In this year's budget, no new taxes have been imposed, providing relief to the citizens. This budget reflects the priorities and aspirations of every section of Haryana's population.

In the year 2014-2015, the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) of Haryana was Rs 4,37,145 crore, whereas the estimated GDP of Haryana for the year 2024-25 is Rs 12,13,951 crore. Similarly, in 2014-15, Haryana's per capita income was Rs 1,47,382, while the estimated per capita income for the year 2024-25 is Rs 3,53,182.

He also announced the establishment of a new Department of Future, which will focus on exploring future technologies and their potential benefits and utilisation.

Additionally, a new authority will be set up to tackle the spread of drugs in the state, he added. The Substance Abuse Narcotics Knowledge Awareness and Liberation Program (SANKALP) Authority was proposed with an initial allocation of Rs 10 crore.

CM Saini also proposed to set up Haryana Artificial Intelligence mission with World Bank assistance of Rs 474 crore. Under this mission, AI hubs will be set up in Gurugram and Panchkula.

The CM also announced the establishment of a flower mandi in Gurugram and an air cargo facility for horticulture produce at Hisar airport. New cow sanctuaries will be set up in every district of the state, he added.

Saini's wife, Suman Saini, Haryana BJP in-charge Satish Punia, state party chief Mohan Lal Badoli, and other senior leaders were present in the Speaker's gallery to hear the CM's maiden budget address.

The Chief Minister said that as a result of the state government's hard work over the past 10 years, the State's GDP has grown at an average annual rate of 10.8 percent, and the per capita income has increased at an average annual rate of 9.1 percent.

He said that in the year 2014-15, the revenue deficit in Haryana's budget was 1.90 percent of the then GDP. By the year 2024-25, the revenue deficit is projected to be 1.47% of GDP. Similarly, the revenue deficit as a percentage of the total budget is projected to decrease from 13.4 percent in 2014-15 to 9.9 percent in 2024-25. Amritsar temple blast: Main accused killed in encounter

UNI
AMRITSAR, MAR 17

The main accused in the recent grenade attack on a temple in Punjab's Amritsar was killed in a police encounter on Monday morning after a brief exchange of fire, police said.

Director General of Police Gaurav Yadav said on Monday that acting on specific intelligence, the Commissionerate Police Amritsar decisively tracked down those responsible for the grenade attack on the temple by Thakur in Khandwala, Amritsar on March 15. MC Employees Union delegation meets Commissioner on financial crisis

CHANDIGARH: A delegation of the Employees Union of the Municipal Corporation, Chandigarh, met with the Commissioner today to submit a representation concerning the ongoing financial crisis faced by the Corporation. The Union has expressed its concerns over the non-payment of salaries to employees and pensions to retirees, a situation aggravated by the lack of timely funds despite efforts made by the Commissioner at various administrative levels, including with the Chandigarh Administration. Union has acknowledged the Commissioner's continued efforts to secure additional funds from key government departments, but has raised alarms over the recent decision to withdraw funds from the Corpus Fund, which is meant exclusively for the pension and gratuity payments of retired employees. They have strongly urged that the amounts withdrawn (Rs. 50 crore and Rs. 6 crore) be immediately replenished, along with interest, once grants are received from the Chandigarh Administration. The Union further urged that there were sufficient funds available in other Account Heads like Village Development Fund, Vendor's Fund and Covid Fund etc. It is worth noting, however, that even the Corporation withdraw funds on debt basis from such Heads, no one could raise objections and the office can further recoup the same, without raising loan.

SANAJY AGGARWAL
DHARAMSHALA, MAR 17

BJP MLA from Dharamshala Sudhir Sharma has described the third budget presented by the state government as a drop in the ocean. The Sukhu government has halted the pace of development in Himachal. He said that the state government is an expert in lying. The government's intentions and policies are clearly reflected in the budget. The government has tried to cheat the public in the budget. Himachal Pradesh Chief Minister Sukhvinder Singh Sukhu presented the state budget for the financial year 2025-26, the amount of which has been fixed at Rs 58,514 crore.

Sudhir Sharma strongly opposed it and termed it vague and a maze of figures. He said that there is no clarity in this budget and it is just a bundle of announcements. Sudhir Sharma alleged that the Chief Minister included big schemes and announcements in the budget, but most of these schemes have been presented by just changing the names of the central government schemes.

Giving an example, he said that Chief Minister Sukhu has presented the schemes of the Central Government in the budget of Himachal Pradesh, but their implementation will be negligible. The BJP MLA, while criticizing the Chief Minister, said that this budget should have been named as a phased budget. Sudhir Sharma made this comment sarcastically, because according to him, the Chief Minister implements every promise in a phased manner after fulfilling it. He said that there is little hope of the public getting any concrete and real benefits in this budget. Sudhir Sharma further said that the Chief Minister has made only big announcements in the budget, which are completely baseless. He alleged that the Chief Minister has only grabbed headlines in the media by adding his name to these announcements, but in reality the common people are not going to get any kind of relief.

Sumit Singla, National Executive Member of IDMA, State President of FII and National Aggarwal Organization, and CEO of Curetech Group, praised the budget, stating that the proposed changes in the industrial policy will create a business-friendly environment in Himachal Pradesh. He highlighted that the state government's decision to set up a high-level board to facilitate new investments would help industries navigate regulatory approvals and requirements efficiently. Under the Single Window Scheme, all necessary permissions will be granted within two months, ensuring swift industrial growth, job creation, and revenue generation for the state. The government has also introduced a 40-paise-per-unit subsidy on electricity for industries, which will be provided twice a year through the Direct Benefit Transfer (DBT) system.

Expressing appreciation for these incentives, Singla pointed out that due to the special GST package provided by the Central Government to Jammu & Kashmir, several medium and large industries are relocating from Himachal, particularly from the BBN region. He urged the state government to announce a special package to counter this industrial migration, suggesting reductions in electricity tariffs and tax rates to make Himachal more competitive. The budget presented by CM Sukhu amounts to Rs. 58,514 crore, marking a Rs. 70 crore increase from last year's budget. SC issues notice to centre on PIL against current process of CAG appointment

AGENCY
NEW DELHI, MAR 17

The Supreme Court on Monday issued notice to the Centre on a PIL challenging the current process for appointing the Comptroller and Auditor General of India (CAG) and seeking a more independent and transparent selection process.

A bench of Justices Surya Kant and N Kotishwar Singh sought a response from the Centre on the plea of the Centre for Public Interest Litigation (CPIL) and tagged it along with the pending matter on the same issue.

The CPIL stated the present system of the Central government solely selecting the CAG hampered their independence.

The plea sought a direction from the court mandating that the CAG shall be appointed by the President in consultation with an independent and neutral selection committee comprising the Prime Minister, the Leader of the Opposition (LoP) and the Chief Justice of India and in a transparent manner.

Advocate Prashant Bhushan appearing for CPIL argued, "In recent times, the CAG has lost its independence." Bhushan said the audits of the states ruled by the BJP are being stalled and that it was an "unfortunate development." As Bhushan told the bench that appointments are controlled by the government, their independence will be disturbed, Justice Kant replied, "We have to trust our institutions also." The petitioners submitted that the current appointment process is not independent, fair, or transparent, potentially compromising the CAG's independence. The petition sought direction that the current practice of appointment of the CAG solely by the executive and the Prime Minister be declared violative of the Constitution.

"The appointment of the Comptroller and Auditor General of India solely by the executive and the Prime Minister of India undermines the independence of the office of the CAG, suffers from grave conflict of interest and thereby is detrimental to good governance and democracy in India. It is also manifestly arbitrary, detrimental to institutional integrity and violates several basic features of the constitution," the plea stated.

It said that the direction for the appointment of the CAG should be similar to the appointment of other bodies, including Information Commissions and the Central Vigilance Commission.

R K KASHYAP
CHHACHHRAULI, MARCH 17

A web of illegal colonies is spread in the district. The business of setting up illegal colonies is flourishing in Tejli with the connivance of the District Town Planner Department. Illegal colony is being set up in Sai Baba Wali Gali, Ward No. 11 Sundar Nagar Part B in Tejli. The District Town Planner Department has given notice. This is not only violating the rules of the District Town Planner Department, but also cheating the administration and the government. In such illegal colonies, the poor man loses his hard-earned money when the department takes action against them and the demolition process is carried out. Colonisers sell plots at cheap rates and by luring people with basic facilities but after the coloniser sells the colony, the poor man keeps running around the administration and government for basic facilities. In such a case, the administration should take strict action against such people. It is not that the district town planner department is not aware of them but even then the careless officers are cooperating in setting up unauthorized colonies by closing their eyes.

Cyber trap

The internet has revolutionised the way we work, communicate, and live. But the digital era has also given rise to alarming forms of exploitation such as cyber slavery, a harrowing crime that blends the horrors of human trafficking with the complexities of cybercrime.

In cyber slavery, individuals are duped with promises of lucrative online jobs and later coerced into illegal digital activities. Victims are often lured through fake job offers and transported, sometimes internationally, to work under exploitative conditions. Once trapped, their passports are seized and they are forced to engage in activities such as online scams, fraudulent cryptocurrency schemes, and identity theft under threats of violence, starvation, or isolation. A chilling real-world example is the plight of Indian nationals in Cambodia. Drawn by promises of high-paying jobs, they were coerced into impersonating women on dating apps to defraud Indian men by luring them into fake cryptocurrency investments. Failure to meet targets resulted in brutal punishments, including physical abuse and deprivation of food and water.

The modus operandi of cyber slavery revolves around psychological tactics. Victims are initially enticed by glamorous offers. Once they find themselves in foreign lands and are far away from their support systems, they feel isolated and trapped. Fear of severe punishment keeps them compliant, perpetuating the cycle of abuse. The exploitation thus thrives on a mix of allure, deception, and intimidation.

Addressing cyber slavery requires a multi-faceted approach. In India, certain provisions under the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita are applicable: Section 143 penalises the trafficking of individuals for exploitation while Section 146 addresses unlawful compulsory labour. Additionally, the Information Technology Act, 2000 includes sections that can be invoked for crimes like identity theft, phishing, and hacking. However, there is no explicit provision in Indian law to address cyber slavery. The proposed Digital India Act could serve as a transformative legal framework in this context by recognising and criminalising cyber slavery. It could also mandate digital job platforms to verify employers and job listings rigorously, thereby preventing the fraudulent recruitment practices that often lead to cyber slavery. Furthermore, the Act could bolster international cooperation mechanisms to streamline investigations and prosecutions of cross-border cybercrime, a critical factor in combating a globally networked issue like cyber slavery.

India stands to gain in an increasingly uncertain world of tariffs

US President Donald Trump's plan to impose reciprocal tariffs may only lead to a 3-3.5 per cent decline in Indian exports, and the effect will be negated by higher exports, according to SBI Research released on Monday.

"The decline in exports from India to the US could be in the range of 3-3.5 per cent post reciprocal tariffs, if any... which again should be negated through higher export goals across both manufacturing and services fronts, as India has diversified its exports kitty, pitched value addition, exploring alternate areas and works on new routes that transcend from Europe to USA via the Middle-East, redrawing new supply chain algorithms," says the report.

India will also get advantage of aluminium and steel tariffs imposed by the US last week.

India runs a marginal trade deficit with the USD 13 million in aluminium goods, and USD 406 million in steel goods. While India doesn't figure among top 10 importers of steel products, accounting for just 1 per cent of imports to the US, it is among the top 10 in aluminium imports. However, its share has dipped from 3 to 2.8 per cent between 2018 and 2024.

India is countering this by diversifying its exports, adding value to products, and exploring alternative markets. By leveraging new trade routes from Europe to the US via the Middle East, India is looking to strengthen its position in the global supply chain.

With rising protectionist measures and evolving supply chain strategies, India is leveraging trade agreements and export diversification to strengthen its position in the global market.

Report stated, "India has been talking about free trade agreements with several partners - both bilateral and regional - in a bid to boost export-oriented domestic manufacturing."

To strengthen its manufacturing sector and increase exports, India has been actively engaging in Free Trade Agreements (FTAs) with multiple countries. In the last five years, India has signed 13 FTAs, including with Mauritius, the UAE, and Australia.

The country is currently negotiating agreements with the UK, Canada, and the European Union, focusing on areas such as digital trade, services, and sustainable development. The FTA with the UK alone is projected to boost bilateral trade by USD15 billion by 2030.

With a growing digital economy, experts believe that digital trade agreements could add USD1 trillion to India's GDP by 2025. Additionally, shifting regional supply chains and geopolitical factors, including the US-China trade war, are shaping India's trade strategies.

With ongoing trade negotiations and evolving global economic trends, India's focus on FTAs, digital trade, and export expansion may help it navigate uncertainties and emerge stronger in the global market.

Study shows how climate change affects rain and floods

Climate change may lead to more precipitation and more intense floods. A new study shows that to understand the details of this relationship, it is important to distinguish between different types of rainfall and flood events -- namely, between short-term events that occur on a time scale of hours, and longer-term events that last several days. In each case, climate change has a different impact.

An Austrian research team has now shown for the first time that short-term precipitation and flood events on the scale of a few hours are particularly affected by the temperature increase caused by climate change.

For events on a longer time scale, the relationship is more complicated. This finding was made using detailed data collected in Austria over more than a century -- but it can also be applied to other regions of the world.

It also allows conclusions to be drawn about which regions will experience changes in the probability of flooding, and how they will be affected. The results have now been published in the journal Nature. Climate change is affecting water cycles all over the world. A look at Austria is particularly revealing: "We are in the very fortunate situation of having excellent data available," says Prof. Gunter Bloschl of TU Wien (Vienna), who led the research project. Since 1900, precipitation in Austria has been recorded by two separate institutions: by the meteorological service, now Geosphere Austria, and by the Austrian Hydrography, which is managed by the Ministry of Agriculture.

US airstrikes on Yemen's Houthis kill at least 53

The United States' airstrikes on Yemen's Houthi rebels have killed atleast 53 people, including five women and two children, and injured nearly 100 others, The Hill reported, quoting the Houthi-run Health Ministry.

The airstrikes targeted Yemen's capital, Sanaa, as well as other provinces, including Saada, the rebels' stronghold near the border with Saudi Arabia.

In response to the strikes, the Houthis' political bureau has vowed to "meet escalation with escalation."

The rebels have also claimed that they targeted the USS Harry S. Truman carrier strike group with missiles and a drone, but two U.S. officials told The Associated Press they were not tracking anything, as reported by The Hill.

Meanwhile, United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres in a statement called for "utmost restraint and a cessation of all military activities," while warning of the "grave risks" to the dire humanitarian situation in Yemen, the Arab world's poorest nation. On Saturday, Trump announced a "decisive and powerful" military against Houthis, accusing them of piracy, violence and terrorism targeting Americans.

"Today, I have ordered the United States Military to launch decisive and powerful Military action against the Houthi terrorists in Yemen.

Increasing contrasts in young people's mental wellbeing: Study

More teenagers report good mental health, but those who are struggling rate their depressive symptoms much higher than prior cohorts did at the same age, according to a study from the University of Gothenburg.

The study examined changes in how young teenagers in Sweden rated their depressive symptoms over two decades.

Researchers compared two groups of 13-16-year-olds: one from 2004 and one from 2019-2020. Both groups rated their depressive symptoms using the internationally established Children's Depression Inventory (CDI), a self-report assessment.

The results show that the overall proportion of adolescents reporting depressive symptoms increased from 21 percent in 2004 to 29 percent in 2019-2020--an increase that is not considered dramatic in this context.

However, a key shift is evident: more adolescents than before report feeling extremely well. In the 2019-2020 group, 33 percent had very low CDI scores, indicating strong mental well-being, compared to just 15 percent in 2004.

At the same time, those who are struggling report feeling significantly worse than before. Adolescents with depressive symptoms in 2019-2020 rated themselves higher on self-deprecating and negative thoughts compared to their counterparts in 2004.

Researchers compared two groups of 13-16-year-olds: one from 2004 and one from 2019-2020. Both groups rated their depressive symptoms using the internationally established Children's Depression Inventory (CDI), a self-report assessment.

"Those who report high levels of depressive symptoms today rate themselves significantly higher than those in previous cohorts. We also see notable increases in certain areas, particularly self-deprecation–something that primarily affects young women," says Carl Wikberg, district nurse and adjunct senior lecturer in community medicine and public health at Sahlgrenska Academy, University of Gothenburg.

The CDI assessment measures various aspects of mental well-being, including negative mood, self-esteem, ineffectiveness, and interpersonal problems. In the 2019-2020 group, three statements stood out among those reporting depressive symptoms: Nothing is fun at all, I am bad all the time, and I can never be as good as other kids. The fact that some young people report strong self-loathing is concerning and can make us feel despair. However, there is also hope: we are seeing a larger proportion of adolescents at the very lowest end of the scale, meaning their mental well-being has improved. So, the trend is not entirely negative," said Wikberg.

While the study does not provide definitive answers as to why these changes are occurring, the researchers highlight the role of evolving public discourse on mental health. A more open attitude toward mental health issues and treatment may influence how young people describe their wellbeing in self-report assessments.

At the same time, the study underscores the importance of school health services and primary care in identifying adolescents with high CDI scores. Screening tools like CDI create opportunities to detect and support those in need.

The study included 617 adolescents (aged 13-16) from 2019-2020 as part of a larger research project on depression. The comparison group consisted of 80 adolescents of the same age from 2004 who participated in a CDI validation study in a Swedish context.

JAIBEER RANA THAMBER

BARARA: On the second day of the Shrimad Bhagwat Katha at Sunrise Resorts, Barara, organized by Shri Govind Gaushala Samiti, Katha Vachak Brij Rasik Shri Pankaj Krishna Thakur Ji Maharaj emphasized that arrogance leads to destruction. He stated that if one wishes to attain glory in the world, they must first control their ego. A person who humbles themselves, despite their small stature, becomes greater than anyone else. During the discourse, Maharaj Ji narrated several educational and enlightening stories, including the Gokarna episode, Vyas-Narayan dialogue, Kunti's prayers, and Parikshit's curse. He conveyed these tales in a simple and engaging manner. He also stressed that wherever Lord Krishna's name is chanted, He is present there Himself. He added that victory lies where the Lord's name is remembered and urged devotees to let go of arrogance and surrender to God to sail through the journey of life.

The event was graced by several distinguished guests, including Vijay Pal, Ashok Bansal, Rajesh Singla, Pramod Jain, Ravi Pundeer, Sukhbir Singh, Sushil Bansal, and Shravan Goyal.

Haryana residents praise CM's budget: Azad Singh

SHIV KUMAR SHARMA

KARNAL: Haryana State Safai Karamchari Commission Vice Chairman Azad Singh praised Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini for presenting a progressive and inclusive budget for 2025-2026. He noted that for the first time, the state has presented a budget exceeding 2.05 lakh crore, marking a 13.70% increase from the previous year.

Singh highlighted that the budget prioritizes key development initiatives, including schemes launched by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and former Haryana CM Manohar Lal Khattar. Special attention has been given to Karnal, with the introduction of the Kalpana Chawla Scholarship, offering up to 1 lakh for female students pursuing science and engineering degrees.

Key budget provisions include the Lado Lakshmi Yojana, allocating 5,000 crore to provide 2,100 per month to eligible women. Under Mission Haryana 2047, the state aims to create 50 lakh jobs. The budget also proposes a cashless health insurance policy for accredited journalists and the establishment of the Narcotic Awareness and Rehabilitation Authority to combat drug addiction.

The government plans to integrate Artificial Intelligence (AI) into state development with the support of the World Bank. Additionally, 5 crore has been allocated for the construction of sheds in gaushalas, and women farmers will receive interest-free loans of up to 1 lakh.

In sports, the budget includes significant provisions for national, international, and Olympic athletes. The Hisar Airport is set to introduce flight services to Ahmedabad, Ayodhya, Jaipur, Chandigarh, and Jammu soon. To enhance infrastructure, at least one street and one road in every city and village will be converted into smart roads.

For Scheduled Caste (SC) families earning up to 3 lakh per year, the government has increased bank loan subsidies from 10% to 50%. Additionally, backward-class entrepreneurs will receive loans of up to 25 lakh under the Backward Class Welfare Corporation.

Under the PM Surya Ghar Free Electricity Scheme, 14,250 households have already benefitted from rooftop solar installations with 1.1 lakh in subsidies. The scheme has now been extended to March 31, 2027, targeting 2.22 lakh homes.
