SC voices anguish over Centre's delay in judges' appointments

AGENCY NEW DELHI, NOV 28

The Supreme Court on Monday expressed anguish over the delay by the Centre in clearing the names recommended by the Collegium for appointment as judges in the higher judiciary, saying it "effectively frustrates" the method of appointment.

A bench of Justices S K Kaul and A S Oka said a three-judge bench of the apex court had laid down the timelines for the appointment process to be completed. Those deadlines have to be adhered to, it said.

Justice Kaul observed it appears the government is unhappy with the fact that the National Judicial Appointments Commission (NJÂC) Act did not pass the muster, but that cannot be a reason to not to comply with the law of the land. The Supreme Court in its wisdom, through a court ruling, created collegium, he said noting that before 1991 all judges were appointed by the government. Speaking at the Times Now Summit here, the minister said the Constitution of India is a "religious document' for everyone, especially the gov-ernment. "Anything which is alien to the Constitution merely because of the decision taken by the courts or some judges, how do you expect that the decision will be backed by the country, he asked. Rijiju said the collegium system is alien to our Constitution. "You tell me under which provision the collegium system has been prescribed," he asked. He explained that once the Supreme Court or a high court collegium sends recommendation, the government has to do due diligence. Rijiju was responding to a question on gov-ernment "sitting" on various Supreme Court collegium recommendations at a time when cases are piling up in courts. BJP people will now lure you with money, but don't get trapped: Mann

SHASHI PAL JAIN CHANDIGARH, NOV 28

Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann on Monday stressed that a wave of change is sweeping across Gujarat. Youth-farmers, women and working class are all very angry with the BJP government and this time people of all classes are seeking change in Gujarat. Mann said that this time the people of Gujarat want a new engine government of the Aam Aadmi Party, not the double engine government of the BJP. Both the engines of BJP are now old. The filth of corruption and hooliganism has filled the engine of the BJP.

On Monday, Bhagwant Mann had reached Vadodara for election campaign. Here he held road shows in favor of AAP candidates in various areas of Balasinor, Lunawada and Dakor and appealed to the people to form the Aam Aadmi Party government. Addressing a huge crowd of people during the roadshow, Mann said that only two days are left for the election. Now the people of BJP will lure you with the greed of money, but this time do not get trapped in their affair. This time we have to vote for the better future of our children. Mann said that common people are grinding in the mill of BJP's inflation and unemployment. People did not have good options earlier, so they had to face the misrule of BJP for 27 consecutive years. This time common people have got a good alternative in the form of Aam Aadmi Party. That's why this time people of all classes want to get rid of BJP. Mann appreciated the enthusiasm of the youth and said that the name of this generation will be written in the history of Gujarat. Everywhere the vouth have always carried out a coup of power. This time the youth of Gujarat will oust the BJP from power and free the people from corruption, inflation, unemployment and misrule.

Dogs menace major problem in Hamirpur

HAMIRPUR, NOV 28

Dogs menace in all eleven wards of the town and its adjoining areas has created a big problem for the people and they are finding it difficult how to get rid of it.

Right from early morning till late at night, hundreds of dogs can be seen roaming in all parts of the town in groups and endangering the lives of people, especially children.

A recent incident in which a two and half year female child was mauled by stray dogs has invited the attention of the authorities but no action against the erring animals so far.

Notably, there is not a single ward in the city where people have not kept pet dogs, but the city council does not even have a record of how many pets and how many stray dogs are there in the city.

People are finding it difficult to take a walk in the city in the morning and evening due to stray dogs. The residents of the city are living in the shadow of terror due to the dogs roaming in herds on the road.

The residents of the city have been demanding the registration of pet dogs from the city council and strict action against stray dogs for many years, but the problem remains as it was earlier.

At the same time, action against stray dogs should also be implemented in collaboration with the Animal Husbandry Department.

On the other hand, Akshit Gupta, EO of Nagar Parishad Hamirpur, said that there is no system for the registration of pet dogs in the Nagar Parishad yet, but action will be taken on this issue in the Nagar Parishad meeting after December 8th. A campaign will be launched for the sterilization of stray dogs in collaboration with the Animal Husbandry Department, he added.

A high level technical team of Archaeological Survey of India(ASI) along with the high court appointed amicus curiae inspected the damaged portion of Nata mandop of Sri Jagannath temple on Sunday.

Sources said although the damages came to light before 2018 no repair was conducted by the ASI which is in charge of conservation of the shrine.

The Orissa High Court while hearing a plea over ASI neglect to repair the Sri Jagannath temple had appointed N K Mohanty as amicus curiae who

Many members of Team Deepender Hooda win ZP poll

SHIV KUMAR SHARMA KARNAL, NOV 28

District Congress Committee Convenor Tarlochan Singh has said that the BJP-backed candidates have suffered a crushing defeat in the Zilla Parishad elections. Respecting the public opinion, the BJP should give the right to elect its chairman to the members of the Zilla Parishad, avoiding the politics of manipulation. Apart from this, the mandate has also been received against the BJP in the block committees. He said that out of 22 members of Zilla Parishad, most of the members of Team Dipendra have been elected. Apart from this, the candidates supported by Congress have also won. The Congress has got a record victory in the Zilla Parishad elections. Congress supported candidates won while the BJP supported candidates suffered a crushing defeat. It is clear from this that people's dissatisfaction with the BJP government is intensifying and people's support for the Congress is increasing. The victory of the Congress is certain in the coming assembly elections and the Congress government will be formed. He said that Rahul Gandhi's Bharat Jodo Yatra is getting public support across the country. The Congress government will be formed under the leadership of Rahul Gandhi at the centre. He said that the way former Chief Minister Bhupinder Singh Hooda, Member of Parliament Deepender Singh Hooda, Congress President Udai Bhan Singh are engaged in strengthening the Congress organisation across the state, its results will be visible in the coming times. As soon as the Congress government is formed in the state, people will get easy and accessible justice. The way the performance of the Congress in the Zilla Parishad elections has been better, it seems that the formation of the Congress government in the coming assembly elections is certain.

hite-collar or high-skilled emigration from India is not new. As per the World Migration V V Report 2020, India is the country of origin of the largest number of international migrants, with 17.5 million Indians living abroad, followed by Mexico and China. But what is perhaps new and interesting is that Indians are now choosing new countries to immigrate to. While the top destination is still the United States of America, the European Union with its blue card has emerged as a formidable competitor.

Interestingly, Germany has so far welcomed the most number of white collar immigrants from a third country to live and work there as blue card holders and Indian migrants top the chart. Data released by Institut der deutschen Wirtschaf show that between 2010 and 2020, the total number of Indians in Germany (57.6% of whom are white-collar immigrants) has increased from 48,000 to 1,51,000. The number of Indian students joining German universities has gone up in the last two years from 25,149 to 33,753. It is thus safe to say that the blue card is gaining popularity among Indians. It would not be ambitious to project that this number will continue to grow given the current unemployment rate in India and the labour shortages in Germany.

There are several reasons behind the popularity of the blue card. It not only offers work permits to potential employees but also to their spouses. The immigration pathway is less bureaucratic as well; for instance, migrants are able to move as a family (unlike in other cases where they have to apply for a family reunion visa which takes months to process). This framework has been popular among Indians in their mid-30s, who move with small children and partners with careers. The blue card is thus highly in demand among Indians choosing to emigrate to Germany for sophisticated labour laws, equality in gender relations, and less political polarization affecting everyday lives. In a post-pandemic global order, immigrants are increasingly interested in long term opportunities rather than short-term gains, and family matters continue to weigh as much as employment. In the light of this, Germany has emerged as a popular destination for Indians because of the work-life balance. It is also interesting to witness that Indian students are choosing Germany, often over other popular education destinations. This is because the tuition fees at German universities are nominal in comparison to, say, the US. In the last 10 years, Germany has been more open to English language programmes at university levels. But the Indian students emigrating to Germany for higher education are future blue card holders akistan's economy continues to deteriorate due to structural imbalances as several decisions regarding the economic policies like taxes, subsidies etc in the South Asian country have remained unaddressed over time, Dr Sakariya Kareem said while writing for Asian Lite.

Islamabad's foreign exchange crisis has worsened as reserves have been depleted to a critical low of USD 8 bil-lion, compared to over USD 20 billion in August 2021, un-dermining the country's ability to make international payments. Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) fell by 52 per cent in the first four months of the current fiscal year FY23, showing the country's dismal economic health. A sustained drop in remittances is adding to Pakistan's currency woes. Remittances totalled USD 9.9 billion in July-October 2022, down 8.6 per cent from USD 10.827 billion in the same period last year. If the current trend continues, over-all remittances in FY23, which ends in June, are expected to be close to USD 30 billion, down from USD 31 billion in FY 2022, Asian Lite reported.

Meanwhile, Pakistan's textile exports have fallen to a 17-month low since May 2021, owing to a global econom-ic slowdown in textile and clothing demand in Europe, the United Kingdom, and the United States, as a result of elevated price inflation, rising energy expenditure, and surging credit costs in the West.

Pak export earnings reached a historic high of USD 19.35 billion last year. However, the export outlook for this year remains bleak due to the foreign reserve crisis. Pakistan's textile exports may fall by USD 3 billion, according to Asian Lite. Although the overall trade deficit of Pakistan shrank to USD 10.8 billion in the first four months of FY 2023 as compared to the deficit of USD 13.75 billion in the same period of the previous fiscal year, there is no reason for complacency as it is primarily due to decline in imports which is a sign of economic slowdown.

Despite Pakistan's finance minister Ishaq Dar's repeated assurances for Sukuk payment, the international market is not willing to trust the assurances as the nation's economy struggles to avoid default by borrowing more from the markets, donors, commercial banks and friendly nations.

The talks between IMF and Pakistan government due to begin in early November have been postponed until the third week of November, Dawn reported. The talks will resume after Pakistan works on its commitment to adjust sales tax on petroleum products and takes other measures needed under a loan agreement revived earlier this year.

Officials sources, who spoke to Dawn, revealed that the talks between IMF and Pakistan were rescheduled after World Bank's report on flood damages in Pakistan which was released in October. Pakistan is due to pay USD 1 billion on December 5 against the maturity of five-year Sukuk, or Islamic bonds. Despite Pakistan's finance minister Ishaq Dar's repeated assurances for Sukuk payment, the international market is not willing to trust the assurances as the nation's economy struggles to avoid default by borrowing more from the markets, donors, commercial banks and friendly nations. The financial sector has stated that the Fund was calling for new taxes to increase liquidity and avoid fiscal deficit expansion. The government needs at least Rs 800 billion, which as per the report could be achieved through new taxes which could be difficult for the government amid the economic situation and political turmoil. Pakistan has been gripped by political turmoil since Imran Khan was removed from office through a vote of confidence in April. Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf Chief Imran Khan accused the United States of planning his ouster.

'The 10.6 million litres of diesel donation by #China will be provided free of cost to:1232,749 farmers for harvesting 342,266 hectares paddy fields across in Maha season 2022/23 (20L/hectare). 2all the 3,796 fishing vessels below 40 feet in (1,000L/vessel)," the Chinese Embassy in Sri Lanka tweeted.

As per a recent report by Geo-Politik, China has been extensively taking interest in Sri Lanka as the report revealed that the communist nation is investing in the seacucumber farms in Sri Lanka, that has the capability of boosting exercise performance and have anti-fatigue effects.

China also wants to facilitate the export of the species from Sri Lanka to China. However, there have been reports of protests by the local farmers saying that these aquaculture projects are likely to have an adverse impact on their livelihood, the local marine ecology and the land, reported Geo-politik.

The world knows that there are no bounds to Chinese ambitions, but their pursuit of becoming the most powerful in the world is likely to cause tremendous harm to vulnerable countries such as Sri Lanka.

TikTok encourages toxic diet culture among teens: Research

The most popular TikTok content related to food, nutrition, and weight perpetuates a harmful diet culture among teens and young adults, according to new research from the University of Vermont, and expert voices are largely absent from the conversation.

The study, which was just published in PLOS One, found that Tik-Tok is largely dominated by weightnormative messaging or the notion that a person's weight is the most significant indicator of their health. The most popular videos on TikTok glorify weight loss and present food as a means of achieving health and thinness

The findings are particularly alarming in light of prior research showing a link between social media use and disordered eating and negative body image in adolescents and young adults.

"Each day, millions of teens and young adults are being fed content on TikTok that paints a very unrealistic and inaccurate picture of food, nutrition and health," said senior researcher Lizzy Pope, associate professor and director of the Didactic Program in Dietetics at UVM. "Getting stuck in weight loss TikTok can UVM. The Nutrition and Food Scibe a really tough environment, especially for the main users of the platform, which are young people." The study is the first to look at TikTok content on a scale related to nutrition and body image. The conclusions are based on a thorough analysis of the top 100 videos from 10 trending hashtags for nutrition, food, and weight, which were then coded for major themes. When the study started in 2020, each of the 10 hashtags had more than a billion views; the hashtags chosen have in-creased significantly as TikTok's user base has grown.

"We were continuously surprised by how prevalent the topic of weight was on TikTok. The fact that billions of people were viewing content about weight on the internet says a lot about the role diet culture plays in our society," said co-author Marisa Minadeo '21, who conducted the research as part of her undergraduate thesis at ences Department at UVM has moved away from a weight-normative mindset in recent years and adopted a weight-inclusive approach to dietetics instruction. The method rejects the notion that there is a "normal" weight that is achievable or realistic for everyone and instead focuses on using non-weight markers of health and well-being to assess a person's health. Pope claims that if society upholds weight normativity, fat bias will continue to exist.

"Just like people are different heights, we all have different weights," said Pope. "Weight-inclu-sive nutrition is really the only just way to look at humanity.'

As a more comprehensive method of assessing someone's health, weight-inclusive nutrition is growing in popularity. Minadeo, a UVM health and society major, and her advisor Pope were curious to learn more about the function of TikTok as a resource for knowledge about nutrition and healthy eating habits. They were shocked to learn that TikTok creators who were thought to be influential in the academic nutrition space weren't having much of an impact on the overall nutrition content landscape.

Most of the content analyzed in the study was produced by white, female adolescents and young adults. The researchers defined expert voices as people who self-identified with credentials like registered dietitians, doctors, or certified trainers. Very few creators met these criteria.

"We have to help young people develop critical thinking skills and their own body image outside of social media," said Pope. "But what we really need is a radical rethinking of how we relate to our bodies, to food and to health. This is truly about changing the systems around us so that people can live productive, happy and healthy lives," said Pope.

A five wicket haul by Neel helps UT boys to bounce back against Bengal CHANDIGARH: The Cooch Behar Trophy match being played between Chandigarh and Bengal at the Eden Gardens, Kolkatta turns into an exciting phase as Chandigarh needed 135 runs to win with six wickets in hand. In reply to Bengal's 256 runs in the first innings, Chandigarh managed 224 runs. Thereafter a five wicket haul by Captain Neel Dhaliwal to bounced back in the match to bundle out host for mere 156 and Chandigarh got a target of 189 runs.

Earlier in the day, Chandigarh could add only 21 runs to their overnight score and were all out for 224 runs. Paras (87) emerged as the top scorer. This gave Bengal a lead of 32 runs. Thereafter, Bengal got off to a miserable start against the lethal bowling attack led by skipper Neel Dhaliwal (5/36) as Bengal was reduced to 156. Milind Mondal scored 30 runs while Sukhmeet Singh added 28 runs. Aryan Duggal (2/30) and Paras (2/36) took two wickets each.

Chasing down the target of 189, Chandigarh got off to a disappointing start as opener Arnav Bansal (0) and Nikhil (1) dismissed cheaply. Ishan Gaba and Aarush Bhandari shared a 37-run partnership for the third wicket. Later, Bengal bowlers made a comeback in the final session of the day. Chandigarh struggled with the loss of set batters - Ishan Gaba (17) and Ayush Bhandari (27) with 52 for four on the board. Visitors were 54 for the loss of four wickets before the stumps

Canada clinch Davis Cup Finals crown

AGENCY MALAGA (SPAIN), NOV 28

Felix Auger-Aliassime fired Canada to its first Davis Cup Finals title on Sunday when he defeated Alex de Minaur 6-3, 6-4 to give his nation an unassailable 2-0 lead against Australia.

Auger-Aliassime won his seventh and eighth sets of the Davis Cup by Rakuten Final 8 2022 to add to those won by Denis Shapovalov earlier on Sunday, giving Canada an unassailable 2-0 lead against Australia.

It was more testing than the 6-3, 6-4 scoreline against Alex de Minaur suggests, and Auger-Aliassime had to fight off eight break points to get over the line.

The emotions are tough to describe," said Auger-Alias-sime. "Denis and I grew up together, dreaming of these types of stage, dreaming of winning the Davis Cup. It's a great mo-ment for myself and for the country.

Earlier, Shapovalov came out firing from the very first ball against Thanasi Kokkinakis to establish a 4-0 lead, and ran out a 6-2, 6-4 winner.

Shapovalov was under-standably thrilled. "From when we were juniors, watching Vasek [Pospisil], Milos Raonic and Daniel Nestor play Davis Cup, we wanted to do the same, and maybe even to win it one

"It was tough to lose in 2019, it was an empty feeling and we wanted it badly this time," he said. The World No. 6, Auger-Aliassime, won his singles and doubles match to secure Canada a place in the final and he backed that up with a dominant display against de Minaur. Auger-Aliassime fired 22 winners and held his nerve at crucial moments, saving all eight break points he faced to triumph after one hour and 42 minutes

It is the first time Canada has won the Davis Cup Finals after it reached the championship match for the first time in 2019. On that occasion, Auger-Aliassime and Shapovalov were beaten by Roberto Bautista Agut and Rafael Nadal, respectively, to fall agonisingly short of winning a first Davis Cup crown for their country.

In a dream week, Canada also defeated Germany and Italy. Australia overcame Croatia in the semifinals to reach its first Davis Cup final since 2003.

Auger-Aliassime ended his career-best season holding a 60-27 record. In a standout year, the 22-year-old won four tour-level titles and helped guide Canada to the ATP Cup trophy.

Fans show support for Sanju Samson in FIFA Qatar World Cup

AGENCY DOHA, NOV 28

Despite not receiving a regular chance in India's playing XI in the ongoing Men in Blue's New Zealand tour, fans' love for their star batter Sanju Samson is unfazed.

In the ongoing FIFA Qatar World Cup 2022, the fans showed support for Samson by raising unique banners, a picture of which was shared by Rajasthan Royals, the team Samson leads in the Indian Premier League. The official Twitter handle of Rajasthan Royals posted pictures of the fans with posters in their hands.

After losing by seven wickets to New Zealand in the opening ODI of the series on Friday in Auckland, Team India was anticipated to make a change. India received criticism for leaving out a bowler. However, fans were furious with captain Shikhar Dhawan and head coach VVS Laxman after Samson was cut loose to make room for all-rounder Deepak Hooda.

Samson stayed on the trip for the ensuing ODI series and was eventually given a chance, scoring a respectable 38 off of 36 balls and putting together a key 96-run partnership with Shreyas Iyer, although in a losing cause. In an effort to increase the depth of their bowling, India later sidelined him in favour of Hooda.

Form No. 3 [See Regulation-15 (1)(a)] / 16(3)

After the match on Sunday in Hamilton, Dhawan explained why Samson was dropped. "We wanted the sixth bowler to come in, so Sanju Samson missed out and Hooda came in. And Chahar was picked because he can swing the ball really well. A few of our guys are resting but this side is still strong, showing the depth of our squad," he explained after the match.

"Over the last couple of months we've put together a blueprint of how we want to play, particularly in the T20 format, with an eye on the World Cup next year," Sawyer said. "This tour will be a great opportunity to continue working and refining those plans and making any necessary adjustments," he said. Kochi on December 23, as reported by ESPNcricinfo. Many fans expect teams to go after Green and place high bids for him because of his all-round abilities and the fact that the 23-year-old has plenty of cricket to offer at the highest level.

"I have registered for it. It will be an exciting opportunity," Green was quoted as saying by cricket.com.au on their 'Unplayable' podcast.

"Speaking to a lot of guys, espe-cially in the WA (Western Australia) set up about their experiences in the IPL, they speak so highly of it. They speak about the quality coaches that you are around, the quality players that you are around. They are all the best in the world at their craft."

"It is a craft that I have not been exposed to too much. I am so open to wanting to learn as much as I can and that is probably one of the best environments to learn in," Green said.

But a highly likely dive into the most cash-rich cricket league on the planet has not put an end to his Test ambitions and hunger as his father Gary has been helping his son practice via a bowling machine ahead of the first Test against West Indies, which will start from November 30.

"I had a few sessions on the bowling machine basically trying to change my contact point," Green said. "In T20 cricket, you are meeting the ball so far in front of you, so you get that full swing." "To try to rein it back and hit the ball under your eyes (is difficult). I had a few good sessions basically just playing the defence shot.

Fullkrug strike keeps Germany's WC hopes alive

AGENCY AL KHOR (QATAR), NOV 28

Substitute Niclas Fullkrug reignited Germany's World Cup challenge with a scorching late equalising strike to claim a precious point against Spain at a rapt Al Bayt Stadium.

Spain, ranked 7th in the world, and Germany, ranked 11th played out a pulsating 1-1 draw here on Sunday night.

Fullkrug is a late bloomer when it comes to international football, but he announced his arrival on the world stage with a thumping finish.

His late equaliser means German hopes of qualifying for the group stage are still very much alive, after Alvaro Morata, a fellow substitute had given Spain the lead.

Fullkrug's goal was the first by German substitute at a FIFA World Cup, since Mario Götze's 2014 Final winner.

Spain appeared on course for a second successive victory and a huge step towards the last 16 after Alvaro Morata came off the bench to convert a 62nd-minute Jordi Alba cross. But Fullkrug, who made a goalscoring Germany debut against Oman only 11 days ago, crashed an unstoppable strike past Unai Simon to earn a fully-merited point for Hansi Flick's team

Spain created the better of the early openings, Dani Olmo thumping the bar, via a vital touch from Manuel Neuer, and Alba rippling the side netting with an effort from distance.

Antonio Rudiger thought he'd scored six minutes before the break but the Germany centreback's celebrations were halted by an offside flag.

Spain broke through when the predatory Morata darted in front of Niklas Skula at the front post to apply a decisive touch to Alba's fizzing cross.

Marco Asensio skied an attempt as Spain tried to put the game to bed. And Germany re-sponded, Jamal Musiala forcing Simon into a fine one-handed stop, before Fullkrug beat the Spain goalkeeper with an unstoppable drive. "If after the (World Cup) draw we'd been told that after the first two matches we'd be leaders of the group and depend only on ourselves, I would have signed for that," Spain coach Luis Enrique said. "A draw against Japan (in final group game) is enough, but we're not going to speculate. "Yes, it's a pity, the result, but we have to be happy because we are leaders in this group." Germany coach Hansi Flick said: ? "The team maintained a great level. I am very satisfied with the mentality and the team's work today. This was a match on a high level. Those are things we want to see from this team, but this was only a first step. We want to see (more in the) next match (against Costa Rica) and create the conditions to go through."
