adani Cement and part of the Adani Group, focusses on tackling water scarcity in Barmana Gram Panchayat and Biriyahi village which is part of Jamthal Gram Panchayat and adjoining with mining area. ACC has always understood the underlying concerns about the challenges of drinking water in the region and has been providing water to the community since its inception. Initially the scheme was designed for a smaller population. However, with the increasing population over time, there is a continuous need to upscale the scheme and efforts to meet the demand. Earlier in Barmana Panchayat, when the population was merely 500, there were common taps from where people used to fetch water. Over the years due to the changes in the lifestyle and increase in population and government's mandate to provide drinking water at the doorstep, people's aspirations and demands have increased. Earlier water was directly supplied to villages from common storage of water lifted from River Sutlej through pipelines. However, for efficient water management system, ACC in collaboration with local Panchayat has constructed 7 overhead tanks having an approximate capacity of 30-40 Kilo litres each across 5 hamlets of the panchayat. The supply of water through these storage tanks are now managed by the community itself and ACC through its efficient system is able to provide approximately 120 litres of water per person per day. Similarly, for Biriyahi village, ACC in discussion with the community fulfilled the increasing demand of drinking water by laying additional pipelines and necessary installations. In October, the community collectively cleared the area and company laid down 1000 metres of pipes to supply water for approx. 150 people. People in the community are inclined to develop nutrition gardens to fulfil their household nutrition need. ACC is currently providing drinking water to 6000+ population in Barmana and Biriyahi. The water supply is not only limited to households but also benefits schools, temples, banks, hospitals and truck union office (wherein daily footfall is more than 1500 people) and to approximately 200 commercial establishments.
