Israel-Iran war escalates Hospital badly damaged in Israel, Iran's Arak heavy water reactor attacked

UNI TEL AVIV, JUNE 19

Israel's Soroka hospital in Beer Sheba and seven sites in the centre of the country were hit during a ballistic missile attack from Iran on Thursday morning

Iran fired a barrage of some 30 ballistic missiles early Thursday, scoring a direct hit on Israel's main southern hospital, the Soroka Medical Center. The two other impacts were felt in the central cities of Holon and Ramat Gan that wounded dozens of people, including six in serious condition.

The Magen David Adom emergency service said that a man, 80, and two women, both in their 70s, were among six people seriously hurt. Two people were moderately injured, and at least 42 others suffered light injuries from shock waves and shrapnel at the various impact sites. In addition, 18 people were lightly injured as they scrambled to bomb shelters when sirens went off. Israeli news sites reported. On other hand Israel on Thursday attacked Iran's Arak heavy water reactor after warning the locals to flee the area. Iranian media reported two projectiles hitting an area near the facility and there were no reports of radiation threats. Explosions were heard in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv as the week-long conflict showed no signs of easing. Israeli strikes have wiped out the top echelon of Iran's military command, damaged its nuclear capabilities.

Netanyahu says they will pay a 'Heavy Price'

TELAVIV : Israel and Iran continued to attack each other, for the seventh consecutive day on Thursday, with the Israeli military saying it has struck several parts of Iran, including Tehran. The military said at least two drones from Iran were also intercepted. The developments came amid speculation over whether the US will join Israel's bombardment of Iranian nuclear sites. Asked about the US's plans, President Donald Trump told reporters on Wednesday: "I may do it, I may not do it." Senior US officials are preparing for the possibility of a strike on Iran in the coming days, according to a Bloomberg report, a sign that Washington is assembling the infrastructure to directly enter a conflict with Tehran. On Tuesday, President Trump demanded Iran's "unconditional surrender" and warned it could easily assassinate its supreme leader, fueling fears of American intervention. Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, however, warned the US of "irreparable damage" if it engage in military action against Iran

In a first, Trump says leaders of India, Pakistan ended last month's conflict

Two "very smart" leaders of India and Pakistan decided to end last month's conflict that ident Donald Trump said after holding a rare luncheon meeting with Pakistan army chief

Trump's comments on Wednesday crediting the leaders of the two countries in ending the May 7-10 hostilities are seen at variance with his claims over a dozen times in the last few weeks that he brokered the India-Pakistan ceasefire deal.

In his remarks to the media Trump said he was "honoured" to meet Munir and that he discussed with the military chief the situation arising out of the Iran-Israel conflict, amid speculations that Washington is looking at using Pakistani military bases in case it decides to launch attacks on Tehran.

Mr. Modi and Mr. Trump were scheduled to meet on the sidelines of the G7 Leaders' Summit in Kananaskis, Canada, but the American President returned to Washington early.

Before departing Kananaskis and wrapping up his first visit to Canada in a decade, Mr. Modi had a 35-minute phone conversation with Mr. Trump.

Foreign Secretary Vikram Misri, in a vid-eo message from Kananaskis, said Mr. Modi conveyed to Trump that at "no point" during Operation Sindoor was there any discussion, at any level, on an India-U.S. trade deal or any proposal for mediation by the U.S. between India and Pakistan.

The discussion to cease military action took place directly between India and Pakistan through the existing channels of communication between the two armed forces, and it was initiated at Islamabad's request.

Mr. Modi firmly said India will never accept the mediation of a third party, and there is complete political consensus in India on this matter, Mr. Misri said. Mr. Misri also noted that following the April 22 Pahalgam attack Mr. Trump expressed his condolences to Modi over a phone call and expressed his support against terrorism.

Those who speak english in country will soon feel ashamed: Amit Shah

AGENCY NEW DELHI, JUNE 19

Stressing the importance of Indian languages as the soul of the nation's identity, Union Home Minister Amit Shah said on Thursday that the time has come to reclaim India's linguistic heritage and lead the world with pride in native tongues.

Speaking at the book launch of 'Main Boond Swayam, Khud Sagar Hoon', authored by former civil servant, IAS Ashutosh Agnihotri, Mr Shah said, "In this country, those who speak English will soon feel ashamed -- the creation of such a society is not far away. Only those who are determined can bring about change. I believe that the languages of our country are the jewels of our culture. Without our languages, we cease to be truly Indian.³

'To understand our country, our culture, our history, and our religion, no foreign language can suffice. The idea of a complete India cannot be imagined through halfbaked foreign languages. I am fully aware of how difficult this battle is, but I am also fully confident that Indian society will win it. Once again, with self-respect, we will run our country in our own languages and lead the world too," he said. Outlining the 'Panch Pran' (five pledges), coined by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Mr Shah said that these five pledges have become the resolve of 130 crore people of the country

"Modi Ji has laid the foundation of the 'Panch Pran' (five pledges) for the Amrit Kaal. Achieving the goal of a developed India, getting rid of every trace of slavery, taking pride in our heritage, staying committed to unity and solidarity, and igniting the spirit of duty in every citizen -- these five pledges have become the resolve of 130 crore people. That is why by 2047, we will be at the pinnacle, and our languages will play a major role in this journey," Amit Shah said.

Speaking on the book authored by for-mer civil servant, IAS Ashutosh Agnihotri, the Union Home Minister emphasised that a change is needed in the training of administrative officers.

"A radical change is needed in the training of administrative officers... Rarely are they trained to introduce empathy in our system. Maybe because the British era inspired this training model. I believe that if any ruler or administrator rules without empathy, then they cannot achieve the real objective of governance," Mr Shah said. He also praised literature, saying that it is the soul of our society.

When our country was consumed in an era of pitch black darkness, even then literature kept the lamps of our religion, free-dom, and culture lit. When the government changed, no one opposed it. But whenever someone tried to touch our religion, culture and literature, our society stood against them and defeated them.

ll over the world, there are more than 272 million children out of school. This alarming finding was presented by UNESCO's Global Education Monitoring Report of 2025, showing 21 million more than the last estimate. Of primary school-age children, 11% are out of school, 15% of the lower secondary age group, and 31% of the upper secondary group. This suggests that older children, probably in developing countries, tend to leave school early either to work, or simply drop out because of disinterest. This is a huge problem in India where the Lok Sabha was informed by the government that 1.17 million children are out of school. India's target according to the National Education Policy is 100% enrolment by 2030. According to the report, fresh enrolment and attendance data account for 38% of the increase in out-of-school children. Girls in Afghanistan, for example, cannot go to high school. Recent United Nations population estimates are also responsible for 62% of the increase

The GEMR, however, uses different methods for its model. If the data are administrative, there is no updated account of enrolment and attendance; the increase in population is considered out of school. If the basis is a survey, then the data are more accurate because countries have their enrolment and attendance for each year. The team imputes values for the years when no data are available. So they may not always be the same as the countries' out-of-school figures. The model also depended on the census because the increase in population is a modifying factor in the final estimate. The report, however, assumes that school-age populations are stable and does not take account of crises and conflicts. These affect attendance and enrolment. Many children did not go back to school in India after Covid. Some had fallen behind, not being able to access lessons digitally; some went to work to help their families which had lost their livelihood; some were left without parents or at least the earner of their household. Conflict may not only reduce attendance, children may leave school by migration to safe zones. But it also makes data collection difficult. But even if the figures in the report are not fully accurate, the picture it gives is of an enormous number of children who would find it difficult to cope in a literate and high-tech age.

Russia ready to mediate dialogue between Iran, Israel ussian President Vladimir Putin has said that he is in touch with Nas salu mat no is in to active US President Donald Trump and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on the Israel-Iran conflict. He said Russia is prepared to support Tehran's peaceful nuclear development while addressing Tel Aviv's security concerns and that a deal to end fighting between Israel and Iran is possible.

Also, Putin has confirmed Russia's readiness to mediate a dialogue between Iran and Israel in a phone call with President of the United Arab Emirates Mohammed bin Zayed Al Nahyan, the Kremlin said as per state media TASS."Vladimir Putin confirmed Russia's readiness to provide mediation assistance in promoting dialogue between the parties to the conflict, informing about contacts with a number of foreign leaders in this regard," the Kremlin statement read. Meanwhile, during a meeting with the heads of leading global news agencies in St. Petersburg on Wednesday, Putin said that Russia has engaged in detailed discussions on this issue with both Israeli and US officials, and has communicated proposals to its Iranian counterparts."

In general, it is possible to meet Iran's interests in peaceful nuclear energy and at the same time address Israel's concerns about its national security," he said on the sidelines of the SPIEF 2025 an economic conference in St. Petersburg, Putin also recalled Russia's involvement in Iran's civilian nuclear program, including the completion of the Bushehr Nuclear Power Plant (NPP) in Iran, which was originally designed by German firms and later completed by Russia's state nuclear corporation, Rosatom."We are in constant contact with our Iranian partners. Our specialists are working in Bushehr, and we are not leaving. Isn't that support? Iran has not asked us for any other support, and I repeat, we have given our assessments." Putin said as reported by TASS. "I've already said that: our specialists are working in Bushehr.

Their total number may reach 600 [people]. We are not leaving," Putin said at a meeting with heads of the world's leading news agencies, organized by TASS. The Russian state media report further cited Putin as saying, "It seems to me that it would be right for everyone to look for ways to stop the hostilities and find ways for all parties to this conflict to reach an agreement with each other in order to ensure both the interests of Iran, on the one hand, in its nuclear activity, including peaceful nuclear activity, of course. I mean both peaceful nuclear energy and peaceful nuclear energy in other areas. And to ensure the interests of Israel from the point of view of the unconditional security of the Jewish state."

Putin further pointed out that Israel's strikes against Iran had led to a consolidation of Iranian society around the country's leadership. Today, society in Iran, "despite all the complexity of the ongoing domestic political processes," is uniting around the country's leadership: "This is almost always the case everywhere, and Iran is no exception," the Russian President Putin said. During his press conference on Wednesday, when asked what Moscow would do in the event of a targeted assassination of Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Khamenei, Putin refused to even entertain the premise, calling it a 'scenario I won't even discuss.'

Russian media outlet RT reported.In an address to the nation, Khamenei rejected President Trump's call for surrender in the conflict with Israel, and warned any US strikes on Iran will have "irreparable consequences.'

"Intelligent people who know Iran, the nation and the history of Iran, will never speak to this nation in the language of threats, because the Iranian nation cannot be surrendered," Ayatollah Khamenei said in a televised address as reported by New York Times."

CNG demand in India may grow along with EV adoption, despite policy pressure

"The Monument to the Homeland holds immense importance to the people of Croatia. A short while ago, laid a wreath there," Prime Minister Modi posted on X. Monument to the Homeland in Zagreb stands as a powerful symbol of Croatia's struggle for independence and is dedicated to those who sacrificed their lives for the nation. Building on the spirit of this shared respect and remembrance. Prime Minister Modi later met the Presi-pecially Delhi and Mumbai, are expected to roll out aggressive EV policies to address the problem of rising air pollution. While this could put some pressure on the growth of CNG, analysts believe both fuel types could still co-exist in the coming years.It stated, "CNG as an auto fuel could grow alongside EVs.... EV policies by states to continue pressuring CNG growth."The report added that Delhi, which had already banned diesel vehicles older than 10 vears nearly a decade ago. may now consider placing restrictions on CNG vehicles as a next step in its clean fuel transition. The state is seen to be intensify ing its focus on cleaner mobility solutions to tackle worsening air quality.

In contrast, Mumbai. being a coastal city, usually records better air quality index (AQI) levels. In the short term, the EV policy focus in Mumbai could shift more towards reducing the use of liquid fuels like petrol and diesel, rather than targeting CNG. The report noted that this could work as a policy tailwind for both CNG and EV adoption in Mumbai.Further, the report mentioned that the ongoing High Court-monitored committee on EV adoption in Maharashtra includes participation from Mahanagar Gas Limited (MGL).

India's sports fans are getting smarter

Something thrilling is happening in Indian sports, and no, it's not just about what's on the pitch. It's about the fans. They're evolving. Fast. What used to be a game of hearts is now also a game of minds. And at the centre of this shift? Data.We're living through a data-powered renaissance. Not just in business, but in fandom. From fantasy leagues to real-time sports trading, Indian fans are rewriting the rules of engagement, and they're doing it with logic, stats, and an infectious hunger to understand the game better. Welcome to the era of the 'fanalyst', the fan who doesn't just cheer but challenges, critiques, and calculates.

From Noise to NuanceLet's be honest, cheering is still great. But what's even better? Reading a match like a chessboard. Calling the next play before the commentator. Understanding the why behind every move. That's the new high. And it's all thanks to data becoming widely available and deeply integrated into our sports culture. Globally, sports analytics has gone mainstream. According to studies, teams using data analytics have improved win rates by up to 15%, and advanced video analysis has boosted individual performance metrics by nearly 20%. What was once a secret weapon is now a basic necessity.A turning point in how the world viewed data in sport came with Moneyball. The now-iconic film, and the true story behind it, showed how the Oakland A's used statistical models to outsmart richer teams by identifying undervalued talent. The team changed baseball, and the movie changed how millions of people understood analytics. The Data-Driven Indian Fan Is HereIn India, the revolution is happening on our phones. Affordable smartphones and dirt-cheap data have turned everyday fans into real-time analysts. From Pune to Patna, fans are tracking form stats, pitch reports, and player trends.

They're building fantasy squads with surgical precision. They're second-screening with live dashboards and engaging with sports trading platforms that reward brain over bias.India's mobile-first economy is the perfect launchpad. GPS and biometric data, once reserved for elite athletes, now inform match previews on fan platforms. Globally, teams using wearables have seen up to a 30% reduction in injuries and a 10% boost in high-impact plays. That same intelligence now lives in every fan's pocket.Even global legends are in on this evolution. Cristiano Ronaldo, for instance, uses WHOOP, a wearable that tracks his sleep, recovery, and HRV--to fine-tune his training. If he's not fully recovered, he pulls back. If the data shows he's primed, he pushes forward. His use of analytics ensures longevity and peak performance, proof that even greatness relies on insight. This Isn't a Trend. It's a Movement. This isn't just a cool way to watch a game; it's a mindset. A mental workout.

A firehose of insight, intuition, and intelligent risk-taking. Every delivery, timeout, or substitution becomes an opportunity to analyse and adapt. Modern fans aren't waiting for the postmatch wrap-up; they're shaping it in real time.Even talent scouting has changed. Recruitment strategies backed by analytics have shown a 22% improvement in identifying long-term performers

It's no longer about gut feel, it's about databacked decisions. And fans are taking note, becoming their own scouts and statisticians. The Content Has Levelled Up TooThe broadcast world isn't sleeping on this. Commentary has changed. It's sharper, more inclusive, and richer in context. Real-time graphics, heatmaps, probability meters, and player impact scores are becoming standard. Social content has evolved too; data-backed takes dominate timelines, and even memes come with stats. Crucially, we're seeing the rise of regional and glocalised commentary, bridging the analytics boom with local language and culture, so that fans in Bhilai and Bengaluru both get a data-rich experience in their dialect.

And let's not forget sports trading. A fastpaced format where fans apply predictions on the fly. It's not just about foresight, it's about real-time adaptation. It's chess meets adrenaline. One smart move can turn into a win. One misread becomes a learning curve.

The action never stops, and neither does the thinking. This Is the Fan India Deserves We've entered a golden age where fans aren't on the sidelines anymore. They're in the dugout, the war room, the control tower. They're not just reacting, they're influencing. With every stat they read, every prediction they make, they're elevating the sport and themselves.

This isn't just sports engagement. It's sports evolution. And it's happening right here, right now, in the hands of every Indian with a smartphone, a data pack, and the will to know more. Fandom has grown up.

The fan is now a fanalyst. And this story is just getting started. (ANI)Disclaimer: Puneet Dua is the Chief Marketing Officer and Co-Founder at SportsBaazi. The views expressed in this article are his own.

Boman Irani on success, failures of actors in Indian film industry ctor Boman Irani debuted in the film industry at the age of 44 and directed his first feature film, Mehta Boys, at 65. Widely regarded as one of the 'late bloomers' of the Indian film industry, the actor strongly opposed the general notion that the early or late success of Indi an artists depends on the flow of opportunities in Bollywood. In an in-terview with ANI, Boman Irani said that the actors are responsible for their early and late success in Bollywood. He highlighted the importance of the craft and hard work of the actor for the "late or early bloom" in the film industry. "I don't think Bollywood is responsible for late bloomers. Bollywood, or the Indian film industry, is not responsible for late bloomers or early bloomers. It is up to the individual to be responsible for their bloom. You make your own luck, they say, right? I just tell people who come with dreams, sure, come with dreams. But, at the same time, come with craft," said Boman Irani. Boman Irani is popular not just for his impeccable comic timing but also for his impressive versatility as an actor, evident in the diverse roles he has portrayed -- from the authoritarian

When love doesn't listen, turn up the sass with Simran Choudhary's 'Sayyian Na Maane'

CHANDIGARH: Not every love story is tragic. Some just need a beat drop, a side-eye, and a killer hook. Folk-pop innovator Simran Choudhary returns with her latest track 'Saiyyan Na Maane', a sonic blend of sass, soul, and sheer storytelling power. Known as the voice behind the internet's most-loved songs like Aje Na Jaa & Rehle Mere Kol, Simran is steadily crafting a genre of her own, one that feels like home, yet hits with a global beat. Simran — who writes, composes, and stars in her own music videos, continues to be the hero of her own story in Saiyyan Na Maane, which is more than just a song — it's a statement. The old-school nostalgia through the folk beats, while dressed in a contemporary pop aesthetic, is impossible to ignore. Think rolling your eyes, owning your mood, and turning up the volume. The sound of a woman tired of chasing mixed signals, choosing instead to dance through the drama. While talking about the track, Simran shares, "We've all had that one person who just won't listen, no matter how loud you love them. This song is my way of saying 'fine, don't listen' but I'll still love you in my own way." She further adds, "Saiyyan Na Maane is for every girl who's ever felt unheard or sidelined. Don't be disheartened when they ignore you, but own your story, and remember that the mic's still in your hand." As it happens, the track made its debut just in time for World Music Day, with a special preview hosted at the Meta office. With infectious energy and vibe, 'Saiyyan Na Maane' is a girl's playful wink to the universe — she chats, she teases, she glows with love, spinning stories of a stubborn beloved who keeps her waiting yet forever owns her heart.
