CAPE TOWN : India won Cape Town Test by defeating South africa by seven wickets on the second day of final and second Test here on Thursday and level the series by 1-1. Chasing a target of 79 visitors lost their three wickets . Earlier Jasprit Bumrah's six-wicket haul which made South Africa succumb to a total of 176 on Day 2 of the second Test in Newlands.

South Africa's 176 meant India need to chase down 79 runs to level the series within two days. The hosts resumed the innings on Day 2 with a score of 62/3 trailing by 36 runs.

The first session once again saw wickets falling at a brisk pace but this time Aiden Markram stood up for his team and scored a quick-fire knock of 106 off 103 deliveries to give South Africa a total to defend.

Markram stepped up on a surface that assisted the pacers offering them inconsistent bounce which kept the batters on their toes. While Bumrah cleaned up the other end, Markram produced some beautiful shots to find the fence. His game-changing knock included 17 boundaries and two maximums which kept some pressure on the Indian pacers. Markram completed his ton with a beautifully struck boundary in his 99th delivery of his innings. ED summons are "false", says Kejriwal

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, JAN 4

Alleging that the Enforcement Directorate (ED) has sent a "false summons" to him, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said that he has explained to the ED why their summons is illegal adding that his biggest strength and asset is his "honesty."

Addressing a press conference on Thursday, Delhi's Chief Minister said, "In the last two years, all the agencies of BJP have conducted many raids but not a single penny was found. If there is corruption then where is the money? AAP leaders are kept in jail in such fake cases. Now BJP wants to arrest me. My biggest strength and asset is my honesty."

Questioning the timing of the notice just before the 2024 Lok Sabha elections, the Delhi CM said that the Bharatiya Janata Party wants to stop him from campaigning for the Lok Sabha elections.

"My lawyers told me that the summons was illegal, I wrote the question and sent it to ED. Should I obey an unlawful summon? If a legal summons comes, I will comply with it. Why am I being called just before the Lok Sabha elections? Eight months ago I was called by CBI, I went and gave all the answers. Today they want to stop me from campaigning for the Lok Sabha elections," he added.

AAP chief further said that he has always fought for the country and till his last, he will fight for the country.

"Today, opposition leaders are being included in the BJP through ED. Whoever joins his party, all his matters get resolved. Today honest leaders like Manish Sisodia, Sanjay Singh and Vijay Nair have been put in jail. I have always fought for the country. Every breath of mine is for the country. We have to save the country together. I am fighting against them with all my heart, I need your support," he said.

Delhi Chief Minister skipped the third summons issued to him by the ED on Wednesday. The ED issued a third summons to CM Kejriwal on December 22 last year, in connection with the alleged Delhi liquor scam case, asking him to appear before the agency on January 3.

Earlier on Wednesday, Kejriwal, in his reply to the ED, expressed his readiness to cooperate with the investigation but declined to appear on the summoned date, calling the notice "illegal."

Kejriwal further questioned the agency for not responding to his earlier replies when the summons was sent to him and he had raised certain queries on the nature of the agency's investigation.

Amit Shah urges farmers to make India self-reliant in pulses production by Dec 2027

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, JAN 4

Union Home Minister and Minister of Cooperation Amit Shah has appealed to the farmers to focus on the production of pulses to make India self-reliant in this sector before December 2027.

Taking another step towards Prime Minister Narendra Modi's vision of "Atmanirbhar Bharat" (self-reliant India), Shah launched the 'e-samridhi portal' for registration, purchase and payment of 'tur dal' producing farmers here today.

"Produce pulses and make the country self-reliant in this sector. It is necessary to make India self-reliant in pulse production. I assure you that before December 2027, India will become self-reliant in the production of pulses," Shah said at the event.

"Beginning by you is going to bring drastic changes in the field of agriculture", Shah assured the farmers.

"It's a guarantee from Modi that if you register with the National Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Federation of India (NAFED) and the National Cooperative Consumers' Federation of India Ltd (NCCF), we will purchase your pulses. It is the responsibility of the Modi government to purchase your pulses on MSP (Minimum Support Price)," Shah said, adding that the current 'tur dal' MSP rate is Rs 7,000 compared to Rs 4,350 in 2014-15, a 65 per cent increase.

Addressing the national symposium organized on self-reliance in pulses, Shah said the farmer-centric initiative aims to empower 'tur dal' producers with better prices through procurement, streamlined processes and direct bank transfers by NAFED and NCCF to boost domestic pulses production and reducing import dependence.

"Under this, the buffer stock of pulses will be purchased from the farmers registered on the portals of NAFED and NCCF as per the guidelines of the Department of Consumer Affairs, Government of India and MSP or market price, whichever is higher, will be paid to the farmers," Shah said.

"The process of registration, purchase and payment on the portal will be available on a single medium. Portal registration of farmers can be done directly or through the Primary Agricultural Credit Society (PACS) and Farmers Producers Organisation (FPO). The payment to the farmers will be made by NAFED directly into their mapped bank account and no agency will be involved in between. The entire process is farmer-centric in which farmers themselves can track the activities from registration to payment," said the Home Minister.

This initiative complements the "Atmanirbhar Bharat" campaign, Shah added, pointing "the multilingual electronic portal https://esamridhi.in will connect farmers, NAFED and concerned government departments, streamlining processes for better accessibility."

The launch of the 'tur dal' procurement portal symbolizes the government's comprehensive vision of a new green revolution that will include pulses and oilseeds along with traditional crops like wheat and rice, the Minister said, adding "this will be beneficial for Indian agriculture and the bright future of millions of farmers towards self-reliance in all food categories."

Former Congress Union Minister Pawan Bansal visited Mani Majra and learned about these problems faced by the residents. One of the city's most beautiful parks, Shivalik Garden, is in a dilapidated state. He also assessed a situation where neither drinking water nor toilet facilities were available.The residents of Mani Majra informed Pawan Bansal about the condition of a bridge built over a drain near the Sheetal Mata Temple, through which sewage water flows, and the administration has neglected this for many years. This has worsened conditions, even neglecting the development works done during the Congress era. Pawan Bansal has appealed to Chandigarh's administration to focus especially on the development works in Mani Majra so that the city dwellers can live comfortably.

Hour of triumph

To a small but influential section of Indians, soaked in either cultural cosmopolitanism or political progressivism, the excitement over the Ram temple in Ayodhya is inextricably linked to the forthcoming general election. Such a perception is valid if it is assumed that contrived Hindu religiosity with an unmistakable political thrust arrived on the Indian landscape with the coming to power of Prime Minister Narendra Modi. Countless books and articles have been written over the past decade documenting the supposed advent of majoritarian rule in India and the way the Bharatiya Janata Party has disfigured the 'idea of India'. At the heart of these agonised outpourings is the conviction that what is being promoted as the Hindu inheritance is a collation of kitsch, so far removed from the tasteful, personalised religion of our grandmothers. Lord Ram, it will be loudly claimed by those whose faith begins and ends with their Tanjore painting collections, resides in the 'heart' and not in a temple consecrated by Modi.

The fury over the transformation of an anarchic cluster of localised faiths and abstruse philosophies into what Romila Thapar debunked as "syndicated Hinduism" in the late-1980s, at the time when the Vishwa Hindu Parishad was encouraging Ram bhakts to send consecrated bricks for a proposed temple in Ayodhya, has been building up steadily. Initially, during the high noon of Nehruvian domination in the 1960s, the angry sadhus and their followers who tried to storm Parliament demanding an immediate nationwide ban on cow slaughter were the object of mockery. In intellectual circles dominated by a self-serving alliance of social democrats and Marxists, Hindu nationalists were relegated to the Hindi and Sanskrit departments of universities, pig-tailed curiosities from another age. Hindutva was also electorally inconsequential and didn't threaten the efficacy of the secular consensus that had been built by the Congress. Atal Bihari Vajpayee was a spectacular orator and a great parliamentarian, but he was dubbed the 'right man in the wrong party'.

The effects of this snarky condescension were quite devastating for the self-esteem of the Hindu nationalists. When the erstwhile Jana Sangh group was edged out of the Janata Party in 1980 on the issue of their association with the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh, the new party tried to prove it was the 'real' inheritor of the 1977 legacy. On the positive side, it consciously moved away from being a Hindi-Hindu party and tried to strike roots all over India — an approach that is now paying dividends for the BJP.

Virtual gang rape of girl's 'avatar'

"Although she did not sustain any physical injuries, she may have suffered trauma similar to someone who had been raped in real life," police sources told the Daily Mail. "There is an emotional and psychological impact on the victim that is longer-term than any physical injuries," a senior officer familiar with the case said.The UK authorities fear that it might be impossible to prosecute the accused under existing laws, which define sexual assault as 'physical touching in a sexual manner without consent'. The investigation has also raised questions about whether police should be using time and limited resources to investigate metaverse crimes while struggling with a substantial backlog of in-person rape cases, according to the New York Post.
But, UK Home Secretary James Cleverly defended the trailblazing VR rape probe.

In what seems to be the first of its kind case, the British Police are investigating an alleged gang rape of a girl in a virtual reality game, New York Post reported.

The alleged victim, identified only as a girl under 16, was wearing a virtual reality (VR) headset in an immersive game when her avatar -- an animated representation of her -- was raped by several men, New York Post reported citing Daily Mail.

"Although she did not sustain any physical injuries, she may have suffered trauma similar to someone who had been raped in real life," police sources told the Daily Mail. "There is an emotional and psychological impact on the victim that is longer-term than any physical injuries," a senior officer familiar with the case said.The UK authorities fear that it might be impossible to prosecute the accused under existing laws, which define sexual assault as 'physical touching in a sexual manner without consent'.

The investigation has also raised questions about whether police should be using time and limited resources to investigate metaverse crimes while struggling with a substantial backlog of in-person rape cases, according to the New York Post. But, UK Home Secretary James Cleverly defended the trailblazing VR rape probe.

"I know it is easy to dismiss this as being not real, but the whole point of these virtual environments is they are incredibly immersive," the New York Post quoted Cleverly as saying to the LBC platform. "And we are talking about a child here, and a child has gone through sexual trauma," he added. "It will have had a very significant psychological effect and we should be very, very careful about being dismissive of this."

Cleverly also argued that someone willing to rape a child's avatar in a video game "may well be someone that could go on to do terrible things in the physical realm."

Ian Critchley, the lead for child protection and abuse investigation at the National Police Chiefs' Council, echoed Cleverly's words, telling the Daily Mail that the metaverse creates a "gateway" for predators to victimize children.

Critchley highlighted the need for the continued evolution of policing methods to address crimes being committed online and for the passage of relevant laws, and he also called on tech companies to do more to keep their users safe.

Notably, there have been several reports of virtual sex crimes in Horizon Worlds -- a free VR game operated by Facebook's parent company, Meta, the New York Post reported.

A senior police investigator told the Daily Mail that the metaverse has become "rife" with online sex crimes and other types of offences, including virtual thefts, but so far there have been no prosecutions in the UK.

Research shows perceived time has an actual effect on physical healing

According to new research by Harvard psychologists Peter Aungle and Ellen Langer, perceived time has a major impact on the real-time it takes to heal physical wounds.

Their study, published in Nature Scientific Reports, challenges conventional beliefs about psychological influences on physical health. The findings suggest a broader range of psychological influences than is currently appreciated.

To complete their study, the authors used a standardized procedure to mildly wound volunteer subjects. Perceived time was then manipulated in the lab, with each study participant completing three experimental conditions: Slow Time (0.5x real time), Normal Time (1x real time), and Fast Time (2x real time). Wounds were documented as healing faster when participants believed more time had passed. Likewise, the healing process proved slower when less time was perceived to have gone by. Actual time elapsed was the same under all three conditions. Further research is underway to better understand the underlying mechanisms and broader implications of these findings. In the meanwhile, the study makes a compelling case for more fully incorporating the idea of mind-body "unity" into subsequent inquiries on mind-body health effects. In particular, researchers are urged to consider a broader range of psychological influences on physical health. Psychological influences on physical health are typically understood in terms of influences on emotion (e.g., stress, inflammation, and immune function) and behavior (e.g., beliefs that promote healthy actions).

China expands visa-free initiatives to lure foreign tourists

In a bid to revitalise its tourism industry and boost its struggling economy post-pandemic, China has engaged in a series of diplomatic moves to attract foreign tourists, CNN reported.

The most recent development is an agreement with Thailand, wherein both countries have decided to permanently waive visa requirements for each other's citizens, effective in March. This reciprocal visa-free scheme, announced by Thai Prime Minister Srettha Thavisin, follows Thailand's earlier decision in September to waive visas for Chinese tourists until February. The Chinese Foreign Ministry expressed optimism about the mutual visa exemptions, stating that it "serves the fundamental interests of both peoples," as reported by CNN.

Ministry spokesperson Wang Wenbin, during a regular news briefing, said, "The government departments responsible for the matter are in close communication on the specifics. We look forward to the early implementation of the arrangement."

China's efforts to attract international tourists have been evident in its previous initiatives. In November, China introduced a trial programme allowing visitors from France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain, and Malaysia to enter visa-free for 15 days. This policy, initiated in December, is set to last for 12 months until the end of November this year. The National Immigration Administration reported that in December alone, 1,18,000 travellers from these six nations entered China without a visa under the new policy, with over 77 per cent of them visiting for sightseeing, leisure, or business activities.

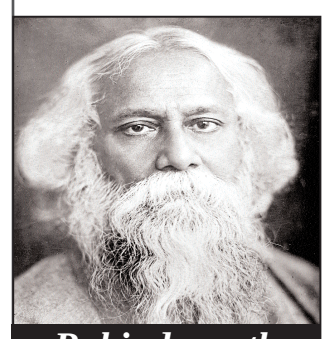

While the policy has shown initial success, its long-term impact remains to be seen. Tourists from distant countries, particularly in Europe, typically plan trips to China months in advance, and winter is not traditionally a peak tourist season due to cold weather in many parts of the country.

China has also taken steps to facilitate travel for American tourists by simplifying the visa application process. Starting from January 1, travellers from the United States no longer need to submit proof for round-trip air tickets, hotel reservations, itinerary, or an invitation letter to apply for a tourist visa, as confirmed by the Chinese Embassy in the United States, according to CNN.

Despite these efforts, the return of international travellers to China has been gradual and has not yet reached pre-pandemic levels.

I have made You the polar star of my existence; never again can I lose my way in the voyage of life. Wherever I go, You are always there to shower your beneficence all around me. Everything You Need To Know About Pawanmuktasana Yoga Pose

In light of the coronavirus pandemic, a significant number of people have succumbed to unhealthy lifestyles. This may be in the form of unhealthy eating habits, lethargy, weight gain, etc. Pawanmuktasana, a popular yoga pose, also known as Gas Release Pose can be added to one's daily routine in order to combat these issues.

The word "Pawanamuktasana" is made of two words, 'Pawan' which means wind and 'Mukta', which translates to release. As the name suggests this asana helps in releasing the accumulated wind in our stomach and intestines. Pawanmuktasana helps reduce binge eating, improves mental health, regulates bowel movements and assists in weight loss.

How To Do Steps Pawanmuktasana Yoga Pose

Lie on your back or in a supine position, with your arms beside your body.

Inhale.

Exhale, bringing your knees toward your chest and pressing your thighs on your abdomen with clasped hands.

Inhale again.

As you exhale, raise your head off the floor, letting your chin touch your knees.

Hold this pose as you take deep, long breaths in and out.

Release the pose to return to the starting position, bringing your head down first and then your legs - this is one round.

Do 2-3 rounds and then relax.

Pro-Tip: As you exhale, make sure that you tighten the grip of your hands on the knee and increase the pressure on the chest. As you inhale, loosen the grip.

Pawanmuktasana Preparatory Poses

The beauty of Pawanmuktasana as a pose is that it can be inculcated into every sequence, irrespective of the kind of sequence one is working at. This is a very simple way to get them back, neck, shoulders and legs in action easily, there is not much one can bring as a sequence before this pose. Yet we can do the following before the practice of this pose:

Lying on the back, start by raising one leg at a time and rotate the ankles.

Inhale and raise the left leg at 30 degrees and rotate the ankles.

Slowly move it from 30 to 60 to 90 degrees and loosen the muscles around the ankles, thighs, calves and toes.

Repeat the same with the other leg.

Supta Matsyendrasana [Supine Spinal Twist Pose]

While on your back, bend the legs at the knees and bring them to the chest. With a deep breath take both the knees to the left side twisting from the hip and bring it to the floor.

Keep the arms stretched out to the side of you in line with your shoulders.

This twisting of the hip along with the legs will help in opening the lower back thus working as a preparatory pose for Pawanamuktasana.

Repeat with the other side.

Ardha Pawanmuktasana [Half Wind Release Pose]

From the relaxed pose on your back, inhale and take the left leg at 90 degrees and bend the knee and bring it to the chest and hold with your hands.

3 foods Soha Ali Khan swears by for healthy skin during winter

Chandigarh/ Ludhiana: "Winter is here!" and it's that time of the year when most of us face skin woes. The season can wreak havoc on our skin — making it dry, itchy, and irritated. At this time, it becomes important to take extra care of our skin. There are many simple ways to combat the causes of dry winter skin and help keep your skin feeling moist and supple all season long, including some easy changes to your everyday diet.

Read on to find 3 pro-tips by prominent Bollywood Actress Soha Ali Khan on the three foods she includes to take care of her skin during winter:

Almonds: You are what you eat is an adage I live by. My day starts with a handful of almonds, this is one habit I grew up with. Almonds help me maintain skin health as they contain healthy fats and vitamin E which have been shown to benefit the skin. Moreover, I also read that Ayurveda, Siddha, and Unani texts say that almonds are good for skin health and can enhance skin glow. I would recommend everyone to make the consumption of almonds a daily habit as part of their beauty regime. Whether at home, work, or while travelling, almonds can be eaten anytime. What's best about almonds is that they can also be consumed in the roasted or flavoured form!

Beetroot juice : I especially like drinking beetroot juice during winter as it adds glow to my skin. Because of its anti-inflammatory properties, it also helps prevent acne and pimples. I prefer drinking cold-pressed beetroot juice as it helps retain the nutrients and fibers rather than eating it as a curry. As it's a powerful antioxidant, it helps in keeping my skin moisturized. Drinking beetroot juice and staying hydrated throughout the day aids in flushing out the toxins, making me feel rejuvenated.

Amla: Amla, which is also called Indian gooseberry, is one of my favourite foods to consume for better skin health. As Amla is enriched with Vitamin C it helps a lot with my skin woes such as dryness specifically during winter. As Amla is bitter, I cut them into small pieces, dip it in honey and eat or have it in the form of juice. Drinking Amla juice regularly really helps in skin exfoliation and helps remove pigmentation or blemishes from my skin as well.

People return disappointed due to strike of depot operators

MANISH KUMAR
AMBALA, JAN 4

Hundreds of people reached the government ration depots in Ambala Cantonment and the city also to get ration. But when they came to know that the depot operator was on strike, people had to return in disappointment. Local people said that every month they come to the depot and take wheat, sugar, oil, millet and other goods. But this time due to the strike they have not yet received their ration due to which they are facing problems. District head Gurdev Singh said that he had appealed to the government many times before regarding his demands. But the government is ignoring their demands. All the ration depot holders across the state have gone on strike till January 15 due to their various demands. This means that 249 depot holders falling under the district have decided to go on strike, due to which now all the depots will remain closed. Chief Gurdev Singh said that the government is going to build a depot for only 300 ration cards. Due to which they will suffer loss. At the same time, ration also reaches late. Due to which there is delay in distribution of ration to them. Besides this, the machines given to them also do not work properly. In such a situation, card holders who survive by getting ration from the depot may have to face problems. Because due to the strike they will neither receive nor distribute ration. Due to this, it seems to be a big challenge at the government level to distribute ration in the district on time.

Pb govt alters school timings amidst chilling cold to safeguard children's health

RADHE SHYAM SHARMA

MORINDA: Due to the increasing cold every day, most people prefer staying at home. On the other hand, young children continue going to school despite the biting cold. However, considering the severity of the cold, the Education Department has changed school timings. According to a notification issued by the Director of the Education Department (Secondary), the children are falling ill due to the cold. Keeping the health of school-going children in mind, the Punjab government has changed the timings of the state's government, private, aided, and accredited schools. As per this order, schools will remain open from 10 am to 3 pm. However, the cold has been intensifying continuously over the past week. The sun has not been visible for several days now. Parents of the children mention that while they prepare the younger children early in the morning and send them to school, the cold is causing a lot of distress to the children. The intense cold also makes their hands stiff, making it difficult for them to write properly at school. Moreover, there is also a fear of children catching a cold due to the harsh weather. People from the area have appealed to the Punjab government to grant holidays for young children up to primary classes considering the cold weather.

AAP gives demand letter to DC seeking mayoral elections soon

CHANDIGARH, JAN 4

A delegation of Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) Chandigarh handed over a demand letter to Deputy Commissioner (DC) Vinay Pratap Singh, IAS, for early mayoral elections. The delegation was led by Dr. SS Ahluwalia, Chairman, Punjab Water Supply and Sewerage Board and co-in-charge, AAP Chandigarh. This delegation included councillors Prem Lata, Poonam Kumari, Suman Amit Sharma, Neha Musawat, Jasvir Singh Ladi, Ram Chandra Yadav, Damanpreet Singh, Lakhbir Singh, Yogesh Dhingra, Kuldeep Kumar and Manowar. The AAP delegation demanded from the DC that the mayor's election in the city should have been held on January 1 as per the notification, but the administration has not yet released any date for the elections. He said that BJP is trying to disrupt the Mayor elections, because for the last few years, the ruling BJP has been postponing the date of Mayor elections as per its convenience and has been trying to tamper with the election results.

The delegation said that every third year the mayor's election is reserved seat, so we want that this year's election should be fair and there should be no injustice to the reserved class, because this is the only year when the reserved category candidate is elected by the citizens of the city and the new mayor would get an opportunity to represent and development the city. Therefore, mayor elections should be conducted in the city soon. Dr. SS Ahluwalia said that keeping in mind the overall development of the city, it is very important to conduct the mayor's election on time, because due to delay in the mayor's election, the overall development of the city comes to a halt. He added, by postponing the date of Mayor elections, BJP is also hindering the development of the city and injustice is being done to the common people. He said that AAP will take special care that the mayor's election is held on the scheduled date and no injustice is done to anyone.

BRITNEY SPEARS SAYS SHE WOULD NEVER RETURN TO MUSIC INDUSTRY

American singer Britney Spears has put an end to rumours of a new album in a revealing Instagram post in which she claimed she would never return to the music industry.

On Thursday, Britney took to Instagram and wrote, "Just so we're clear, most of the news is trash !!! They keep saying I'm turning to random people to do a new album... I will never return to the music industry !!! When I write, I write for fun or other people !!! For those of you who have read my book, there's loads that you don't know about me." https://www.instagram.com/britneyspears/p/C1p-tjP-Pn0T/?hl=en

The pop singer appeared to be responding to news that arose early Wednesday morning about Spears possibly enlisting Charli XCX and writer Julia Michaels for an unannounced record, her first in over a decade, as per Variety. Michaels and Spears had previously collaborated, although the nature of their collaboration remains unknown.

According to Variety, Michaels is listed as a co-writer on Spears' 'Slumber Party,' which appears on her most recent studio album, 'Glory.' Mattias Larsson, Robin Fredriksson, and Justin Tranter also contributed to the script.

Spears then described herself as a 'ghostwriter,' which means she writes for other artists without putting her name on the projects, and stated that she "honestly [prefers] it that way."

Meet Nikki 'Daredevil' Sharma

CHANDIGARH : Zee TV's Pyaar Ka Pehla Adhyaya ShivShakti, which explores the healing power of love in a contemporary take on the Shiv-Shakti dynamic, has been the talk of the telly-town since its first episode. Produced by Studio LSD Productions, the chemistry between Arjun Bijlani (Shiv) and Nikki Sharma (Shakti) has also kept the audiences glued to their screens and is being loved by one and all! Recently, viewers were in for a visual treat with Shiv and Shakti's wedding.

On the other hand, Keertan (Gaurav Wadhwa) who wants to marry Shakti, is trying his best to break their wedding and he finally finds out about a secret that Shiv has been hiding for so long and what followed left everyone stunned.

During the mehendi sequence, Keertan makes a dramatic exit, leaving Shakti very suspicious about his plan. She decided to follow him on a scooty, but what made this sequence interesting was the high-octane stunt that Shakti performed. This is the first time she rode a scooty that too in lehenga just like Kareena Kapoor did in the movie '3 idiots'. We hear that she also held onto the window of a moving bus all by herself without the help of a stunt double for this dramatic sequence.

Nikki Sharma said, "This is the first time I rode a scooty in my life, and I never thought I would need to learn one, especially for a show. But because it was the scene's demand, I learnt it and managed to ride the scooty with a day's practice. When I wore a lehenga and entered the school, I felt like Kareena Kapoor from 3 idiots who came to meet Aamir Khan on a scooty in a lehenga. It was difficult, but I really feel blessed to have got an opportunity to perform such a stunt on my own. Additionally, hanging from the window of a bus in a lehenga was challenging too, something that needs a lot of physical and mental strength. I got a lot of appreciation from my directors and co-actors too, but I truly hope our viewers also enjoyed the sequence and shower me with love and appreciation."

While the audience were thrilled to see Nikki Sharma performing these stunts in a lehenga, it will be even more intriguing to see if she will be able to enter the school and find out what Keertan is up to or not?

To witness the intriguing story of Shiv and Shakti, tune in to Pyaar Ka Pehla Adhyaya ShivShakti everyday at 7.30 PM, only on Zee TV!
