Priyanka Gandhi named in probe agency chargesheet

NEW DELHI: Congress leader Priyanka Gandhi Vadra has been named in an Enforcement Directorate chargesheet - for the first time - over the alleged purchase and sale of five acres of land in Haryana. Her husband, businessman Robert Vadra, is also named but neither is listed as an "accused", sources told Thursday morning. The chargesheet was filed against CC Thampi, an NRI businessman, and Sumit Chadha, a British national of Indian origin. The ED believes they helped fugitive arms dealer Sanjay Bhandari - who is accused of violating the Official Secrets Act, among other laws - hide the proceeds of his crimes. The agency - often accused of acting against opposition leaders on orders from the centre - has referred to Ms Gandhi Vadra's transactions with HL Pahwa, a Delhi-based real estate agent who sold her agricultural land in Faridabad in 2006 and, four years later, re-purchased the same tract. In addition, ED sources told, a house was allegedly purchased in Ms Gandhi Vadra's name, in Faridabad's Amipur village, in April 2006 and sold back to Mr Pahwa at the same time as the land. Mr Pahwa is the same agent from whom Robert Vadra allegedly bought 40.8 acres of land in Amipur between 2005 and 2006, and sold it all back to him in December 2010. A similar deal - for 486 acres- was executed by Mr Thampi, out on bail after his arrest in 2020.

Responding to the statement of BJP's Punjab chief Sunil Jakhar, Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) Punjab's chief spokesperson Malvinder Singh Kang said that Sunil Jakhar lied about the Republic Day tableau. There was no photo of Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann and Arvind Kejriwal anywhere in the tableau.

On Jakhar's statement that previous Chief Ministers never raised questions about this, Kang said that Captain Amarinder Singh and Badal did not have concern for the heritage of Punjab, but the current Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann cares about the culture and heritage of Punjab and its representation.

Kang said that Punjab was discriminated against twice in such a big event, whereas Punjabis have laid maximum lives for the country, for our country's independence and even after independence. Still, stepmotherly behaviour towards Punjab shows what is the real intention of the BJP. "Despite Jakhar's hesitancy to denounce this decision of the BJP government, the people of Punjab see his duplicity, and this betrayal shall not easily fade from memory or be forgiven," says AAP leader. Kang said that this time the tableau was completely unique.

One had the concept of Mai Bhago with the message of women empowerment. The second was related to the culture of Punjab and the third was about the life and history of our martyrs.

No question of construction of SYL: CM

SHASHI PAL JAIN CHANDIGARH, DEC 28

Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Singh Mann on Thursday unequivocally said that the question of constructing the Satluj Yamuna Link (SYL) canal does not arise as the state is not having a single drop of water to share with anyone.

Solidly presenting the case of Punjab in the interstate meet convened by the Union Water Resources Minister Gajendra Singh Shekhawat, the Chief Minister said that the state needs more than 54 MAF water to cater to its irrigational needs. However, he said that the situation is so grim that Punjab only has around 14 MAF of water, which it is providing to the food growers. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that in such a scenario there is no question of sharing even a drop of water with any other states therefore Punjab vehemently opposes the construction of SYL.

The Chief Minister firmly said that Satluj river has already dried up and there is no question of sharing even a single drop of water from it. He categorically said that Punjab has no surplus water to share with Haryana and reassessment of availability of water is required as per international norms. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that Punjab's 76.5% blocks (117 out of 153) are over exploited where the stage of ground water extraction is more than 100%, whereas in Haryana only 61.5% (88 out of 143) are over exploited. The Chief Minister said that the water crisis can never be ignored due to which the state will oppose any move to construct the SYL tooth and nail. Showing deep concern over the gravity of the emerging situation following the fast depleting water table, Bhagwant Singh Mann said that it is really pathetic to learn that the same high powered motors that are used to extract oil in Dubai and other Gulf nations are being used for gushing out ground water in the state. He said that in such an alarming situation how construction of SYL canal can be allowed for sharing of waters of the state.

The Chief Minister reiterated that the state has no spare water to share with any other state so instead of Satluj Yamuna Link (SYL) canal, the project should be now reconceived as Yamuna Satluj Link (YSL). He said that Satluj river has already dried up and there is no question of sharing even a single drop of water from it. Rather, Bhagwant Singh Mann said that water from Ganga and Yamuna should be supplied to Punjab through Satluj river adding that he has raised this issue with the Union government too.

The Chief Minister said that the state Government has emphatically presented the issue of the less availability of water and it has been recorded too in the decision of the Apex Court. He said that in the coming hearings too Punjab will solidly present its case in the Supreme Court of India to protect the rights of our coming generations. Bhagwant Singh Mann said that the Punjab government is duty bound to ensure that the interests of the state and its people are safeguarded by all means and no stone will be left unturned for it.

The Chief Minister also said that though these states always claim for their right on water of the state but when Punjab was flooded due to excess water from the hilly areas these states had refused to take water from Punjab.

Punjab culture is not merely determined by participation in Republic Day Parade: Jakhar

BUREAU
CHANDIGARH, DEC 28

The culture and Virsa of Punjab is not determined by whether Punjab Tableau is showcased in the Republic Day parade or not. Our heritage is immersed in supreme sacrifices and safe guarding our borders for a millennium, said Punjab BJP president Sunil Jakhar here on Thursday.

He added that erstwhile Punjab needs no publicity as the duo Kejriwal and Mann would solicit who had the audacity to put there photos on the tableau. Addressing a press conference at the state party headquarter, Jakhar said that every Punjabi is proud of his heritage and culture. We have for a millennium lived on borders and contributed hugely to safe guard our borders. The nation has never been oblivious to our valour. However Bhagwant Singh Mann as a Chief Minister is selectively not choosing to tell the "real truth" on why the Tableau was cancelled, he said.

The reason which has been furnished by the government is that the tableau had photos of Arvind Kejriwal and Bhagwant Singh Mann. "It is making mockery of our virsa" as never in the history has any Chief Minister put his picture on the Tableau. Unfortunately Mann and Kejriwal are obsessed for publicity and have no respect for, responsibility or integrity whatsoever to put the interests of the state first, said Jakhar.

The Prime Minister Narendra Modi who has demonstrated his commitment and sensitivity towards Punjab and Sikhs declared 26 December as "Vir Bal Diwas", can not be doubted for his commitment. Every consulate and embassy held programs to commemorate the Sahibzada's supreme sacrifice. More than 390 Member Parliament's participated in functions held over all over India. 137 airports, seven thousand railway stations and lakhs of petrol stations exhibited the sacrifices of the Sahibzada's. Over 95 lakh teachers have held programs to educate the children on this historic sacrifice, said Jakhar.

Airports to adopt latest technology for faster screening of passengers

LUDHIANA (SHARMA): Bureau of Civil Aviation Security (BCAS), aviation security regulator in the country, has issued AvSec Circular providing minimum specifications for Pre-Embarkation Security Check-point X-ray baggage scanners based on Computed Tomography technology. This would result in faster screening of hand baggage of passengers without removing electronic devices.

This has been stated by Minister of State for Civil Aviation Gen (Dr) VK Singh (Retd) in reply to a question on installation of security scanners at airports asked by MP (Rajya Sabha) from Ludhiana Sanjeev Arora in the recently concluded winter session of Rajya Sabha. It may be mentioned here that the main reason you have to remove your laptop from your bag is because its battery and other mechanical components are too dense for X-rays to penetrate effectively – especially if the scanning system is old. The same goes for power cords and other devices such as tablets and cameras. With these items in your bag, security officials cannot use the screened image to determine whether a risk is present. They will have to flag the bag for a physical search, which slows everything down. It is easier if all devices are removed in the first place. Some airports have upgraded 3D scanning that allows travelers to pass their bags through security without having to remove their laptops.

The Ram temple in Ayodhya is an important entity that cannot be ignored or underestimated by any serious observer of Indian public life. The inauguration ceremony, which is scheduled to be held on January 22, 2024 has already become a political issue. The Bharatiya Janata Party and, for that matter, the Hindutva groups are keen to celebrate this occasion as a historic event. The party has been actively campaigning for the temple since the late 1980s. It is obvious that the BJP leaders would like to commemorate the inauguration ceremony as a kind of political achievement.

On the other hand, the opponents of Hindutva politics, especially the non-BJP parties, are a bit confused. They have not yet taken a clear position on this issue. Their anxiety, it seems, is strategic. They want to appropriate Hindutva while opposing the BJP. Apparently, no one wants to be known as anti-Hindu just before the Lok Sabha polls.

These parties used to describe themselves as secular to counter the BJP's communalism, particularly after the demolition of the Babri masjid on December 6, 1992. This secular-communal binary gave them an advantage: it enabled them to remain silent on the temple issue for almost three decades. The success of the BJP post-2014, however, destabilised this political equilibrium. Hindutva-driven nationalism emerged as an electorally-viable narrative, forcing the Opposition to redefine its stand on critical issues such as the Ram temple.

The political class, as it appears, is going to rely entirely on a standard narrative of the Ram temple, which does not have any space to accommodate India's Muslims. This standard narrative has become more profound after the Supreme Court judgment on the Ayodhya title suit in 2019. The Hindutva groups referred to the court judgment as a kind of legal validity for their version of the Babri masjid case. The non-BJP parties, especially the Congress, also changed their position. They accepted the verdict and gave their support for the construction of the Ram temple. As a result, an impression was created that the apex court had eventually recognised the theory that the Babri masjid had been built after the desecration of the birthplace of Lord Ram. The standard narrative of the Ram temple is based on three arguments. First, the Ram temple is portrayed as an outcome of a long historical struggle. This claim is not entirely new. The Hindutva version of the Ayodhya conflict revolves around the destruction of a Hindu temple by Babar's commander, Mir Baqi, to build the Babri masjid.

It's beauty pageant for elephants in Nepal

Tip-toes walk, scribbles all over the body, eyeliners, nail polishes and cleanliness; it's the beauty contest of Elephants in Nepal. Around a dozen elephants contested on Wednesday to be named the beautiful amongst them which drew hundreds of people to the festival of tuskers locally called 'Hatti Mahotsav' in the tourist town of Sauraha.

Five judges examined the elephants on the criteria of cleanliness, discipline, obedience, decorations, teeth and walks to mark each of them.

"We had nine criteria to announce an elephant as the winner. The most important thing to consider at the time of judgement is the body structure of an elephant, followed by decorative by the Mahout, tippy toes walk, obedience, cleanliness of nails and body parts are the criteria for markings," Binod Timalaina, one of the judges of the elephant beauty pageant told ANI.

The judges rated each elephant with a score of 50 in each of the existing 9 categories. The highest point-earning elephant is announced the winner who is then provided with a special treat for the day.

It's the duty of Mahout to prepare elephants for the show. This takes a long procedure and preparation.

"For the elephant festival's beauty contest we carried out the work of beautification of elephant, made it practice the moves and orders, made it look attractive and beautiful," Dilip Mahato, a mahout or the caretaker of the elephant in Sauraha told ANI.

On Wednesday, 'Rimjhinkali' the elephant belonging to Dilip Mahato, won the title of most beautiful elephant by getting 400 out of 450 points. It takes at least an hour for mahouts to prepare an elephant for show with paintings all over the body and a proper bath, which also takes the same time.

In Mahato's experience, it takes a lot of effort to get along with the elephants and look after them. Their routine usually starts before sunrise and continues throughout the day.

"It takes a lot of effort to take care of elephants. We usually wake up at 5 am in the morning every day, and clean the house-'Thaan' of elephant. After a quick shower of the elephant we then set off for the jungle to collect fodders, which is later given to them in the evening. We come back home by 8 am in the morning then after which the elephants are served with grains and other items of their liking," Mahato briefed ANI about his schedule with his elephant.

This year's star elephant 'Rimjhinkali' got the treat of delicious food items such as sugarcane, banana, papaya and other varieties whereas the owner of the elephant is awarded with cash prize. It took about 15 days for Dilip to prepare his elephant for the festival this year.

"It doesn't take a year to prepare them for the contest. An elephant is ready to take part in the contest within 15 days of training. This year events relating to elephants has been reduced otherwise previously there used to be football and other sports but this year all those pressuring games have remained off the chart which in a way is welcoming. Now the elephants don't have to endure much pain and trouble," Dilip shared.

Being held after a hiatus of three years, the latest edition of the festival has made changes owing to the protest by the animal rights activists. The popular polo, football and races played by elephants have been kept off the schedule leaving the beauty pageant and picnic of tuskers.

The unusual sport of elephant polo had remained the most popular event of the festival which has continued to be held every winter on the grass field of Sauraha.

A scion of horse polo, the Elephant polo was first introduced in Nepal on 1982 after James Manclark started the pachyderm version of the sport with fellow enthusiast Jim Edwards. The first games were played on a grass airfield in Meghauli, which is located on the edge of the Chitwan National Park.

The game is played by driving elephants using trainers called 'mahouts'. Initially, a soccer ball was used in the game. But after elephants started smashing the balls, they were replaced with standard polo balls.

The sticks used in the game are made of bamboo and have a standard polo mallet on the end. This unusual sport had been attracting hordes of foreigners to the jungle safari destination of Chitwan.

In the polo game, nine elephants (four from each side and one referee), were each ridden by a mahout and a player. Animal rights activists say that the mahout forces the elephant to run after the ball, threatening pain and punishment if the elephant does not respond accordingly.

It was in December 2018 when the polo was held for the last time in Nepal. It was marred by criticism and exposed animal cruelty to the world. However, despite the absence of popular sports, it's charm hasn't faded out.

Needs of 40 per cent of children in Afghanistan remain unmet: Report

In its most recent study, the International Rescue Committee (IRC) stated that 40 per cent of children in Afghanistan do not meet their needs, emphasising that one-third of the country's youngsters are involved in labour work, according to Khaama Press.

According to the organisation, many youngsters have been forced into onerous employment by their families as a result of growing poverty following the emergence of the Taliban administration.

The report, of the International Rescue Committee stated that humanitarian groups in Afghanistan have failed to meet even the most basic needs of Afghan children.

Previously, the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) declared that children in Afghanistan are forced to work in hazardous conditions to survive. According to a 2022 report, 131,400 children, some as young as five years old, have been separated from their families and are subjected to violence and abuse in northern Afghanistan, reported Khaama Press.

According to the UN, children's access to basic services in Afghanistan has been hampered by prolonged conflicts, displacement, severe poverty, food insecurity, a lack of livelihood opportunities, and a lack of investment, and there has been an increase in recruitment, abuse, and sexual violence against them.

It's worth noting that the Taliban administration has disputed the UN report and has emphasised the importance of children's rights in the country.

Meanwhile, as poverty grows in Afghanistan, the number of youngsters, seen working on the streets in the country has seen a drastic increase in number, raising concerns among human rights and children's organisations.

China's 'reunification' with Taiwan is 'inevitable': Xi Jinping

Chinese leader Xi Jinping has claimed that the "reunification" of Taiwan with China is "inevitable," emphasising Beijing's longstanding stance ahead of a crucial election in Taiwan next month, CNN reported. Xi made these remarks during an address marking the 130th anniversary of the birth of Mao Zedong, the founder of the People's Republic of China. "The realisation of the complete reunification with the motherland is an inevitable course of development, is righteous and what the people want. The motherland must and will be reunified," said Xi. Xi's statements reiterate China's claim over Taiwan, a self-ruled island democracy, and align with his broader goal to enhance China's global power and stature. The timing is significant as Taiwan approaches a critical presidential vote, where political parties' positions on relations with China often serve as a gauge of public sentiment on Beijing, as reported by CNN.

Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen, who has faced increased pressure from Beijing during her tenure, is widely perceived as strengthening Taiwan's unofficial ties with the United States. The leading candidate for the Democratic Progressive Party, Vice President Lai Ching-te, is currently ahead in the polls but is not favoured by Chinese officials.

China's Communist Party considers Taiwan its own territory, despite never having controlled it. While emphasising a preference for peaceful "reunification," Chinese officials have not ruled out the use of force. Xi's speech included a veiled warning, urging the promotion of peaceful cross-strait ties and preventing any attempts to separate Taiwan from China. Taiwan remains a sensitive issue in US-China relations. During a recent summit with US President Joe Biden, Xi asserted that China's "reunification" with Taiwan is "unstoppable." The United States maintains an unofficial relationship with Taiwan, recognizing China's position that Taiwan is part of its territory. However, the US is obligated by law to provide Taiwan with the means to defend itself. The historical roots of the Taiwan-China relationship trace back to 1949 when General Chiang Kai-shek fled with his nationalist forces to Taiwan after Mao's Red Army gained control in the Chinese Civil War.

POEM

Last Curtain

I know that the day will come when my sight of this earth shall be lost, and life will take its leave in silence,

Rabindranath Tagore

drawing the last curtain over my eyes. Yet stars will watch at night, and morning rise as before, and hours heave like sea waves casting up pleasures and pains. When I think of this end of my moments, the barrier of the moments breaks and I see by the light of death thy world with its careless treasures. Rare is its lowliest seat, rare is its meanest of lives.

Discovery of brain cells raises hopes for fertility treatments

Researchers from Nagoya University's Graduate School of Bioagricultural Sciences and Japan's National Institute of Physiological Sciences have demonstrated how a specific type of neuron in the brain influences the release of hormones that control ovarian function in females, such as follicular development and ovulation. These discoveries, published in the journal Scientific Reports, could help researchers better understand and treat reproductive diseases in both animals and humans.

Kisspeptin neurons in the brain regulate the release of hypothalamic gonadotropin-releasing hormone (GnRH) and pituitary follicle-stimulating hormone/luteinizing hormone (LH). This process is important for reproduction, as pituitary hormones stimulate the ovaries to perform their reproductive functions. Examples include follicular development and ovulation in all mammals, including humans.

There are two main areas of the brain involved in the process: the arcuate nucleus

(ARC), in which kisspeptin neurons maintain the regular rhythmic (pulsatile) secretion of GnRH/LH that maintains normal follicular development and sex steroid production; and the anteroventral periventricular nucleus (AVPV), in which kisspeptin neurons trigger a surge of GnRH/LH that leads to ovulation. The researchers focused on the fact that kisspeptin neurons in the ARC produce and respond to dynorphin, an inhibitory substance. "Kisspeptin neurons in the ARC express both dynorphin and its receptor, whereas those in the AVPV express the receptor only, suggesting a particular role of such kisspeptin neurons in fertilization," Mayuko Nagae, a postdoctoral fellow, and Yoshihisa Uenoyama, an associate professor at Nagoya University in Japan and corresponding author of the paper, explained in a joint statement. "However, the exact role of dynorphin and its receptor in the regulation of kisspeptin neurons was not clearly understood." To investigate this, the researchers genetically modified female rats to delete Kiss1, a gene that codes for kisspeptin, only in neurons that expressed the dynorphin receptor. They found that the genetically modified rats with deleted Kiss1 in dynorphin receptor-expressing cells had only 3% of kisspeptin neurons in the ARC and 50% in the AVPV. The rats were still fertile, but they had a longer estrous cycle, lower ovarian weight, and fewer pups than normal rats.

The results indicate that kisspeptin neurons with dynorphin receptors are important for normal female rat reproduction, as they allow proper hormone secretion and ovulation. "This is the first report to show that kisspeptin neurons receiving direct input of dynorphin are needed to fully generate the GnRH/LH pulse and surge in female rats," says Professor Hiroko Tsukamura from Nagoya University, the principal investigator of the research group and another corresponding author of the paper.

Professor Tsukamura is excited about the prospect of more studies to understand the molecular mechanism that controls kisspeptin neuronal activity. She says, "Our findings can help our understanding of the central mechanism underlying reproduction and have applications in the treatment of ovarian disorders in livestock and infertility in humans."

Here are some healthy habits to control sugar levels

Diabetes is a lifestyle-related disease that cannot be cured but can be managed. It is caused by abnormally high blood glucose levels. Pancreatic insulin is responsible for maintaining glucose levels in the blood. Diabetes is caused by a lack of insulin, insufficient insulin synthesis, or an inability to appropriately utilize insulin. Studies reveal that there is no specific treatment for diabetes, but that a range of lifestyle changes need to be incorporated into daily life. Along with these lifestyle changes, sustainable prevention plans need to be put in place to help not just manage but even prevent diabetes. "Prevention is better than cure; Ayurvedic treatments along with lifestyle changes can help manage the severe effects of diabetes by using natural ingredients," reveals Dr Kriti Soni, Head - R&D, Kapiva, Bengaluru. "These treatments can help in reducing blood sugar levels to non-diabetic levels and provide a healing approach right to the root of the disease."

Manage Stress Stress is becoming a prominent cause of cardiovascular disease. People are frequently exposed to high stress at work and at home, which needs to be checked. Meditation can aid in stress management and reduction. Chanting and breathing exercises can also help you maintain healthy blood sugar levels. Ensure A Healthy Diet Establishing a good eating regimen is regarded as one of the fundamental strategies in managing diabetes. Eating foods with a lower glycemic index would be one of the dietary modifications. This includes eating whole grains and healthy fats while avoiding processed sugar juices and red meat. Incorporate Healthy Juices Into Your Day Ayurvedic juices with their blend of authentic herbs help in managing diabetes naturally. Apart from managing blood sugar levels, these juices help in boosting energy levels, regulating carbohydrate metabolism, and supporting overall digestion. Maintain A Healthy Weight People with type 2 diabetes benefit greatly from maintaining a healthy weight. Even for persons with pre-diabetes, maintaining a healthy weight might help prevent the illness from developing. Losing weight aids in the regulation of blood sugar levels, hence alleviating diabetic symptoms. Get Regular Physical Activity In our busy and hectic lives, exercising regularly or undertaking physical activities even for an hour could help delay the early onset of diabetes. It becomes very important to break the cycle of your stressful routine to avoid the consequent medical traumas such as hypertension and high cholesterol.

in pivotal roles, has not only earned praise for its suspenseful storyline but also for the stellar performances. Now, Sneha Singh Sisodia has shared insights about a particular scene that captured everyone's interest – the fight sequence. She disclosed that she independently designed the fight sequence, adding a personal touch to it. "We'd planned a day to shoot the fight sequence, and had appointed a Fight Master for the same. However, unfortunately, the Fight Master couldn't turn up, and we decided to perform it on our own, certainly with a lot of precautions, guidance and supervision," Sneha shared. She added, "I took the charge of choreographing the sequence on my own, as I had performed fight sequences in my previous projects as well. While I had a bit of experience, it was completely new for my co-star. I briefed her and helped her in understanding the nitty-gritties of a fight sequence. We gave our shot, and everyone applauded our efforts. Pulling off the sequence without a fight master was challenging, but we managed to put our best foot forward." While Sujata is a housewife, there's something she is hiding from her husband that adds depth and twists to the series. It's something out of my comfort zone, as I have a sporty personality. I kept thinking, 'If I would be able to justify the character or not. But the character arc was beautifully defined and I knew I had to take this up. I'd agree it was a challenging task for me, but the story and characterization caught my attention." Revealing how she prepped up for the character, and who's her inspiration, Sneha said, "Before performing on screen, I get into the skin of the character, understanding the character completely.

KALAYAT: In Balu, the largest village of the sub-division, consumers are facing huge problems due to severe shortage of bank staff. In this regard, the villagers have written a letter to the AGM of Punjab National Bank and the Chief Minister requesting them to fulfill the shortage of employees. Gurudev, resident of village Balu, said that village Balu is the largest village of Kalayat sub-division which has three panchayats. The population of the village is about 18 thousand and transactions of 6 nearby villages also take place through this bank. Residents of all the villages connected to this bank leave their agricultural and domestic work and come to the bank only to feel disappointed. The villagers have demanded that the vacant posts of staff in the bank should be filled without any delay so that people can get bank services fast.

SHORT TALKS

ISL: FC Goa target unbeaten first half of season as they face NorthEast United Guwahati : Having remained undefeated across the first nine games of their Indian Super League (ISL) campaign, FC Goa would aim for a similar result when they take on NorthEast United on Friday. If they succeed, the Gaurs would wrap up the first half of the season with an unblemished record, for the first time in their history. Since the appointment of head coach Manolo Marquez in June, the Men in Orange have done remarkably well across competitions, reaching the semi-finals of the 2023 Durand Cup before emerging as the leaders in ISL standings early on in the season. With 23 points from nine matches, FC Goa have won seven times so far in the league, drawing the remaining two games. NorthEast United, meanwhile, may be in eighth place currently - but they have had a negative result in the form of losses only on four different occasions across the 11 matches they played so far. And as the Gaurs are already aware from their recent encounter against them in the Durand Cup which ended in a 2-2 draw, the Highlanders do possess enough firepower to derail any opposition on their day, as the likes of Jamshedpur FC and Chennaiyin FC discovered lately. At the pre-match press conference on Wednesday, FC Goa's head coach began with addressing their loss of Victor Rodriguez, who has been ruled out for the rest of the season due to injury. "I know him (Victor) since a long time ago, I was his coach around 12 years ago in Spain. He is one of the best players in the ISL, and one of our best too if not the absolute best.

Elgar, Burger, Rabada shine as South Africa win big against India in 1st Test

CENTURION : Nandre Burger's sensational spell combined with South Africa's all-rounded performance secured a win by an innings and 32 runs for the Proteas against India in the first Test on Thursday at the SuperSport Park.

Burger with his lethal bouncers and precise line and length pushed India batters back against the wall.

A game that seemed to be headed for the fourth day was concluded on the third day itself. India batters were no match for South Africa pacers as the pace trio of Kagiso Rabada, Marco Jansen and Burger ran through India's entire batting line-up.

Virat Kohli was the sole batter who knew how to churn out runs on a surface which proved to be too much for the rest of the batters.

After a dismal start to their second innings, South Africa struck India hard by removing Shreyas Iyer and KL Rahul in quick succession.

After Burger removed Ravichandran Ashwin for a golden duck, India's fate was more or less sealed. Jasprit Bumrah's runout following a brilliant effort in the field by Dean Elgar caused a mood of dismay. A brilliant review from the South Africa team saw Mohammed Siraj gloving the ball straight to the wicketkeeper.

Prasidh Krishna struggled hard but Jansen got the better of Kohli (76) which brought an end to India's struggle within the first three days.

Earlier in the day, India skipper Rohit Sharma's dreadful run in South Africa, especially against Kagiso Rabada continued. Rabada's inward angling delivery left Rohit baffled as he failed to read the line which resulted in the ball crashing into the stumps.

The veteran right-handed batter got removed for an eight-ball duck and this dismissal marked his 7th in 11 innings against Rabada. Yashasvi Jaiswal tried to leave the delivery, but the ball glanced off his glove and went straight to the wicketkeeper.

Shubam Gill looked set to spend a good amount of time on the field but his attempt to play a shot across the straight line failed. Marco Jansen picked his first as Gill departed with a score of 26(37).

India trailed by 101 runs. The visitors looked in the perfect spot to end South Africa's innings quickly after bagging their 7th wicket in the first session.

But the tail-enders along with Jansen accumulated a couple of more runs which took their score to 408. Jasprit Bumrah removed the final two batters leaving Jansen alone with an unbeaten score of 84*.

He received a standing ovation from the fans and Dean Elgar came in to greet the batter before he entered the dressing room. Earlier in the innings, Elgar's farewell series continued to showcase the perfect combination of aggressiveness combined with temperament.

The left-handed batter scored 185 off 287 deliveries which consisted of 28 boundaries. Shardul Thakur eventually removed the batter before he could reach a much-deserved double century.

AUS vs PAK, 2nd Test: Marsh misses out on century, Aussies lead by 241 runs

MELBOURNE : Half-centuries from Mitchell Marsh and Steve Smith led Australia's fightback after early wickets, with their lead increasing to 241 runs at the end of the day three of the second Test against Pakistan at the Melbourne Cricket Ground (MCG) on Thursday.

At the end of day three, Australia was 187/6, with Alex Carey (16*) unbeaten.

Aussies started the session at 107/4, with Marsh (57*) and Smith (26*) unbeaten.

In the final session, Smith and Marsh continued to counterattack.

Australia reached to 150-run mark in 44.1 overs. The 153-run partnership between Smith and Marsh came to an end as Marsh was caught by Agha Salman at slips, with Mir getting his third wicket. Marsh was gone for 96 in 130 balls, with 13 fours. Australia was 169/5. Smith carried on building a partnership with Alex Carey. Smith reached his half-century in 153 balls, with three fours. However, he fell on the last ball of the day for 50 in 176 balls to Shaheen. On that note, the day ended.

Mir (3/27) and Shaheen (3/58) were among the top bowlers for Pakistan for the day.

Earlier, a counter-attacking half-century by Mitchell Marsh and his partnership with Steve Smith helped Australia overcome early loss of wickets and swell their lead to 161 runs at the end of the second session of day three of the second Test against Pakistan at the Melbourne Cricket Ground (MCG) on Thursday.

At Tea, Australia was 107/4, with Marsh (57*) and Steve Smith (26*) unbeaten.

Starting this session on 6/2, with David Warner (1*) joined by Travis Head, Mir Hamza removed them for six and zero respectively. Australia sunk to 16/4.

Then Smith joined forces with Marsh. Marsh did not waste much time starting a counterattack, smashing Aamer Jamal for three fours in the 14th over to put some pressure back on bowlers.

Australia reached the 50-run mark in 15.2 overs as Marsh smashed Jamal for the fourth boundary.

Smith played the anchor role on the other end, helping Marsh express himself. The duo reached 50-run stand in 87 balls.

In later overs, Marsh went after Pakistan's lead pacer Shaheen Shah Afridi, smashing him for some boundaries. The all-rounder registered his third successive fifty of the series in 70 balls, with eight fours. In 28.4 overs, Australia reached the 100-run mark. The duo helped Australia end the session without a loss of wicket. Earlier, a five-wicket haul by skipper Pat Cummins put Australia in a commanding position before the visitors clawed their way into the contest as Shaheen Shah Afridi struck two crucial blows to rock the hosts early on the opening session of day three of the second Test against

Year Ender: Indian Junior Women's Hockey Team recalls memorable 2023

NEW DELHI, DEC 28 (UNI) The Indian Junior Women's Hockey Team had some memorable outings in 2023, with their dearest memories emanating from the Women's Junior Asia Cup in Japan.

The Team defeated Korea 2-1 in the Final to lift the Junior Asia Cup trophy for the very first time in India's history.

The first international outing for the team was in the India U21 Tour of South Africa in February. The Indian Team defeated the South African U-21 team in all three games and were held to a 4-4 draw by South Africa's 'A' team in their last match.

The unbeaten Indian Junior Women's Hockey Team was then well poised to battle the best Asian Teams in the Women's Junior Asia Cup, following a period of intense training.

An 18-member squad flew to Kakamigahara, Gifu Prefecture, Japan, and emerged as Champions of the Women's Junior Asia Cup 2023 by defeating Korea with a score of 2-1 in a captivating Final match.

All the 18 members of this triumphant Indian Junior Women's Hockey Team were part of the Target Olympic Podium Scheme (TOPS) National Centres of Excellence (NCOE), the Hockey India sources said.

Reminiscing the swell of emotions after lifting the women's Junior Asia Cup 2023, Indian Junior Women's Hockey Team Captain Preeti said, "We were elated to bring back the trophy, and the fact that we were the first group from India to win the Women's Junior Asia Cup 2023 was the icing on the cake."

"Something clicked in the squad back then, we were playing free-flowing hockey, scoring loads of goals in the process, and we were destined to win. The love and support we received upon returning was overwhelming and I am thankful we got to experience that," she said.

"No ego, not a dictatorship": Alyssa Healy on Australia's captaincy approach

MUMBAI: Ahead of the first ODI against India, Australian skipper Alyssa Healy shed light on her approach as a captain, saying that it is not about ego or dictatorship but rather encouraging the next generation of leaders from the group to have a voice. The first ODI of the three-match series between India and Australia will take place in Mumbai on Thursday. Healy took over the captaincy from multi-time World Cup winner Meg Lanning, who shockingly announced her retirement from international cricket in November. This comes after Australia lost the one-off Test to India by eight wickets. "There is no ego in me being captain. It's not a dictatorship. I am not here to tell anybody how to play. It's more about encouraging the next generation of leaders within our group, and we have got some amazing senior players who are captaining domestic teams. We have got the next generation of superstars coming through, closing that gap and ensuring that they can lead themselves and drive the way they want to play the game. I am encouraging everyone to have their voice. That is important to make this team successful for the next 10-15 years," said Healy to JioCinema. On taking over from Lanning as captain, Healy said that they are huge shoes to fill.
