After 50 days, Kejriwal walks out of Tihar jail; AAP workers celebrate

AGENCY NEW DELHI, MAY 10

After spending 50 days in Tihar jail, Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal was released on Friday following the Supreme Court's order granting him interim bail in the excise policy case.

Kejriwal was arrested by the ED on March 21, 2024, in connection with the alleged liquor policy scam.

A huge crowd of supporters gathered outside Tihar jail to welcome the Chief Minister on his release.

Kejriwal's wife Sunita Kejriwal, Punjab Chief Minister and AAP leader Bhagwant Mann, party leaders Atishi, and Saurabh Bhardwaj and AAP general secretary Sandeep Pathak accompanied Kejriwal when he was released. The Chief Minister headed to his official residence after he was released from Tihar jail. As he walked out of Gate No 4, Mr Kejriwal was welcomed by a mob of flag-waving and slogan-shouting AAP workers, as well as his wife Sunita Kejriwal and senior leaders like Atishi and Saurabh Bhardwaj, who have emerged as the party's public faces while the Chief Minister was in jail.

Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann was also present. In his first public comments after leaving jail, Mr Kejriwal thanked "all the judges of the top court" and, with one eye on the election in Delhi on may 25, called on voters to "save the country for dictatorship".

"I want to thank all of you... you gave me your blessings. I want to thank the judges of the Supreme Court, it is because of them that I am in front of you. We have to save the country from dictatorship..."

Mr Kejriwal also attributed his release to Lord Hanuman, and said he planned to visit the Hanuman temple in Delhi's Connaught Place on Saturday morning. Earlier in April this year, AAP MP Sanjay Singh was released on bail from Tihar jail following the top court's order. Singh was released after spending over six months in jail in connection with the excise policy case.

Kejriwal has been granted interim bail till June 1 with conditions that he shall not visit the Office of the Chief Minister or the Delhi Secretariat.

As per the court order, the Delhi CM shall furnish bail bonds in the sum of Rs 50,000 with one surety of the like amount to the satisfaction of the Jail Superintendent. Also, he shall not visit the Office of the Chief Minister and the Delhi Secretariat.

SC disposes of Hemant Soren's plea over HC's delay in pronouncing order

AGENCY NEW DELHI, MAY 10

The Supreme Court on Friday disposed of former Jharkhand Chief Minister Hemant Soren's plea over the High Court's delay in pronouncing an order on his (Hemant Soren) plea challenging arrest as it noted that the petition has become infructuous because the order has been delivered.

A bench of justices Sanjiv Khanna and Dipankar Datta said that Hemant Soren's plea over delay in pronouncing an order on the former Jharkhand CM's plea challenging arrest has become infructuous.

The top court noted that recently Jharkhand HC delivered an order on JMM leader Soren's plea and rejected his petition challenging arrest in a money laundering case.

The top court also noted that Jharkhand's former CM has challenged that order in the Supreme Court and said that Soren may raise all pleas and contentions in his other petition challenging the HC order dated May 3, 2024. Jharkhand High Court has rejected Soren's plea challenging arrest in a money laundering case on May 3. In the last hearing, the Supreme Court said that the Jharkhand High Court may pronounce the order in Soren's plea challenging his arrest in a money laundering case. Jharkhand High Court has reserved the order on Soren's plea on February 28.

Aggrieved by the High Court for not deciding his plea, Soren moved the top court against it and in the meantime sought interim bail in the matter.

Delhi court frames sexual harassment charges against Brij Bhushan Singh

AGENCY NEW DELHI, MAY 10

The Rouse Avenue Court on Friday ordered the 'framing of charges' on sexual harassment allegations levelled by several women wrestlers against former WFI Chief and BJP leader Brij Bhushan Singh and one other accused.

The Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate Priyanka Rajpoot while passing the order said there is sufficient material against Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh to proceed with the sexual harassment of five women wrestlers and with the offence of outraging the modesty of women.

The court found sufficient material to proceed against Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh under sections 354 and 354 A (IPC). Charges have also been framed against him under section 506 (part 1) on the allegations of two women. However, the court discharged Brij Bhushan from the allegations made by the sixth wrestler, said the court.

The court also framed charges against the second accused Vinod Tomar under section 506 (part 1) of the IPC on the allegation of one woman and discharged him with the rest allegations made against him. The court has now listed the matter for official framing of charges on May 21.

Recently the same court had dismissed an application moved by BJP MP Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh, seeking further investigation and placing of a Call Detail Record of a coach. Brij Bhushan had sought a direction to place on record the CDR of coach Vijender concerning an alleged incident at the WFI office in New Delhi.

As long as Modi is alive, no one can touch SC-ST-OBC's quota: PM

AGENCY NANDURBAR, MAY 10

Taking a dig at the Congress while addressing the "roti-kapda-makan" concerns of the underprivileged and tribals, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday assured voters in this northwest Maharashtra district with "Vanchiton Ka Jo Adhikaar Hai, Modi Unka Chaukidar Hai".

Claiming it to be one of "Modi's guaranties", the PM said: "I am not from a royal family like the Congress. I have grown up in poverty, I know how much you have suffered here." Acknowledging the challenges faced by tribal communities, including the lack of basic amenities like water and electricity, Modi highlighted his government's efforts to address them, as he reaffirmed his commitment to providing homes, water, and electricity to every household.

He mentioned that over one and a half million poor people in Nandurbar have been provided roof with PM Housing scheme, along with essential amenities.

Emphasising on the BJP's focus to eradicate sickle cell anaemia and ensuring food security, he said, "Congress has never cared for tribal brothers and sisters. Sickle cell anaemia is a big threat in tribal areas. But Congress didn't pay much attention to this disease. It is the BJP that has launched a campaign to eradicate sickle cell anaemia from its root. So that no poor person remains malnourished..." He criticised Congress for neglecting tribal welfare and attempting to gain votes via lies and false promises.

"The NDA government has ensured water supply to every household in more than 20,000 villages in Maharashtra, including 111 villages of Nandurbar," said PM Modi, highlighting the government's achievements in the region. Speaking on the issue of reservations, PM Modi condemned the Congress party's agenda to divide and manipulate reservation policies for their political gains.

taking business in exchange for donations. Harikrishna Himral said that when the power began to waver, the truth started coming out. He said that now PM Modi himself is telling how the black money went to Adani-Ambani. Now his experience is showing how black money reaches through tempo. But neither does ED and CBI, who are imprisoned in PM Modi's cage, come to know about their friends, nor do they listen to them. Denial of hope

Hamare desh mein, kaam dhoondna bhi ek kaam hai.” (In our country, searching for a job itself is a job) — Vijay (Amitabh Bachchan), Shakti (1982)

The movies I prefer make me a 20th-century uncle, the species that makes young riders on the Calcutta Metro wonder if I am a kaku or a dadu before giving up and offering me their seats. This is to concede that I am more or less aware of the ‘generation gap’ that limits my ability to communicate with the young, especially those who have not yet started the job of looking for a job. In India, there is another terrifying phenomenon now: millions are so fed up with looking for a job that they have stopped looking and have exited the workforce.

But little had prepared me for the communication gap at a liftest in Kerala where a young person spoke his heart out on the concerns of some of those who are on the cusp of finishing higher studies. In contrast, two ‘uncles’ on stage went off on a tangent and ended up addressing none of the key concerns raised by the young person. As the general election got off the ground, I realised that except perhaps Rahul Gandhi and the Left candidate and former Kerala finance minister, Thomas Isaac, most candidates sound and speak like me — uncles and aunts from the past century.

Around this time, I came across an essay in The New York Times on the ongoing campus upheaval in the US linked to the atrocities in West Asia. In the essay, the Yale professor of law, Stephen L. Carter, points out that “if the purpose of the university classroom is... to impart information, digital agents will soon perform the task better than experienced teachers, and colleges will find themselves unnecessary, merely duplicative of what students can get at home, cheaply and efficiently.” Carter adds that “this stumble toward redundancy rests upon a fatal misunderstanding of why the classroom exists. Teaching a subject is important; it is also in a sense incidental. The classroom is... a place to train young minds toward a yearning for knowledge and a taste for argument... even if what they wind up discovering challenges their most cherished convictions... Impediments to free speech are impediments to free thought... That’s why academic freedom is so precious.”

Then I thought I must meet the young person who had spoken at the liftest. I did so in the second week of April and met him at his house in Thrissur, Kerala. His name is Anagh, a research scholar at Kerala’s Mahatma Gandhi University. He is the joint secretary of Disha, a human rights organisation, and functions as a resource person, facilitator and trainer for several government and non-government establishments.

India-EU partnership growing further

External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar along with his wife Kyoko Jaishankar attended Europe Day celebrations in Delhi. He noted that the ties between India and the European Union are not only consequential for the two sides but also for the world. He expressed confidence that the partnership between India and the European Union will grow further in the times ahead. In a post on X, Jaishankar stated, "Pleased to attend Europe Day celebrations in New Delhi today. India-EU relations are consequential not only for us both but also for the world. Our expanded exchanges, deeper economic ties, stronger technology cooperation and increased people-to-people connect tell their own story. Confident that this partnership would grow further in the times ahead."

Notably, the External Affairs Minister was the chief guest at the event commemorating Europe Day, which is celebrated on May 9 every year to celebrate peace and unity in Europe.

Describing the relationship between India and the European Union as "consequential for the world as well," EAM Jaishankar said the EU is not only "our largest economic partner," but the ties run "very deep, spanning many domains."

Extending felicitations to EU's Ambassador to India, Herve Delphin, Jaishankar said, "I think today the relationship between India and the European Union is not only consequential for each one of us but also for the world as well. The EU is our largest economic partner, but it is more than that."

In his address at the Europe Day celebrations, Jaishankar said, "It is an entity with which we have, really, a very deep relationship spanning many domains...not just in the relationship between New Delhi and Brussels but in the regional and sub-regional formats in which we engage each other and in a range of institutions that we both are members of and where we collaborate with each other. And of course, an important element of that is economic relationship." Jaishankar said that it is the need of the hour to have more "resilient and reliable" supply chains. He said, "A fact that we are one of, I think, your two partners for trade and technology council, that, in many ways underlines not just the present of our relationship and the importance as well."

"When one looks at the challenges the world faces, the need for more resilient and reliable supply chains, the need for a stronger digital cooperation based on trust and transparency.

The need, really in many ways, to risk the global economy, I think India and the European Union can both make contributions, but particularly can do so, by working with each other" the EAM added.

Recognising the contribution of the European Union to the India-Middle-East-Europe Economic Corridor (IMEC), Jaishankar said, "We certainly attach importance to it and look forward to taking it forward."

"Among the welcome developments for us in recent years has been the greater interest that the EU, and individual European states, have taken in the Indo-Pacific. Many countries, and the EU, as a whole, today have an approach to the Indo-Pacific that we welcome very sincerely," he said.

Recalling the G20 Summit which took place under the chairmanship of India in September last year, he said, "We also see today a much more serious engagement in the domain of security; it is for us a great pleasure to welcome, from time to time, the defence presence of Europe in this part of the world. As a country that chaired the G20, we very much appreciated the value and contribution that the EU, and individual European states made to the G20."

"We value very much the invitation extended to us in G7 proceedings from time to time," the minister noted.

Meanwhile, European Union Ambassador to India, Herve Delphin said India is the country that has "gained tremendous importance for the EU," and the partnership will "deepen further." In his speech at the event, Delphin said, "In this turbulent environment, there is one country, and one relationship that has gained tremendous importance for the EU, and it is India."

In a post on X, Herve Delphin stated, "A great honour and pleasure to have @DrS-Jaishankar as Chief Guest to #Europe-Day2024. Building an enduring EU-India partnership is of strategic relevance for both sides but also for the world. A journey to walk together." In March this year, India and the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) signed a Trade and Economic Partnership Agreement (TEPA) with four European states- Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway and Switzerland.

Israel's economy loses billions a year due to cyber attacks

The State of Israel's economy suffers a 12 billion Shekel ($3.3 billion) annual loss due to cyber attacks, according to a new report issued by the country's National Cyber Directorate.

Alongside this, the Directorate report presents new studies that show that the chance of an attack in an organization can be reduced by 30-50 per cent if the organization invests in a number of basic protection measures.

The amount presented in the report is based on an analysis of the costs of handling damage from an attack in the short term such as payments to an initial response team; direct financial loss costs from the attack such as downtime, data recovery and legal advice; as well as costs in the medium-long term such as future loss of income, loss of business opportunities, damage to reputation, lawsuits and damage to a third party. The analysis refers to various types of attacks that resulted in business damage to the organization in a "top-down" and a "bottom-up" approach. "The data show for the first time the great economic burden on the national product that cyber-attacks have and the cumulative damage to the economy.

Hungary, China sign 18 agreements

Hungary and China have signed 18 agreements on cooperation in the railway and electric vehicles industries, as well as in other sectors, during Chinese President Xi Jinping's visit to Budapest, Hungarian Foreign Minister Peter Szijarto has said in a video message on social media.

"Today, the President and [Hungarian] Prime Minister [Viktor Or-ban] held extremely successful talks, which resulted in the signing of 18 agreements," Szijarto said on Thursday. In addition to the Budapest-Belgrade railway, Chinese companies will implement key railway projects in Hungary, including the construction of a ring rail track around the Hungarian capital and a railway from the airport to the city center, the minister said.

Bhagavad Gita is a 700 verse conversation between Lord Krishna and Warrior Arjun on the battlefield of Kurukshetra.

Just before the start of the war, Arjun gets the feeling that war would kill many of his friends and relatives and argues that this is bad from many points of view.

Arjun's dilemma emanates from his presumption that "I am doer" - Ahankarta and is also known as Ahankaar. This Ahankaar keeps telling us that we are distinct, but the reality is different. Though ego is usually given as the meaning of Ahankaar, but ego can be taken as one of the many manifestations of Ahankaar. The entire conversation is about this Ahankaar. be it directly or indirectly and Krishna gives various paths and milestones (yardsticks) to get rid of it. If we take the Kurukshetra war as a metaphor, all of us enter into situations, like Arjun did, in our daily lives be it in the family, workplace and in terms of health, wealth, relationships etc. As long as one lives, these dilemmas are natural till Ahankaar is understood.

K. Shiv Prasad

Gita is about what we are and certainly not about what we know nor what we do. Like no amount of theory can let us ride a bicycle nor swim, no amount of philosophy can help us unless we see life eye to eye and the guiding principles of Gita would help us to reach the final destination - the inner self which is free of Ahankaar.

From the surface, it appears that times have changed since the Gita was given to Arjun by Lord Krishna. Certainly, there is a lot of change brought about by developments in science in the past couple of centuries. But in reality, from an evolutionary standpoint of view, humans didn't evolve any further. The internal side of dilemma remains the same. Outer manifestations (trees) might look different, but the inner part (roots) remains the same.

International Treaty-formation and implementation: A constitutional catch -22

APURV AGARWAL

It can be noted that swiftly increasing globalisation and liberalisation of previously closed economies, have led the union government of India. Making a treaty in India is an Executive Action, and unlike in the US, Canada and Australia, no legislative action before making the treaty is needed.

This is because according to the Indian Constitutional scheme, making of international treaties is an EXECUTIVE ACT of the Central Govt.

not a legislative act of the Parliament. That is, a Treaty is concluded with the approval of the Union Cabinet alone. It is not placed before the Parliament for discussion and approval.

Accordingly, the Union Govt neither needs to initiate any legislative action before making any international treaty nor engage in consultation with the respective State Govts.

However, where the performance of treaty obligations entails alteration of the existing domestic law or requires new enactment, it would accordingly require legislative action. That is, the real problem arises with respect to the 'implementation' of treaties.

Conflicts therefore might arise when the interests of the centre differ from those of the States. That is because, though India is a Union of States, the Constitution grants jurisdiction to States and the Central Govt. to frame laws in their clearly delineated territories.

Under international law, the practices and the law pertaining to treaties is governed by the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties, 1969. Although, India is not a Party to the Vienna Convention; it follows its provisions in practice. The Convention codifies the law, practice including norms concerning the international treaty making.

The Indian law expressly does not enshrine the power of treaty-making to any particular authority, but, Article 51(c), Article 253, and Article 246 when read with Schedule VII of the Constitution of India establishes to some extent the position of 'formation' of treaties in India.

It is a generally accepted principle that no pre-legislative provision is needed to implement any international law which does not restrict the rights of the citizens and is justifiable. But, if any provision of the international law is not in conformity with the domestic law or is violating the rights of citizens, the 'doctrine of transformation' comes into play. The provision or legislation is amended to such an extent so as to make it in consonance with domestic law.

Article 253 elucidates that the power of Parliament to implement treaties by enacting domestic laws also extends to topics that are part of the state list. It is the Parliament and not the State Legislature which is competent to approve treaties even in respect of subjects in the state list.

The constitutional provisions in India with regard to the power of the central executive to conclude treaties is consistent with the practice in the British Empire though the parliamentary power to override the normal federal-state jurisdictional lines is not consistent with the framework of a federal system.

The international position, in the three largest trading partners who are also the part of the largest military coalition, the US, the Canada and Australia, the situation differs as follows:

(a) In US, important treaties signed by President have to be approved by the Senate.

(b) In Australia, the Executive is required to table a "national interest analysis" of the treaty it wishes to sign in parliament, and then this is examined by a joint standing committee on treaties - a body composed of Australian parliamentarians. In this way, the Australian parliament supervises the treaty-making process and acts as a check on the executive's power.

(c) In Canada, the executive tables the treaties in parliament.

Binance Fined $4.4 Million in Canada for Violating Anti-Money Laundering Laws

Binance has been fined by Canada's anti-money laundering agency for violating the country's anti money laundering laws. The largest crypto exchange in the world was previously probed by the Financial Transactions and Reports Analysis Centre of Canada (FINTRAC) for flouting regulations last year. The action against the firm comes shortly after CEO Changpeng Zhao was sentenced to four months in jail and directed to pay $100 million (roughly Rs. 835 crore) in penalties after pleading guilty to violations of US anti money laundering laws. The FINTRAC on Thursday released a statement following the punitive action on Binance. The post disclosed that the crypto exchange is being fined for breaching two Canadian rules that were identified over the course of a compliance activity last year. In its first violation, Binance, headed by Richard Teng, has been accused of failing to register itself as a foreign money services business (FMSB) in Canada. "It should be noted that Binance Holdings Limited was deemed to be an FMSB and was required to be registered with FINTRAC up until September 25, 2023, when it officially ceased all operations in Canada. Up until that day, Binance Holdings Limited.

Android Authority recently tested the setup process in three regions and found that four apps are pre-selected during setup on Indian variants of the OnePlus 12 running the latest OxygenOS 14.0.0.610 build. The US reportedly offers one third-party app, while there are no pre-selected apps presented in the EU. Users can opt out of installing the listed apps, which are selected by default.
