The first set of citizenship certificates to 14 people was issued under the Citizenship (Amendment) Act or CAA today, nearly two months after the Centre notified it, initiating the process of granting Indian nationality to persecuted non-Muslim migrants from Pakistan, Afghanistan and Bangladesh.

Under the CAA, the qualification period of citizenship application has been reduced from 11 to 5 years for undocumented non-Muslim migrants from Pakistan, Bangladesh and Afghanistan who came to India before December 31, 2014. Union Home Secretary

Shri Ajay Kumar Bhalla handed over citizenship certificates to the applicants in Delhi and highlighted salient features of the CAA. Secretary Posts, Director (IB), Registrar General of India and senior officers were also present during the interactive session.

The CAA was enacted in December 2019 to grant Indian nationality to persecuted non-Muslim migrants from Bangladesh, Pakistan and Afghanistan. These include Hindus, Sikhs, Jains, Buddhists, Parsis and Christians. The Act got the president's assent but the rules under which the Indian citizenship was granted were is-sued only on March 11 this year after

The notification drew sharp criticism from the opposition, which terms the move as discriminatory and motivated by the Lok Sabha elections. The Centre, however, has maintained that the CAA "does not prevent any persecuted Muslim for practising their version of Islam, from applying for Indian citizenship under the existing laws"

Several parts of the country witnessed protests against the decision to implement CAA as some fear the law

The government denies this and says the law is needed to help minorities facing persecution in Muslim-majority nations as per the "evergreen generous culture of India to get Indian citizenship for their happy and prosperous future"

"No Indian citizen would be asked to produce any document to prove citizenship", the Ministry of Home Affairs headed by Amit Shah had said, adding the Citizenship Act doesn't deal with the deportation of illegal immigrants.

This vitiates the arrest of the appellant... Though we would have released him without surety, since the chargesheet has been filed, we release him with surety and a bail bond."

moved the High Court to challenge the arrest as well as the seven-day police custody and sought immediate release as interim relief. The High Court had rejected their pleas and said it was of the view that "the fact that serious offences affecting stability, integrity, sovereignty and national security have been alleged against the petitioner, this Court is not inclined to pass any favourable orders." According to the FIR, a large amount of funding to the news portal allegedly came from China to "disrupt the sovereignty of India" and cause disaffection against the country.

Former union minister and Bathinda MP Harsimrat Kaur Badal today said it was shocking that after denying compensation for crop damage to farmers and reneging on its promise to procure all crops on MSP, the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government had issued directions to collect a water cess of Rs 326 crore from them.

The Bathinda MP, who was touring Maur assembly segment, showed a letter issued by the chief engineer of the Water Resources department asking officials to collect Rs 326 crore due from farmers on account of 'mamla'. Terming this as a coercive act, Mrs Harsimrat Badal said "the erstwhile SAD government under S Parkash Singh Badal had abolished 'mamla' for canal irrigation and now it is not only being enforced but is in the process of being collected forcefully". Asserting that farmers were in no position to pay water cess for canal irrigation, Mrs Badal said "the farmers of the State and especially the Malwa belt are already reeling from the AAP government's failure to pay compensation for white fly attack on the cotton crop as well as widespread damage to the wheat crop during hail storms". She said farmers had also been promised that all crops would be procured on MSP including pulses and maize but this did not happen resulting in huge losses to the farming community. Appealing to the people to vote against the anti-farmer AAP party in the forthcoming elections. Mrs Badal said "the SAD will fight to ensure this antifarmer directive is not implemented". The Bathinda MP said this new directive had come about on the heels of another conspiracy to rob Puniab of its River waters and transfer water to Haryana and Delhi through the Sutlej Yamuna Link (SYL) canal.

MACHHIWADA: As the date of Lok Sabha elections is nearing, the difficulties of Congress candidate from Fatehgarh Sahib area, Dr. Amar Singh, seems to be increasing because the former MLA from Samrala Assembly constituency, American. Singh Dhillon who has his own vote bank was not seen in this election campaign yet. Apart from this, if talked about Machhiwada city, the former head of the city council, Surinder Kundra, was also not seen in any program of the Congress. The direct impact of which will be visible to Congress in the coming election.

In the city, only Shakti Anand, former chairman of the Municipal Improvement Trust, was ensuring attendance at their programs to some extent, but the enthusiasm with which the Anand family should enter the election campaign was not visible yet. When city council chief Samrala Karanveer Singh Dhillon, grandson of former MLA Amrik Singh Dhillon, was talked to, he said that Congress candidate Dr. Amar Singh was a victim of big politics. He was being removed from the places where he was supposed to get votes and those were involved in this politics were not even able to cast their votes.

He said that the entire area is ready to support but they should also know how to take up the work. Those whom he was taking with them also did not cast their votes and those who were with Congress were not even being asked. He said that they were still Congressmen and will work only in the interest of Congress. If they were given duty in the election campaign with respect, they would definitely work for the win of the Congress candidate. But till now no one has given them any duty.

Editorial Bring Bonnie home

t a relief camp in Nongada, Imphal East district, Manipur, little Bonnie (name changed) was asked to sing a song for the visiting members of the Supreme Court-appointed committee for relief and rehabilitation of internally displaced persons. Unlike many her age, she didn't pick a popular Taylor Swift single or the latest Bollywood chartbuster. Instead, she sang a seitha esei (a lament song) about going back home. Eyes welling with tears, her voice choking up but still melodious, Bonnie's lament would have moved even a person with a heart of stone. Looking around, I saw that those present, whether they understood the meaning of the words or not, were crying. I was no exception. At that moment, I realised what the actual price of a divided society is — the tears of a child unable to return home.

Bonnie is a Meitei and her home, not too far away from the camp, falls in the periphery of a Kuki-dominated area. It is unsafe for her and thousands like her to go back there. Their houses have been razed and some of them burnt to the ground. The same is true for Kukis who lived in the valley in Meitei-dominated regions. As another poster in a relief camp declared, it has been over a year and neither has there been any punishment for the perpetrators of the violence on both sides, nor have people been able to return home. The relief camp is now their prison; the seitha esei, their outlet.

Having assisted the committee with some of its work, I had read the relevant documentation and gathered data on the ethnic conflict in Manipur. But the enormity of the tragedy and the task ahead for the administration became clear to me only after my visit. In the two relief camps which I visited, in Imphal East and Imphal West, two existing structures — a disused community health centre and an expo hall — had been repurposed to accommodate internally displaced persons. Scores of families now live, if they are lucky, in small rooms, otherwise in makeshift enclosures created from tarpaulin sheets or plywood separators.

The administration has provided health facilities, care for newborns, and sewing machines for the residents to restart their livelihoods. An open space in one camp was the anganwadi and nursery school with camp children spending a few hours there. A large room in another camp was the gym where, amongst other things, Zumba classes are held. Despite the adversity, the residents have made the most of a difficult situation. Some have opened shops within the camp; others like Bonnie have taken admission in a local private school. But each of them has a common refrain they are happy with the arrangements the administration has made but want to go back home desperately.

Tourist groups each consisting of two foreigners or more, and organized or received by Chinese travel agencies, can enter China visa free on board cruise ships via the cruise ports in 13 Chinese cities, including Shanghai, Tianjin, Guangzhou, Sanya, and others, according to the National Immigration Administration (NIA). The tourists can stay in China for no longer than 15 days. While in China, they can visit coastal provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions as well as Beijing, according to an NIA statement. Additionally, the NIA announced that seven cruise ports, namely Dalian, Lianyungang, Wenzhou, Zhoushan, Guangzhou, Shenzhen, and Beihai, have been designated as visa-free transit ports for nationals from 54 countries. # Experts developing immune-enhancing therapies to treat TB

Experts are developing revolutionary immune-enhancing medicines known as host-directed therapies, which employ the body's immune system to target TB, to tackle even drug-resistant strains of the illness.

Associate Professor Susanna Brighenti, Centre for Infectious Medicine (CIM), ANA Futura at the Karolinska Institutet, Stockholm, Sweden, will give a presentation at this year's ESCMID Global Congress (formerly ECCMID) in Barcelona.

The reported global number of people newly diagnosed with TB was 7.5 million in 2022, causing an estimated 1.3 million deaths. An estimated 410 000 cases and 160 000 deaths were due to multidrug-resistant TB (MDR-TB).

"Mycobacterium tuberculosis (Mtb) have evolved a remarkable ability to manipulate the human immune response and undermine antimicrobial effector functions in host immune cells," explains Assoc Professor Brighenti. "While some new antimicrobial therapies are coming through, treatment with antibiotics remains an intensive and long process even for drug-susceptible forms of the disease. Importantly, mutations conferring antibiotic resistance are intrinsic properties of mycobacteria that effectively develop resistance to old as well as new groups of antibiotics, accentuating the need for adjunct treatments. Thus, new treatments are going to be absolutely vital in the battle against TB."

Host-directed therapies (HDT) aim to strengthen the body's immune responses and represent an underexplored opportunity to improve treatment of TB, particularly MDR-TB. HDT are designed to target several immune pathways in infected cells to restore or induce antimicrobial functions instead of inhibiting bacterial growth directly. This may involve enhanced production of immune peptides or toxic molecules that contribute to bacterial killing, but it could also include rebalancing of inflammatory responses. Assoc Professor Brighenti will explain how her research collaboration has generated a platform for immune reconstitution in TB, using small molecule compounds including histone deacetylase (HDAC) inhibitors.

"These drugs can regulate transcription of genes in cells such as those in the immune system, and thus enhance the expression of proteins associated with the antibacterial host defence. We have identified several HDAC inhibitors that reduce Mtb growth inside immune cells by some 50-75%, even in the absence of antibiotics," she explains. "That may not sound so impressive, but these immunomodulatory compounds could work well as a complement to standard therapy and exert additive or synergistic effects together with the antibiotics. This would provide the possibility to reduce the dose and treatment length required with antibiotics to improve patient outcomes." In this way, it is conceivable that the effect of existing antibiotics could be guarded by add-on therapies that restore protective immunity and limit excess inflammation and/or immunosuppression in patients with TB. Standard anti-TB treatment involves daily administration of 4-9 antibiotics, but instead of adding yet another antimicrobial drug to the regimen, an immune-enhancing compound could promote clinical recovery of patients with severe forms of TB and poor prognosis, especially MDR-TB.

Assoc Prof Brighenti says "Implementation of immunotherapy as a complement to standard therapy has revolutionised the treatment of cancer, autoimmunity, and asthma/allergy. Similarly, our research on immune enhancement as a complement to antibiotics may become a game-changing treatment option for patients with TB that has the potential to impact clinical management and prevent spread of TB infections and drug resistance in this pivotal moment in our history when antimicrobial resistance constitutes a serious threat to human health."

She adds, "Short-term, approved and already available 'off-the-shelf' therapeutics would represent an initial logical step to implement HDTs of patients with TB. This could include for example, HDTs based on glucocorticoid treatment or cytokine neutralisation (eg. anti-IL-6, anti-Ib) to reduce inflammation, while metformin, or non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs may also promote or rewire the immune response.

"Long-term, more precise immunomodulatory interventions in TB such as local administration of specific HDAC inhibitors, can be tested in clinical trials with the aim to customise therapy for patients with MDR-TB. Today, several HDAC inhibitors are FDA-approved for different diseases - for example, Vorinostat, Belinostat, and Panobinostat for different cancers, Phenylbutyrate for urea cycle disorders.

What's your plan to combat everyday stress?

C earch engine Google did S a study on the most-searched 'how to' questions on its platform a few days before - and after - New Year's 2016. On top of the list was 'how to get rid of stress'. It's been another year and almost a quarter since then but the question still stands. In fact, it's a given that people are stressed more than ever; the real question is what are we doing to combat it?

Neuroscientist and mindfulness expert Kristen Race tackled the problem in her TEDTalk, Generation Stress: From Surviving to Thriving, a while ago. She says Generation X is Generation Stress. More than half of the millennial generation lay awake at night due to stress Eighty per cent men and 74 per cent women live under stress due to inadequate rest and heavy workload, concludes a research by ICICI Lombard General Insurance. Race begins her TedTalk by saying that though she has written a book on parenting and manages two kids, when the alarm clock strikes at 5am. she's more inclined to reach for the Chardonnay than her yoga mat!"This generation is slowly but surely losing their minds,"

Are they also finding ways to cope with the stress epidemic? Entrepreneur Astha Khetan says without a daily stress plan she'll crash. Her coping strategy? "Me-time is very important. Running is an instant uplifter. Laughing and finding happiness within me and being able to say 'no when my plate is full are my stress-busting mechanisms,' she savs. Easy-to-access plans Stress coach Jordan Friedman believes our stress reduction efforts should be easy to access, use, and continue regularly. "Dothingsthat work with your schedule and interests: they can be small actions, such as talking to a particular friend,

watching a funny video, eating lunch, walking around your block while practising deep breathing. In fact, make stress management a priority just like work meetings, social engagements, a doctor's appointment etc.," he suggests.

The one thing that we may be doing wrong to add to our daily anxiety levels is thinking that the answer to all our problems lies with someone else, like our partners, parents, friends or maybe even a therapy chair or self-help book. Former neuropsychologist and stress expert Dr Kevin Fleming says, "Stress is a multi-billion dollar industry today and claims to fix humanity but we have the worst mental disorders ever." There are days when breathing in, breathing out won't be enough; stress management has to be made a way of life.

Important vs Essential Rising stress levels are also a result of the delusions that Gen X buys into. Psychiatrist Dr Avdesh Sharma believes we have blurred the boundary between what is Important and what is Essential. For example, noisy neighbours, poor communication skills, relationship anxiety. getting cut off in traffic. aren't essential problems even if they seem important for a short time. "These short time irritants add to our stress levels, which results in an over-active brain and an extremely taxed nervous system." Life coach Tom Cronin emphasises the need to understand that "it's not the situation itself, but the response in the body, that's stressful". It's ultimately up to us to decide how stressed we allow ourselves to be, and over what.

Sunrisers look to seal playoff berth against GT Mumbai Indians this sea-

AGENCY

HYDERABAD: Masters of their own fate right now despite being erratic, Sunrisers Hyderabad will hope their destructive batting line-up delivers when they take on Gujarat Titans in pursuit of a playoffs berth in the Indian Premier League here on Thursday.

Another win will be enough for Sunrisers to seal a playoff berth as they need only one point to ensure qualification.

But the Pat Cummins-led side will also want to challenge for the top two spots, which is a possibility considering they have one more game after this match and a healthy net run rate of +0.406

SRH have 14 points from 12 matches and can reach a maximum of 18 points, which may be enough to ensure a top-two finish if other results go their way. Not only are the Sunrisers players well-rested ahead of the clash against GT as they got a week off, their morale will also be sky high after notching yet another record-breaking win against Lucknow Super Giants on May 8

If the bowlers did a commendable job to restrict LSG to a blow-par score, the opening duo of Travis Head and Abhishek Sharma made a mockery of the hosts by chasing down 166 in just 9.4 overs to notch a 10-wicket win at home

SRH have made a habit of securing unbelievable victories throughout the season but they have also suffered sizeable defeats, including against GT (by 7 wickets) earlier in the competition.

The boom or bust approach by the batters has either done exceedingly well or has simply let the side down, including three times in the last five games, where SRH lost to RCB (by 35 runs), CSK (by 78 runs) and MI (by 7 wickets).

The 2016 champions would hope Head and Sharma deliver as SRH are heavily dependent on the explosive starts provided by the duo.
