SC rejects PIL against appointment of deputy CMs

NEW DELHI: The Supreme Court on Monday dismissed a PIL challenging the practice of appointing Deputy Chief Ministers in States, saying the post does not breach the constitutional provisions.
A bench of Chief Justice of India DY Chandrachud and Justices JB Pardiwala and Manoj Misra found that the appointment of a deputy Chief Minister has no bearing in the constitutional sense as the label does not provide any extra perks. It said the minister was a minister first and that the post of deputy chief minister was "only a label." The post of deputy chief minister may not be defined under the Constitution, but there is no illegality in appointing senior leaders of the ruling party or a coalition of parties as deputy chief ministers, said the bench. "The appointment of deputy chief ministers is a practice followed in some states to give a little more importance to senior leaders .

Qatar frees Navy veterans jailed on 'espionage' charges

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, FEB 12

In a major diplomatic triumph for India, eight veterans of the Indian Navy who were sentenced to death in Qatar, were released by Doha on Monday.

The capital punishment was commuted to an extended prison term earlier following diplomatic intervention by New Delhi. Amid desperate pleas by the anxious kin of the Navy veterans to secure their release and safe passage back to their homeland, the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) had assured that it would mobilise all diplomatic channels and arrange legal assistance to bring them back.

Of the eight former Navy officers, seven have already returned to India, the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) informed through an official statement on Monday.

The Union government released an official statement welcoming the decision to set the veteran officers free, saying, "The Government of India welcomes the release of eight Indian nationals working for the Dahra Global company who were detained in Qatar. Seven out of the eight of them have returned to India. We appreciate the decision by the Amir of the State of Qatar to enable the release and home-coming of these nationals."

The eight Indian nationals were imprisoned in Qatar since October 2022 and were accused of allegedly spying on a submarine programme. The retired naval personnel were sentenced to death by a Qatar court on charges that have not yet been made public officially.

Earlier, the Qatari Court commuted the death penalty sentence of eight ex-Indian naval officers it had arrested last year in the Dahra Global case, the Ministry of External Affairs said in a press statement. The sentence has now been reduced to jail terms.

Describing the judgement, the Ministry of External Affairs had said, "We have noted the verdict today of the Court of Appeal of Qatar in the Dahra Global case, in which the sentences have been reduced.

"The MEA also said that the detailed judgement in the case is awaited and are in close touch with the legal team in Qatar.

3 Raj nurses denied permission to use 'Dr' title after PhD completion

AGENCY
JAIPUR, FEB 12

The Rajasthan government's medical and health department has denied permission to three nurses to use 'Dr' title with their names after completing PhD.

The nurses posted in the health department had sent a proposal to it to allow them to use 'Dr' with their names after completing PhD.

Suresh Nawal, director (non-gazetted) medical and health department, issued a letter on February 9 stating that three nurses have sent proposal to the directorate seeking permission to use 'Dr' title ahead of their names but the permission to use the title has not been granted by the administrative department. Rajasthan Nurses Association state president Narendra Singh Shekhawat said that the order has discouraged nursing staff, who go for research in their field which ultimately benefits the patients. "The department has denied permission to nurses, who have done PhD, to use 'Dr' title.

We will go to higher authorities in the government. Those with PhD want to use the 'Dr' title in their name. For this, changes in documents are required and to follow that procedure, permission of the government is necessary which has been denied," Shekhawat said.

"Allowing those with PhD to use 'Dr' title will only encourage the nurses to go for research and higher studies, which will benefit the patients," he added.

While the reason or ground to not allow the nurses to use the title is not mentioned in the letter, an official of the health department said that granting permission for this will create confusion among the people.

PM Modi distributes over 1 lakh appointment letters at Rozgar Mela

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, FEB 12

Prime Minister Narendra Modi distributed more than 1 lakh appointment letters to newly inducted recruits under Rozgar Mela, via video conferencing on Monday.

He also laid the foundation stone of Phase I of the integrated complex 'Karmayogi Bhavan' in New Delhi, via video conferencing. This complex will promote collaboration and synergy among various pillars of Mission Karmayogi.

While addressing the event through video conferencing, the Prime Minister congratulated the youths and their families.

"Today, more than 1 lakh youth have been given appointment letters for government jobs. You have achieved this success through hard work. I congratulate you all and your families very much," he said.

Hitting out at the previous government over the delay in giving jobs, PM Modi said, "The right to give jobs to the youth in the Government of India is continuously progressing at a fast pace. In earlier governments, it used to take a very long time from the issue of job advertisement to the issuance of appointment letters. Taking advantage of this delay, the game of bribery was also rampant during that time. We have now made the recruitment process in the Government of India completely transparent".

"Not only this, the government is very insistent that the recruitment process be completed within the stipulated time. With this, every youth has started getting equal opportunities to prove his ability," he added.

The Prime Minister applauded the central government for making the recruitment procedure transparent.

"Our government has made the recruitment process transparent. We try to finish the recruitment procedure within a set timeframe so that everyone gets an equal opportunity to showcase his capabilities. Today every youth has faith in his mind that he can make his place based on hard work and his talent. Since 2014, we have endeavoured to connect the youth with the Government of India and make them partners in nation-building," the Prime Minister said.

Highlighting the new training complex being constructed in the national capital, PM Modis said that it will strengthen the capacity-building initiatives.

Farmers cavalcade proceed towards Delhi for protest

PHAGWARA, FEB 12 (UNI)

State Gen Secy Kisan Mazdoor Sangharsh Committee (Piddi Group) Sarwan Singh Pandher on Monday condemned the central and Haryana governments for "creating obstacles" by barricading the Punjab-Haryana border to stop the protest march of farmers to Delhi.

Talking to the media during a brief halt of the Delhi-bound farmers' cavalcade at village Mauli on the National Highway between Phagwara and Goraya, Pandher claimed the Haryana government's "dictatorial orders" to switch off internet services would not deter the marchers as they can use use wireless sets for interconnection. Pandher, in the presence of Bharatiya kissan Union (BKU) Doaba President Manjit Singh Rai and General Secretary Satnam Singh Sahni, said the farmers tried to convince the central government to fulfil their demands pending for the last 75 years. He alleged though Prime Minister Narendra Modi had released a letter promising to fulfill their demands during the previous farmers' agitation in 2020-21, those have not been kept. On the contrary, the Haryana government has converted the state into an open jail. He said the Punjab-Haryana border now resembles an international border. Such actions only give the country a bad name, Pandher cautioned Modi and Haryana CM Manohar Lal Khattar. While strongly criticising the Haryana government, Pandher said even farmers of Europe and other countries are protesting for their demands in their respective countries, but their govts never act like the Haryana government. He said India is a democratic country and everyone has the right to raise their voice, Pandher said, adding that he wasn't afraid of arrest. If the police wanted to arrest him, he won't have any problem, but he keep on raising the demands. BKU leader Rai said there is a lack of performance by the central govt. because nearly two months have passed since the call for the 'Delhi chalo' was given by Pandher and leaders of other farmers organisations.

There is a flaw in the intention of the government and the government does not want to accept the demands of the farmers. Rai said farmers and common people are suffering only because of the "incompetence" of the government, "While the farmers do not want to trouble anyone, It is being said that the petrol pumps should not give oil to the farmers, but the petrol pump owners are also our brothers and they can never do such a thing to us. "Farmers from all the states of the country are coming to Delhi together, but only the farmers of Punjab are being stopped by putting up barricades at the Haryana border.

Worth a look

The president, Droupadi Murmu, expressed her desire for an All India Judicial Services Examination to recruit individuals for judicial services through a centralised examination system. At present, Article 235 of the Constitution bestows the high courts with control over district and subordinate judiciary, including their recruitment, promotions and transfers. This power of the high court is meant to uphold the cardinal principle of the separation of the judiciary from executive interference. Support for AIJS can be traced back to the First Law Commission, which endorsed the establishment of AIJS to enhance the efficiency of the subordinate judiciary in its Report on Reforms on Judicial Administration. However, this proposition was opposed by several states. In 1969, the Union government sought the opinion of the then Chief Justice of India, J. Hidayatullah, who expressed reservations about the feasibility of establishing AIJS.

It wasn't until 1976 that the 42nd amendment to the Constitution inserted a provision for AIJS applicable to both the Union and the states in Article 312, which deals with the creation of one or more all India services. This amendment focused only on posts at or above the district judge level. This time, a fresh wave of reservations came from Manipur, Tamil Nadu and Kerala concerning the ceding of control of the high courts over the state judiciary. The 116th Law Commission Report acknowledged the concerns of these states but clarified that AIJS would only impact the initial recruitment, ensuring high courts' continued control over the subordinate judiciary post-recruitment.

Interestingly, in contrast to the National Judicial Appointments Commission, the idea of a centralised AIJS has encountered minimal judicial resistance. In All India Judges Association vs Union of India, the Supreme Court urged the Union to assess the feasibility of establishing AIJS as recommended by the Law Commission. In 2017, the apex court, in a suo motu case, took a proactive stance on district judge appointments, advocating for a Central Selection Mechanism. The amicus curiae pushed for a common examination for all states, with high courts conducting interviews based on merit lists. The proposal aimed to address the challenge of persistent vacancies in the judiciary without compromising the powers of the high courts. It also recommended the introduction of a unified District Judge Recruitment Examination as a standardised assessment applicable across states.

Global practices indicate that countries administering judicial services entrance examinations require a prominent involvement of their Supreme Courts.

Over 59,000 Indians acquired US citizenship in 2023

Over 59,000 Indians were enlisted as bona fide US citizens in 2023, helping the country secure the second slot for the top source country for new citizens in America after Mexico, the annual progress report for 2023, released recently by the US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) stated.

According to the official report, nearly 8.7 lakh foreign nationals became US citizens during the fiscal year 2023 (year ending September 30, 2023), of which over 1.1 lakh Mexicans (12.7% of the total number of new citizens) and 59,100 (6.7%) Indians obtained US citizenship.

Further, according to the report, 44,800 (5.1 per cent) of newly enlisted American citizens were from the Philippines and 35,200 (4 per cent) from the Dominican Republic.

To be eligible for naturalisation (awarding of US citizenship), an applicant must fulfil certain eligibility requirements set forth in the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA).

The requirements generally include being a lawful permanent resident (LPR) for at least five years. There are also other special naturalisation provisions that exempt certain applicants, including certain spouses of US citizens and applicants with military service, from one or more of the general requirements for naturalisation, the USCIS report stated.

Most people who acquired US citizenship in FY 2023 were eligible for naturalisation on the basis of being LPRs for at least 5 years (INA Section 316(a)), followed by applicants who were eligible for being LPRs for at least 3 years and married to a US citizen for 3 years (INA Section 319(a)) and applicants, who were eligible on the basis of their military service during a designated period of hostilities (INA Section 329).

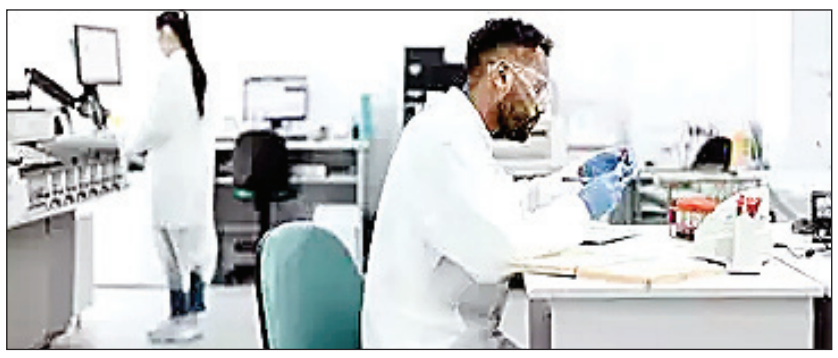

The report added that in general, a non-citizen must spend at least 5 years as a lawful permanent resident to be eligible for naturalisation while the spouse of a US citizen must spend at least 3 years as a lawful permanent resident. The median number of years spent as an LPR for all citizens naturalised in FY 2023 was 7 years.

Further, under the US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), naturalisation during the fiscal years 2022 and 2023 made up nearly a quarter of all naturalisations over the past decade.

Researchers find how fatty acids plays key role in creating memories

Researchers at the University of Queensland have demonstrated the vital role that saturated fatty acids play in the brain's storage of memories.

A new cure for neurodegenerative illnesses may now be possible, thanks to research conducted by Dr Isaac Akefe of the Queensland Brain Institute at the University of Queensland. He has also discovered the genes that underlie the process of memory creation.

The findings were published in the EMBO Journal.

"We've shown previously that levels of saturated fatty acids increase in the brain during neuronal communication, but we didn't know what was causing these changes," Dr Akefe said.

"Now for the first time, we've identified alterations in the brain's fatty acid landscape when the neurons encode a memory.

"An enzyme called Phospholipase A1 (PLA1) interacts with another protein at the synapse called STXBP1 to form saturated fatty acids."

The brain is the body's fattiest organ, with fatty compounds called lipids making up 60 per cent of its weight. Fatty acids are the building blocks of a class of lipids called phospholipids.

The work done in Professor Frederic Meunier's laboratory has shown that STXBP1 controls the targeting of the PLA1 enzyme, coordinating the release of fatty acids and directing communication at the synapses in the brain.

Biden rips Trump for mocking Nikki Haley's military husband

President Joe Biden hit back at predecessor and Republican presidential hopeful, Donald Trump, over his mockery of fellow party candidate Nikki Haley's husband, saying that the latter thinks that the country's troops are 'suckers', adding that "this guy wouldn't know service to his country if it slapped him in the face."

Taking to his official X handle, President Biden posted, "The answer is that Major Haley is abroad, serving his country right now. We know he thinks our troops are "suckers," but this guy wouldn't know service to his country if it slapped him in the face."

https://x.com/JoeBiden/status/1756721310489539060?s=20

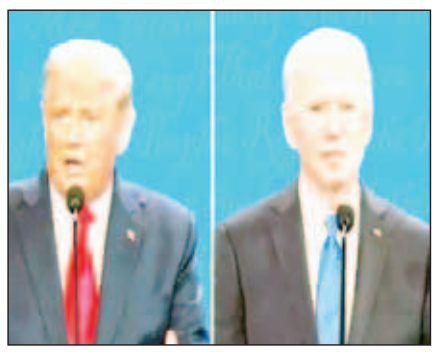

Biden's statement came in response to remarks made by the former president on Saturday during a rally in her state.

"Where's her (Nikki Haley's) husband?" Trump said, adding, "'Oh, he's away, he's away.' What happened to her husband? What happened to her husband? Where is he? He's gone", according to The Hill.

Haley's husband, Major Michael Haley, was deployed in Africa in June of last year with the South Carolina Army National Guard.

She wished him farewell in a ceremony in mid-June with about 200 soldiers at The Citadel, a military college in Charleston.

Earlier, Nikki Haley also attacked Trump for remarks he made about her husband, who is in the military and stationed abroad, according to The Hill.

"Michael is deployed serving our country, something you know nothing about," Haley posted on X, adding, "Someone who continually disrespects the sacrifices of military families has no business being commander in chief."

"He's always been my rock," Haley said.

"We have both lived a life of service, and so when he goes off to deploy, my support is completely with him. If I happen to be running for president, his support is completely with me," she added.

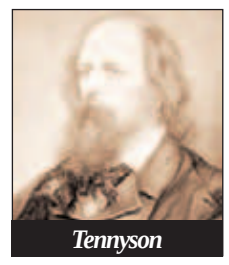

Haley and her husband have been together for more than 25 years, and he frequently attended her candidacy rallies. The former UN ambassador often discussed being married to a member of the armed forces; her husband joined the National Guard in the middle of the 2000s, The Hill reported.

During Haley's first stint as governor of Palmetto State, he was initially sent overseas.

POEM

Crossing the Bar

Sunset and evening star, And one clear call for me! And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea,

Tennyson

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.
Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark;
For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crost the bar.

Why blueberries are blue in colour

Researchers at the University of Bristol shared that blueberries' blue colour is created by small external structures in their wax coatings.

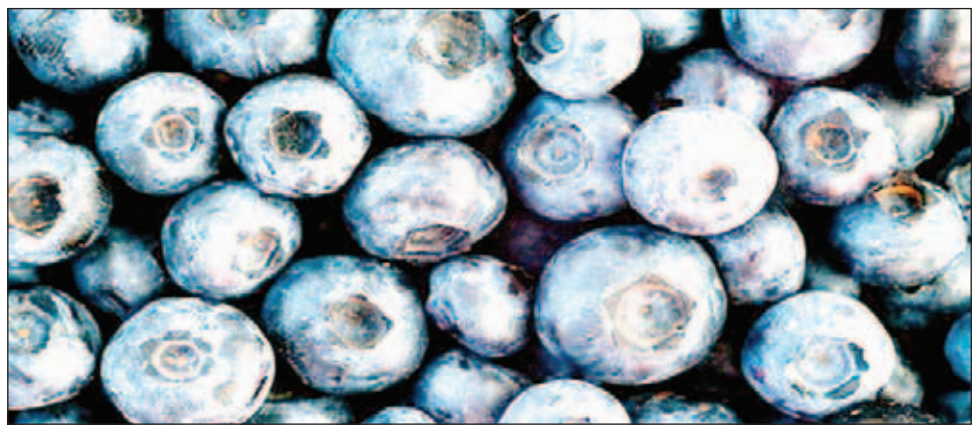

This applies to many fruits of the same colour, such as damsons, sloes, and juniper berries.

The finding, published in Science Advances, explains why blueberries appear blue despite the dark red pigments on their skin.

Their blue colour is generated by a layer of wax that surrounds the fruit and is composed of microscopic structures that scatter blue and UV light.

This gives blueberries their blue appearance to humans and blue UV to birds. The chromatic blue-UV reflectance arises from the interaction of the randomly arranged crystal structures of the epicuticular wax with light.

Rox Middleton, Research Fellow at Bristol's School of Biological Sciences, explained, "The blue of blueberries can't be 'extracted' by squishing - because it isn't located in the pigmented juice that can be squeezed from the fruit. That was why we knew that there must be something strange about the colour.

This gives blueberries their blue appearance to humans and blue UV to birds. The chromatic blue-UV reflectance arises from the interaction of the randomly arranged crystal structures of the epicuticular wax with light.

"So we removed the wax and re-crystallised it on the card and in doing so we were able to create a brand new blue-UV coating."

The ultra-thin colourant is around two microns thick, and although less reflective, it's visibly blue and reflects UV well, possibly paving the way for new colourant methods.

"It shows that nature has evolved to use a really neat trick, an ultrathin layer for an important colourant," added Rox.

Most plants are coated in a thin layer of wax which has multiple functions, many of which scientists still don't understand. They know that it can be very effective as a hydrophobic, self-cleaning coating, but it's only now they realise how important the structure is for visible colouration.

Now the team plans to look at easier ways of recreating the coating and applying it. This could lead to a more sustainable, biocompatible and even edible UV and blue-reflective paint.

Furthermore, these coatings could have the same multiple functions as natural biological ones that protect plants.

Rox added, "It was really interesting to find that there was an unknown colouration mechanism right under our noses, on popular fruits that we grow and eat all the time. "It was even more exciting to be able to reproduce that colour by harvesting the wax to make a new blue coating that no one's seen before.

The alienation and disillusionment of the new generation from the old constructive and sound social values is a matter of concern. This statement was made by Inderjit Singh Purewal, chief editor of Punjabi magazine 'Raag' and a resident of New York, America, when he arrived here at the home of storyteller Pawan Parinda. Cuts on steel bridge on Bhakra Canal creating problems for riders

MEGHRAJ LUTHRA
KACHHWA, FEB 12

Four cuts on the steel bridge being built at a cost of Rs 19 crore on the Bhakra Canal between Kachhwa and Karnal on the Karnal-Pehwa State Highway have become major hindrances due to engineering defects, which have become a cause of great trouble for the drivers. Here two more bridges are being built on the Bhakra Canal. The construction of one side of the bridge has been completed, work is going on to complete the work on the other side quickly. There are four cuts on the bridge built on one side, these cuts are so big that every vehicle gets hit hard while passing through it, whereas passing through the newly built bridge should have been a good experience but here it has been the opposite. Every day 8,000 vehicles pass through this route, out of which more than half are two wheelers, three wheelers, e-rickshaws, small vehicles and four wheelers. These drivers are facing more problems. Many times, the lease ties of their vehicles get broken. Vehicles ply on this highway day and night. If someone's vehicle breaks down here at night, only the suffering driver knows how much trouble he would have to face. On the same bridge, while coming from Karnal towards Kachhwa, no signals were installed to climb onto the other road, due to which the driver goes straight to the wrong side in fog and at night. He realizes this later on. There is always a danger of a major accident occurring due to this. It is very important to put diversion sign here. On the same route, just three kilometers from Green Palace Banquet Hall to Kachhwa Power House, there are more than a hundred potholes on both sides where patchwork is not being done. Many people have become victims of accidents on this route. The villagers have repeatedly demanded the officials of the department to do patchwork here. "Soon, approaches on both sides of the cuts made on the bridge will be made and masticated with concrete material so that the drivers will not face any shock.

"I would do horror until I die," says Jenna Ortega as she expresses her love for genre

Actor Jenna Ortega, known for projects like 'Wednesday', 'X' and 'Scream', said "horror is everything" to her, according to People.

While talking about her 2024 Super Bowl commercial, the 'Wednesday' star shared, "I would do horror until I die. It's the best."

Ortega said that the genre will "always be home" for her, and added, "I love horror [movies] because they encapsulate everything. They can be romantic, they can be funny, they can be dramatic, they can be scary. They're adrenaline-inducing and ignite passion in people, even scaredy-cats."

As a fan herself, the 'Beetlejuice 2' star loves watching the genre as much as acting in it.

"I try to watch as much as I can just for my job, which is wonderful because movies are my favourite thing in the world, and I get to call that homework," she told People. "So I think there's just something beautiful about horror and profound."

Despite her love of the genre and frequency of acting in scary movies, Ortega said she "can't claim" the title of "scream queen."

"I respect the title too much, and I want to give it to so many other people," she says. The star recently took her acting skills to a new place, a Super Bowl commercial. Ortega tapped into her horror talents for the teaser but the full advertisement doesn't have any of those scary elements. "I kind of pull people in with the horror aspect and I think people think we're leading that route," she said.
