ISRO conducts integrated test on Semicryogenic Engine

BENGALURU: In a breakthrough in developing 2000kN semi-cryogenic thrust engine for heavier satellites of the GSAT series, Indian Space Research Organisation carried out its first integrated testing at the newly commissioned semi-cryogenic facility of ISRO's Propulsion Complex (IPRC) in Tamil Nadu's Mahendragiri. The very first test was conducted on Wednesday on an intermediate configuration of the 2000kN Semicryogenic Engine. The intermediate configuration, designated as Power Head Test Article (PHTA), comprises all the engine systems except the thrust chamber. The test is the first of a series of tests planned to validate the design of the propellant feed system, including the low-pressure and high-pressure turbo-pumps, the gas generator, and control components, the Bengaluru-headquartered space agency said.

LG can't have administrative supervision over all issues of Delhi : SC

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, MAY 11

The Supreme Court's five-judge bench led by Chief Justice of India (CJI) Dr Dhananjaya Yeshwant Chandrachud, in a unanimous verdict on Thursday said that the Lt. Governor cannot have all the administrative supervision over all issues relating to UT of Delhi.

The Apex Court said that the LG's (Lieutenant Governor) powers do not empower him to interfere with the legislative powers of the Delhi assembly and elected government.

The Top Court said that the rights to control services must reside in the democratically elected government.

The Supreme Court in its judgement said that except on subjects of public order, police and land, all services, including Indian Administrative Services (IAS) even if not recruited by the NCT (National Capital Territory) government, would be controlled by the Delhi government as per Constitutional scheme of governance.

The Apex Court passed the verdict on the issue of the power tussle between the Delhi government and LG over transfer and appointment of officers. Supreme Court held that if administrative services are excluded from the legislative and executive domains, the ministers would be excluded from controlling the civil servants who are to implement the executive decisions.

Maha political crisis: Apex Court refers case to larger bench

NEW DELHI: The Supreme Court on Thursday while hearing a batch of petitions on the Maharashtra political crisis referred to a larger bench of seven judges to consider the 2016 Nabam Rebia decision on the powers of Assembly Speakers to deal with disqualification pleas. "The correctness of the decision in Nabam Rebia (supra) is referred to a larger bench of seven judges," A five-judge bench of Chief Justice DY Chandrachud and Justices MR Shah, Krishna Murari, Hima Kohli and PS Narasimha said.

The court noted that it appears that some aspects were not considered in Nabam Rebia's judgement. Among them was, whether the temporary disablement of the functions of the Speaker under the Tenth Schedule is prone to misuse by MLAs who anticipate that disqualification petitions will be instituted against them or by MLAs against whom disqualification petitions have already been instituted, the court noted. The court also said that whether a "constitutional hiatus" in the operation of the Tenth Schedule ensues because of the temporary disablement of the Speaker was not considered in Nabam Rebia's judgement.

Imran Khan released

Pakistan SC calls arrest "illegal"

AGENCY
ISLAMABAD, MAY 11

The Supreme Court of Pakistan on Thursday declared Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf chief Imran Khan's arrest "illegal," and also directed for his immediate release, reported ARY News.

The major relief for the former prime minister came shortly after he was presented in court. Khan, who was removed from office as prime minister last year in April, was ordered by the SC to present himself at 4:30 pm, but he was produced at around 5:40 pm, more than an hour later.

He was carried in a 15-vehicle convoy.

Khan was ordered to appear in court after Chief Justice of Pakistan (CJP) Umar Ata Bandial described the PTI leader's detention from the Islamabad High Court (IHC) premises as a mighty disgrace to the country's legal system, as per ARY News.

The CJP made the comment while presiding over a three-person bench debating the PTI's appeal challenging Khan's arrest. The bench also contains Justices Muhammad Ali Mazhar and Athal Minallah in addition to the Chief Justice of Pakistan.

A petition was filed in the Supreme Court by PTI, a day earlier challenging the Islamabad High Court's (IHC) decision calling Khan's arrest by the National Accountability Bureau (NAB) "illegal," according to ARY News.

Khan was arrested on Tuesday inside the premises of Islamabad High Court when he appeared before the court in two cases.

Ever since Khan's arrest, Pakistan has been witnessing a situation of unrest. Several protests have broken out across the country as PTI has urged its supporters to come out in support of Imran Khan. On the other hand, the PTI has asked its supporters to stay away from the top court, ARY News reported.

Mr Khan has alleged he was tortured in the NAB custody and was not allowed to even use the washroom. The former cricketing superstar, who remains popular in Pakistan, alleged he was given an injection to induce a slow heart attack.

Mr Khan's arrest follows months of political crisis and came hours after the powerful military rebuked the former international cricketer for alleging that a senior officer had been involved in a plot to kill him. Some protesters took out their wrath on the military, torching the residence of the corps commander in Lahore and laying siege at the entrance to the army's general headquarters in the garrison city of Rawalpindi.

'Supreme Court's decision in favour of Delhi government's rights, Kejriwal government's victory for democracy!'

GOURAV GOEL
CHANDIGARH, 11 MAY

Amid the ongoing tussle between the Kejriwal government and the Center over rights, today the honorable Supreme Court has given an important decision in favor of the Arvind Kejriwal-led AAP government of Delhi. On this occasion, AAP Punjab Chief Spokesperson Malwinder Singh Kang praised this decision and called it a victory of democracy.

Addressing a press conference from the party office in Chandigarh, Malwinder Kang said that it is a victory for democracy that the Hon'ble Court has stamped the authority of the Delhi government to take administrative decisions, including appointments and transfers of officers in various departments. He said that at a time when the Modi government at the center is constantly trying to establish its dictatorship by abolishing the rights of all the states of the country including Delhi, the courts are the last hope to save the democracy and today's decision proves it. The Hon'ble Supreme Court will not allow anyone to tamper with the spirit of the Constitution.

Malwinder Kang said that the BJP's unnecessary interference in the work of the elected governments of the states through the governor and lieutenant governor, constantly limiting the rights of the states and weakening them. It is at odds with the federal structure of our country. He said that this attitude of BJP is not in the interest of the country in any way.

Referring to Delhi's Arvind Kejriwal government, Kang said that the people of Delhi elected Kejriwal as their chief minister by giving a huge majority twice. But the central BJP government continued to interfere in their work and issued a notification taking away the right to transfer officers.

Dr. Nijjar launches revised sops for deppt of soil, water conservationSHASHI PAL JAIN
CHANDIGARH, MAY 11

Dr. Inderbir Singh Nijjar, Cabinet Minister Soil and Water Conservation, has launched the 'Revised Standard Operating Procedures' of the Department of Soil and Water Conservation in Punjab. The new work procedures have been revised after more than 50 years, and will replace the earlier procedures formulated during the 1960s when the departmental works were minor in nature and mainly limited to soil conservation works only.

Divulging in this regards, Cabinet Minister, Dr Inderbir Singh Nijjar stated that the nature and magnitude of the departmental works have changed significantly. Water resource conservation and management assumed importance especially after the late 1980s due to fast depletion of ground water and limited surface water availability. Therefore, the revised work procedures lay emphasis on works like rainwater harvesting, underground pipelines, drip/sprinkler irrigation, and the use of treated water, which have become the prime focus of the department. Speaking on the occasion, Dr. Nijjar informed that the Government is committed to bringing greater efficiency and transparency in public works.

Therefore, all such rules and procedures that have become obsolete and act as a hurdle rather than facilitating the common man are being rewritten across departments. The release of these revised SOPs is a step in that direction. Mohinder Singh Saini, Chief Conservator of Soils, Punjab, who was present along with other officers of the department, informed that these revised work procedures of the department lay down duties and responsibilities of officers/officials besides the methodology of execution of works along with monitoring and evaluation.

Nurses heart of healthcare:
Dr. Prabhjot SinghAJAY MALHOTRA
FATEHGARH SAHIB, MAY 11

International Nurses Day is celebrated annually on May 12th, the birth anniversary of Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing.

This day honors the selfless dedication and contributions of nurses to the healthcare sector and society as a whole. In 2023, International Nurses Day falls on a Friday, and the theme for this year is yet to be announced.

These views were expressed by Dr. Prabhjot Singh on the occasion of International Nurses Day. Dr. Prabhjot said that to shine the light on nurses and a brighter future, moving nurses from invisible to invaluable in the eyes of policymakers, the public, and all those who make decisions affecting the delivery and financing of health care the theme of this year is Our Nurses Our Future. He said that International Nurses Day is celebrated annually on May 12th to honor the birth anniversary of Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing. The history of International Nurses Day dates back to 1953 when the International Council of Nurses (ICN) proposed that May 12th be celebrated as "International Nurses Day" to commemorate Florence Nightingale's contributions to nursing.

Dr. Prabhjot said that Florence Nightingale was born on May 12, 1820, in Florence, Italy. She became a nurse during the Crimean War, where she gained recognition for her tireless efforts to care for wounded soldiers and improve the unsanitary contribution of military hospitals. Florence Nightingale was known as the "Lady with the Lamp" because of her habit of making rounds at night to care for patients. He told that the ICN first celebrated International Nurses Day on May 12, 1965.

The theme for the first celebration was "Nursing, a Unique and Valuable Contribution to Health Care". Since then, International Nurses Day has been celebrated every year with a different theme, highlighting the various aspects of nursing and its importance in healthcare. International Nurses Day provides an opportunity to appreciate and acknowledge the contributions of nurses to healthcare and society.

It also serves as a platform to raise awareness about the challenges that nurses face, including shortages, burnout, and lack of recognition.

Aware coming generations of sacrifices
Cong leaders made for Nation building: CM

DINESH AGARWAL
SHIMLA, MAY 11

Chief Minister, Thakur Sukhvinder Singh Sukhu, while inaugurating the first National convention of Jawahar Bal Manch, SAMVAAD-23, here today, said that the organizations like Jawahar Bal Manch play a pivotal role for the unity of the country and for countering the propaganda and indifferent ideologies cropped up in the society of late.

The Chief Minister said that Congress leaders played a special role in reconstructing India before and after the Independence. We have to live upto and realize the dreams of the country's first Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru who laid the foundation of modern India and strengthen the democratic values. The Bhakhra Dam was the gift of Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru and it is because of him that we were lightening other states with electricity. Pandit Nehru gave a new direction to the country's development by starting five year plans for sustainable development. The Chief Minister said a few people were trying to deform the history of the Nation and spreading propaganda against the party which has contributed in building the Nation, therefore it becomes necessary that such organizations come ahead to aware the coming generations about the history of the oldest party of the country and the sacrifices it made for building 'Bharat'. Giving credit to the senior Congress leader Rahul Gandhi who had spread the message of love, unity and fraternity through his 'Bharat Jodo Yatra' on foot braving the hot and the chill weather conditions, he said that only

Congress leaders can do such sacrifices which will go down in the annals of history.

Recalling the contribution of former Prime Minister, Rajiv Gandhi, Sh. Sukhu said that he believed in youth power to steer the Nation and it was due to his efforts that the youth were empowered with the right to vote at the early age of eighteen. He was the man to be credited with bringing revolution in the Information Technology (IT) sector in India. Besides, Women's reservation in Panchayati Raj institutions was also provided by the Congress leadership and such facts need to

Only terrorist organizations
opposing 'The Kerala
Story': Anurag Thakur

SANJAY AGGARWAL
DHARAMSHALA, MAY 11

Information and Broadcasting Youth Affairs and Sports Minister Anurag Thakur said some people are opposing the truth regarding the film The Kerala Story. He said that earlier some people opposed The Kashmir File and now they are opposing The Kerala Story. Anurag Thakur was talking to reporters at Kangra Airport. He said whether people are standing with those terrorist organizations who seduce daughters and take them on the wrong path, are these people standing with those who increase the incidents of the end, are these people standing with those who are trying to convert. They adopt different types of handcuffs. Anurag Thakur said that those protesting have to decide whether they stand with those innocent daughters of India, stand with India's security, or stand with terrorist organizations or stand by their side. He said that it is for these political parties to decide that they will fall so much in the politics of appeasement that they find their political votes and appeasement politics stronger than the security of the country and the safety of daughters. Regarding the protest for the rights of the players in Jantar Mantar, Anurag Thakur said that he had talked about the formation of an inquiry committee, we constituted an inquiry committee, the committee investigated and presented its report. US concerned over China taking 1.2 million DNA samples in Tibet

SANJAY AGGARWAL
DHARAMSHALA, MAY 11

US Secretary of State Anthony Blinken has expressed deep concern over reports of a large-scale DNA collection campaign by China in Tibet. The Central Tibetan Administration based in Dharamshala has also been continuously opposing it. The report said that DNA samples of more than 1.2 million Tibetans, including children under the age of five, have been taken, which is a matter of concern. US Secretary of State said that we are also concerned by reports of the proliferation of large-scale DNA collection in Tibet as an additional form of control and surveillance of the Tibetan population. In an effort to socially control Tibetans, the Chinese authority has resorted to frequent surveillance and over-policing, including the arbitrary collection of DNA samples from Tibetans. A report released in September 2022 by Human Rights Watch stated that blood samples for DNA collection were being systematically collected from children in kindergartens and other local residents. In December 2020, a report from a Tibetan township in Qinghai province stated that DNA was being collected from all boys aged 5 and above. He said such mass DNA collection campaigns were conducted in all seven prefectures or municipalities in the TAR, which covers the western part of the Tibetan Plateau. The report highlights that the collection drives are part of an ongoing effort by Chinese authorities to establish a grassroots police presence across the region and indicates ambiguity around the conditions under which a resident may refuse to provide a sample.

Minor spectacle

The coronation of King Charles III, watched by millions across the globe, was a grand spectacle. Pomp and pageantry have always been central to British statecraft, particularly its celebration of the monarchy, ever since Queen Victoria assumed the grand title of Empress of India in 1877. The British Empire, in full bloom until the independence of India in 1947 began the process of decolonisation, may no longer be there to pay the bills, but Britain hasn't entirely forgotten the 'ornamentalism' that marked its imperial heyday. "Gold fillings in a mouth of decay" was how a left-wing writer once chose to describe the institution that was celebrated last Saturday.

Understandably, there were sharply divergent views of the coronation, including those who saw it as a non-event and, at best, equal in importance to the opening and the closing ceremonies of the Olympic Games. Within Britain and some parts of the Anglophone world, the formal anointment of Charles III was a semi-mystical event. Moreover, since this was the only coronation in living memory — the previous one happened in 1953, a long time ago — they wallowed in the television coverage, although the ratings were less than those of the funeral of Queen Elizabeth a year ago.

Seven decades ago, at the dawn of the long Elizabethan era, the televised coverage was elementary and lacked the glitz and technological sophistication of today. At the same time, the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II had a greater global importance because despite the weariness of a painful victory over Hitler's Germany and Tojo's Japan, Britain was an important player in international affairs, third only to the United States of America and the Soviet Union. Despite all its pretensions of restoring its status as a player of consequence — the proverbial Singapore of the West — the grim reality is that Britain is increasingly being seen as a declining power with oodles of heritage. Some of that heritage, including all the Cullinan diamonds extracted from Africa under circumstances that can at best be called controversial, was on display at the coronation. Some of the other treasures, such as the iconic Kohinoor diamond, were wisely kept away from the coronation.

In many ways, the British monarchy has tried to modify its image and keep up with the times. Although its constitutional role is very limited and the scope of the royal prerogative nominal, the monarch plays an important role as a symbol of British nationhood. Keeping his/her head above controversy and steadfastly treading a sensible middle ground have been the expectations from the monarch since Queen Victoria.

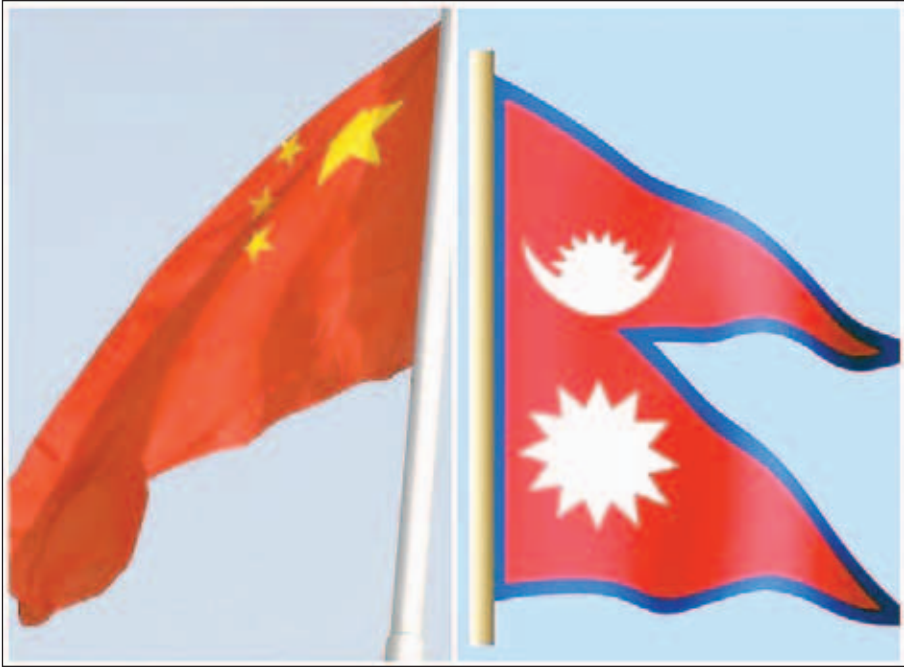

China's attempts to install friendly government in Nepal suffer setback

Attempts by the Chinese leadership to install a Beijing-friendly government in Kathmandu have suffered setbacks, say specialists, according to South Asia Democratic Forum (SADF).

The Communist Party of China (CPC) has for quite some time, 'pushed for a united leftist party in Nepal that would enjoy widespread support and govern in the favour of officials in Beijing'. To do so, the CPC supported merging the 'two largest communist parties to establish a strong communist force in Nepal'.

The newly formed party which was called the Nepal Communist Party (NCP), comprised the Communist Party of Nepal-United Marxist Leninist (CPN-UML), headed by K P Sharma Oli, and the Communist Party of Nepal (CPN-Maoist Centre) of former rebel leader Pushpa Kamal Dahal (also known as 'Prachanda').

The unified communists under the banner of the NCP came to power in 2018. With this, it appeared that Beijing had successfully consolidated its influence in Kathmandu. However, the Communist 'unity party' was short-lived and split in March 2021. This led to the exit of the NCP from power and resulted in a government led by the Nepali Congress (NC).

According to SADF, it is of course hard not to perceive the NCP split as a 'a major setback to Beijing's Nepal policy'. Under the then-new Prime Minister Sher Bahadur Deuba (NC), the Nepali government's criticism of India was toned down, another indicator of China's declining influence in Kathmandu.

It appeared that after the November 2022 general elections, Beijing was regaining some of the political space in Kathmandu it enjoyed under the NCP rule. Nepal witnessed the return of the CPN-UML and the CPN-Maoist Centre to power as part of a broader coalition. The withdrawal of the pro-Chinese CPN-UML from the current ruling coalition was however a major set-back for Beijing.

It appeared that after the November 2022 general elections, Beijing was regaining some of the political space in Kathmandu it enjoyed under the NCP rule. Nepal witnessed the return of the CPN-UML and the CPN-Maoist Centre to power as part of a broader coalition.

To make things worse, the exit of the CPN-UML from the coalition was the consequence of a larger behind-the-scenes political manoeuvre by Prachanda.

A presidential election took place earlier in 2023. Instead of supporting the candidate of his coalition partner, the PM decided to promote Ram Chandra Poudel from the opposition Nepali Congress. The takeover of the presidential office by Poudel marks another Chinese defeat.

His predecessor, Bidhya Devi Bhandari, had a 'discernible proclivity toward China'. Prachanda's decision therefore led both to the drop-out of CPN-UML from the ruling coalition but also to the removal of a "pro-Chinese" communist face in the supreme post', according to Asian Lite.

Healthy diet linked with greater physical fitness in middle-aged adults

A nutritious diet is related to higher physical fitness in middle-aged people, according to a study.

The findings of the study were published in the European Journal of Preventive Cardiology, a journal of the European Society of Cardiology (ESC).

"This study provides some of the strongest and most rigorous data thus far to support the connection that better diets">diets may lead to higher fitness," said study author Dr. Michael Mi of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Boston, US. "The improvement in fitness we observed in participants with better diets">diets was similar to the effect of taking 4,000 more steps each day."

Cardiorespiratory fitness measures the body's ability to deliver and utilise oxygen during exercise, and it takes into account the health of several organ systems, including the heart, lungs, blood vessels, and muscles.

It is one of the most powerful indicators of health and lifespan. While exercise improves cardiorespiratory fitness, there are disparities in fitness among persons who exercise the same amount, indicating that other factors have a role. A healthy diet has been linked to a variety of health advantages, but it is unknown if it is also linked to fitness.

The purpose of this study was to see if a nutritious diet is related to physical fitness in community-dwelling individuals.

The Framingham Heart Study includes 2,380 participants.

The average age was 54 years, and 54% of the participants were female. To determine peak VO2, participants performed a maximal effort cardiopulmonary exercise test on a cycle ergometer. This is the gold standard of fitness evaluation and represents the quantity of oxygen consumed during the most intense activity imaginable. Participants also completed the Harvard semi-quantitative food frequency questionnaire to assess intake of 126 dietary items during the last year ranging from never or less than once per month to six or more servings per day.

The information was used to rate diet quality using the Alternative Healthy Eating Index (AHEI; 0 to 110) and Mediterranean-style Diet Score (MDS; 0 to 25), which are both associated with heart health.

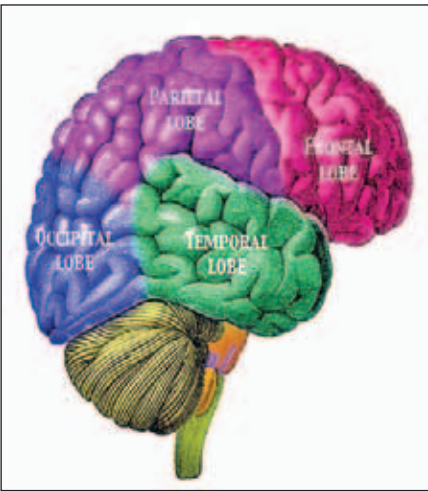

How brain interprets taste

Taste is a complicated neurological experience that has the potential to reveal vast, and maybe startling, information on how the brain makes sense of sensations and the organisation of brain networks. A National Institutes of Health-funded study conducted by Christian H. Lemon, Ph.D., an associate professor in the Department of Biology in the Dodge Family College of Arts and Sciences, aims to better understand how the brain processes taste and how those neural connections might change.

Taste is associated with a variety of brain functions, including the pleasure of tasting something sweet. Taste is a component of flavour, and it includes the pain felt while tasting a hot pepper. There is, however, a knowledge deficit on how taste and flavour preferences develop and alter through time.

"Taste is a component of flavor; it contributes sensations like saltiness and sweetness. When we're eating food, we get a lot of pleasure from taste and flavor, but taste is actually a sensory system that we really don't fully understand in terms of how it works in guiding eating behavior and also how it works in the brain," Lemon said.

This project will build on a discovery made by Lemon's research group while studying a part of the brain where taste sensations can excite neurons in the midbrain region. Importantly, many other senses from various parts of the body are processed in the same neural location, with preliminary data suggesting some body senses can activate brain cells excited by tastes. By determining how neurons are receiving signals for taste and touch sensations, Lemon's study hopes to better understand how these integrations happen and whether it is reflective of an emotional correlation.

"There is a part of the brain that takes in sensory information from basically almost all over the body, and taste is a part of this. We're wanting to understand, essentially, how taste is mapping into this part of the brain, along with all of these other body sensations as well, with the idea that if we can understand this it might actually tell us more about how taste works and how the taste system and other senses are organized, and why there appears to be neural overlap between them" he said.

POEM

Playthings

Child, how happy you are sitting in the dust, playing with a broken twig all the morning. I smile at your play with that little bit of a broken twig.

I am busy with my accounts, adding up figures by the hour. Perhaps you glance at me and think, "What a stupid game to spoil your morning with!" Child, I have forgotten the art of being absorbed in sticks and mud-pies. I seek out costly playthings, and gather lumps of gold and silver.

Researchers discover how DNA repair can go wrong and lead to disease

We frequently come to an understanding of what causes a condition. We know, for example, that tumours are produced by mutations in crucial sites in the genome, resulting in a lack of control over cell development. We know that the start of Huntington's disease, as well as other disorders that cause muscle atrophy and loss of coordination and balance, is connected to the proliferation of short, repetitive DNA sequences.

What we don't understand is how these genomic processes occur. Catherine Freudenreich, professor and chair of Tufts' Department of Biology, and her colleagues discovered mechanisms by which the natural process of DNA repair fails and mutations occur in a study published in the journal Nature Communications, opening up new avenues for understanding the origins of many diseases and developing therapies to treat them.

"DNA breaks and repair events occur thousands of times per day in each of us," said Freudenreich. "Most of the time, repair works the way it should. But we now have a better understanding of how things can go wrong, and we can apply this knowledge to new therapeutic strategies."

Erica Polleys, a postdoctoral researcher in the Freudenreich Lab, concentrated on the gene repeats found in Huntington's disease—a long repetition of 60 or more copies of the sequence cytosine-adenine-guanine, or CAG, on one strand of DNA and cytosine-thymine-guanine, or CTG, on the complementary strand. "We've engineered yeast to have a CAG repeat sequence, because their cells are similar to human cells in many ways and they are easy to work with," said Polleys. "We can use simple model organisms to uncover how cells deal with repairing breaks and errors near repetitive sequences and use that knowledge to get an understanding of how human diseases like Huntington's disease or cancers develop."

It has been widely understood that DNA repeats can form structures that branch away from the linear chain of DNA, much like a cord or a hose will form branching twists if wound too tightly. These branches form barriers to natural replication and repair and introduce errors in the genome.

Freudenreich and Polley's examination of the mechanisms of DNA repair near Huntington's disease-like repeats revealed that repeats would expand or contract in number depending on which strand of the double stranded DNA was being repaired. When the CAG side of the strand was being removed during a repair, the repeats contracted, and the DNA was at risk of large deletions, often fatal to the cell. When its complementary CTG strand was being removed and repaired, the repeats expanded, but only by one or two copies at a time. The researchers hypothesize that this is how the repeats accumulate in neurons of Huntington's disease patients.

A key observation was that DNA breaks near expanded repeats occurred a lot more frequently when the repeats were exposed as a single strand of DNA, something that occurs during many repair processes. This "fragile site" can lead to deletion of a nearby important gene, which can kill the cell, or result in diseases like cancer.

DNA fragility can happen near other sequences that make the DNA form branched twists. Genomic analysis could reveal more mutation hotspots that lead to cancer, or the accumulation of repair errors that lead to many conditions of aging. Observing changes in repeat length provided more detail about what was happening, but not how it was happening. The Tufts team picked apart the repair mechanism further, deleting some proteins to see how they affected the fragility of the yeast genome. Removal of one protein led to a faster recruitment of other proteins that untwist the DNA, leading to more successful repairs.

Punjab teacher announced as regional winner of the 2023 Cambridge Dedicated Teacher Awards

BUREAU CHANDIGARH : Gaurav Sharma, Maths Teacher, has been named regional winner of the 2023 Cambridge Dedicated Teacher Awards in Chandigarh, India.

Run by Cambridge University Press, the Cambridge Dedicated Teacher Awards are a global competition which celebrates the efforts of teachers around the world. This year, the competition received over 11,000 nominations from 99 countries. An increase of over 30% compared to last year's nominations.

The global competition gives students, parents and other teachers the chance to nominate a current primary or secondary teacher for something wonderful they have done. Now in its fifth year, the awards demonstrate the inspiring and positive impact of teachers across the globe and give students a platform to say, 'thank you'.

This year, Gaurav Sharma was named regional winner in India, winning for promoting charity work and giving up time to teach students remotely during uncertain times throughout the Covid pandemic.

Speaking on their win, Gaurav Sharma said: "It's so important that we make mathematics as engaging and realistic to students. My passion for mathematics drives what I do, and I feel great pride in seeing this passion reflected in my students. In today's world, it's crucial that we connect activities with real-world situations through the classroom and online tools, to make mathematics as accessible as possible. I'm thrilled that my students felt supported during the Covid-19 pandemic and that the monthly booklet series I worked on 'Mathlete' and 'Mathemania' has fuelled my students' interest in mathematics.

I strongly believe education is the most important tool to make this world a better place and uplift people's lives. We need to inculcate the feeling of being a global citizen among our learners, as education is borderless and limitless. It keeps us evolving through time. As we say in India "□□□□□□□□□□" (Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam) means "the whole world is one single family" and I believe education connects us."

Matthew Walker, Publishing Director for Education at Cambridge University Press, said: "The achievements of our 2023 regional winners, plus the thousands of nominations we received for the competition, speak volumes for the value of teachers' roles and the positive impact they have on students. We hope that this recognition will continue to inspire teachers to deliver exceptional teaching and encourage the next generation of learners to aim high in their ambitions."

As a regional winner of the 2023 Cambridge Dedicated Teachers Awards, Gaurav Sharma will receive £500 worth of books or digital resources, along with a Cambridge Dedicated Teacher Awards trophy, and promotion for them and their school. New Study Evaluates the Effectiveness of Cranberries in Preventing Urinary Tract Infections

CHANDIGARH: Cranberry products have long been popular for their potential to prevent urinary tract infections (UTIs). A new comprehensive study analyzed the results of multiple randomized controlled trials (RCTs) to determine the effectiveness of cranberries in preventing UTIs. The study published in Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews 2023, which included 50 RCTs involving 8,857 participants, found that cranberry contain proanthocyanidins (PACs) that hinder bacteria from adhering to bladder walls, such as juice, tablets, or capsules, can reduce the occurrence of UTIs in specific groups. Women with recurrent UTIs, children with UTIs, and individuals susceptible to UTIs following bladder interventions, such as bladder radiotherapy, experienced a decrease in UTIs when consuming cranberry products. Mr. Sumit Saran, India Representative of US Cranberries said that India is a growing market for US Cranberries. Consumption is increasing rapidly as more and more consumers get aware of the taste and health benefits of cranberries. US cranberries in India are commonly available in dried or in juice form. It can be easily bought from major e-commerce platforms or leading retailers across the country. Kavita Devgan, a leading Dietitian, holistic health consultant and an eminent writer said that according to the researchers the high level of compounds PACs in cranberries help lower the adhesion of certain bacteria to the urinary-tract walls. Without adhesion bacteria cannot infect the mucosal surface of the urinary tract, helping thus in fighting off infections.

Upbeat MI to take on GT's might in vital IPL clash

AGENCY MUMBAI, MAY 11

An upbeat Mumbai Indians are likely to be tested to the hilt by table-toppers and defending champions Gujarat Titans in a vital Indian Premier League match on Friday. For the first time in this IPL, five-time winners MI have looked promising as they rose to the third spot in the points table with a six-wicket thumping of Royal Challengers Bangalore here on Tuesday. The manner in which MI thrashed RCB — chasing 200 inside 17 overs — highlighted once again how successful their batting has been, even though for the second consecutive game they reshuffled the order in a bid to push their net run rate. Despite their best batter and captain Rohit Sharma enduring a lean patch with five single-digit scores on the trot, MI's batting has been nearly unstoppable here at the Wankhede Stadium as they successfully chased a target of 200 or above twice in three attempts. Even against Punjab Kings, MI replied with 201 for 6 while chasing 215. However, the issue for MI this year is not restricted to Rohit's form or the absence of Jasprit Bumrah Jofra Archer, but their bowling which has conceded four consecutive totals above 200, and nearly did so versus RCB again.

side 17 overs — highlighted once again how successful their batting has been, even though for the second consecutive game they reshuffled the order in a bid to push their net run rate. Despite their best batter and captain Rohit Sharma enduring a lean patch with five single-digit scores on the trot, MI's batting has been nearly unstoppable here at the Wankhede Stadium as they successfully chased a target of 200 or above twice in three attempts. Even against Punjab Kings, MI replied with 201 for 6 while chasing 215. However, the issue for MI this year is not restricted to Rohit's form or the absence of Jasprit Bumrah Jofra Archer, but their bowling which has conceded four consecutive totals above 200, and nearly did so versus RCB again.

MLA Harvindra Kalyan snubs officials for delay of public works

SHIV KUMAR SHARMA
KARNAL, MAY 11

Despite the good salary and facilities the government is giving to you government officials, if the public has to suffer for their small problems, isn't it negligence? You should decide with your own discretion. If you do people's work at the right time, it will only praise your work style, not anyone else's. We all are there to reduce the difficulties of the common people and not to increase them, and when the government has no shortage of funds and no infrastructure, but still there is laxity in the work. It means that there is a difference in our thinking. Gharanda MLA Harvindra Kalyan strongly told this to the concerned officers, employees and ward workers of Municipal Corporation Kamal in the presence of Mayor Renubala Gupta, Gharanda Municipality Chairman Happy Luck Gupta, Commissioner Abhishek Meena, Joint Commissioner Aditi. Krishna Kumar, Rajendra Sirsi, Bhupendra Nautana, Sultan Singh, Yogesh Kumar, Mahendra Kashyap, Vikas Garg put the problems of their ward in front of the officers in a sharp tone. Many small works have been pending for a long time and some officers and employees are openly negligent. Durga Colony, SP Colony and some other colonies don't have roads, electric poles and lights, filth, sanitation, clean drinking water and many other problems, there was talk of fixing working hours and accountability with the concerned officials. MLA Harvindra Kalyan and Mayor Renu Bala Gupta asked the concerned officials to understand the seriousness of the works and sought information from them that in what time the pending works would be completed. They instructed that if any work is related to more than one department, then it should be coordinated. They should be disposed of soon and a roadmap should also be prepared for all the works so that they can be reviewed on time. Mayor Renu Bala Gupta asked for immediate work on the road leading from Madanpur to Dahanu as children could not go to school there after a little rain. MLA Harvindra Kalyan said that the officials should proceed with the stalled works.
