Haryana CM launches Lado Lakshmi Yojana, registration begins

20 lakh women to benefit in first phase

BUREAU
CHANDIGARH, SEPT 25

Marking the birth anniversary of Pandit Deendayal Upadhyaya, regarded as the architect of Antyodaya, the Haryana Government on Thursday dedicated the occasion to development, uplift of the last person in the queue, and women's empowerment. At a state-level ceremony held at Panchkula, Chief Minister, Nayab Singh Saini unveiled the ambitious 'Deendayal Lado Lakshmi Yojana', aimed at strengthening the economic and social standing of women, and launched a dedicated mobile application to ensure seamless implementation of the scheme aimed at strengthening the social and economic status of women.

To address difficulties faced during the application process, the Chief Minister released a toll-free 18001802231 and a helpline number 01724880500.

During the programme, live registration of five eligible women was also carried out under the scheme. Sh. Nayab Singh Saini informed the gathering that in a short time of the mobile app launch, nearly 50,000 women had downloaded it and around 8,000 women had already submitted applications.

Furthermore, in a significant push towards strengthening the State's infrastructure and health facilities, the Chief Minister also inaugurated and laid the foundation stones of projects worth Rs. 326.25 crore during the programme. This included 31 health-related initiatives costing Rs. 78.04 crore, the foundation for 97 projects costing Rs. 78.12 crore, and the renovation of 10 health institutions costing Rs. 80.72 crore. Amid Ladakh protests, Wangchuk's NGO's foreign funding licence cancelled

NEW DELHI: The government on Thursday evening cancelled the FCRA registration of Ladakh activist Sonam Wangchuk's nonprofit - the Students Educational and Cultural Movement of Ladakh - over 'repeat' violations of the law governing foreign funding for non-governmental organisations.
The cancellation comes 24 hours after violent protests over statehood demands for Ladakh.
Only a few hours earlier sources told NDTV the federal government is planning to act against Mr Wangchuk, who has emerged as the face of Ladakh's statehood push, and who has been blamed for the violence and the deaths of four people. The Home Ministry said his 'provocative speeches' had urged a mob to attack a local BJP office and that of the Ladakh election officer.
Sources also said investigations had flagged 'serious financial irregularities' in the functioning of his nonprofit, including repeat violations of the Foreign Contribution Regulation Act.
In the case of SECMOL's alleged violations, NDTV accessed the government's notification, which said a show-cause notice had been served on September 10 with four questions.
The first was to do with Mr Wanghchuk depositing Rs 3.35 lakh into the nonprofit's FCRA account in violation of the law.
SECMOL said the money was from the sale of an old bus.

Amritsar police seize 4.08 kg heroin, arms in major crackdown

UNI
CHANDIGARH, SEPT 25

Amritsar Police dismantled a major cross-border drug and arms trafficking network, arresting six suspects and seizing 4.08 kg of heroin and two sophisticated pistols. The operation targeted a syndicate allegedly operated by a notorious Pakistan-based smuggler identified as Shah, security agencies said.

Police revealed that the contraband was smuggled into India via drones through the Firozpur and Khemkaran sectors along the border. The syndicate used social media platforms to share location coordinates, enabling the accused to collect and distribute the consignments across Amritsar and nearby areas. The operation began with the arrest of Angrez Singh from Fagguwala village and his cousin, from whom 220 grams of heroin and a Glock pistol were recovered. Based on their interrogation, four others: Gurpreet from Khemkaran, Balwinder from Tarn Taran, Lakhwinder alias Lucky from Firozpur, and Baljinder from Firozpur were apprehended.

Lord Ram's life inspires us to eliminate social evils: Paramjit Singh Gill

VERMA
GURDASPUR, SEPT 25

The Ramleela organized by Suraj Dramatic Club at Ved Mandir, Batala, was conducted in a very beautiful and disciplined manner. The event saw the presence of Himalaya Parivar Sangathan's National Executive President, Paramjit Singh Gill, as the chief guest.

During his address, Paramjit Singh Gill expressed that it was a matter of great honor and privilege for him to speak from such a sacred stage. He stated that Ramayana is not merely a story, but a guide to living a righteous life. He remarked that today's Ravana does not reside in a golden Lanka, but is present among us—in the form of drug dens, corruption, and hate-filled ideologies. He emphasized that if Lord Ram accepted exile, we too must learn the virtue of tolerance. If Lord Hanuman could leap across to Lanka, it shows that no task is impossible. And if Jatayu, despite being aged, gave up his life fighting for righteousness, then we too must show courage in difficult times. Gill further said that the youth are the true Ram Sena (army of Ram) of today. He called upon everyone to take a pledge to give up drugs, eradicate corruption.

HC seeks affidavit on Chief Secretary's extension under service rules

AGENCY
SHIMLA, SEPT 25

The Himachal Pradesh High Court directed the state government to file a detailed affidavit clarifying whether the chief minister's recommendation for extending the tenure of Chief Secretary Prabodh Saxena complied with the provisions of Rule 16 of the All India Services (Death-cum-Retirement Benefits) Rules, 1958.

Yesterday, a division bench comprising Chief Justice Gurmeet Singh Sandhawalia and Justice Ranjan Sharma passed the order while hearing a set of public interest litigations (PILs) challenging the six-month extension and vigilance clearance granted to Saxena. The matter has been under day-to-day hearing for the past three days.

During the proceedings, senior advocate Shrawan Dogra, representing Saxena, argued that the extension was justified under the third proviso of Rule 16, which requires that any such recommendation by the state government must be backed by full justification and shown to be in public interest.

Responding to this, advocate general Anup Rattan sought additional time to file a specific affidavit addressing whether the Chief Minister's recommendation indeed met the legal requirements of the Rule. The court accepted the plea and granted time for the affidavit.

Meanwhile, additional solicitor general SD Sanjay informed the bench that the original records pertaining to the extension had been dispatched from Delhi and were expected to arrive by today. The judges directed that once received, the documents be placed before the Registrar General, who would keep a photocopy in a sealed cover while returning the original to the authorities concerned.

The court observed that the affidavit would be crucial in determining whether the state government was competent to recommend the extension and whether it was indeed a matter of larger public interest. The case will continue once the affidavit and records are placed before the court.

Land that once yielded neither wheat nor corn is now lush with greenery. With the help of the HP Shiva Project, 65-year-old farmer Ajmer Singh from Boul village in the Bangana subdivision of Una district has cultivated a guava orchard on this barren land. Ajmer Singh has created a success story with the help of modern techniques, hard work and government guidance. This season, his orchard is expected to produce over 22 quintals, generating an estimated income of over Rs 1 lakh. This success has not only strengthened his family's financial situation but has also inspired other farmers in the village to take up fruit-based farming.

Ajmer Singh explains that he started about three-and-a-half years ago by planting 1,800 guava plants under the FLD (Front Line Demo), including the Shweta and Lalita varieties.

He has planted a guava orchard on about 450 kanals of land. This season, he expects to harvest around 22 quintals of guavas. Customers are buying guavas directly from his doorstep at Rs 50 per kilogram.

Singh said the land, which previously didn't even support crops like wheat and maize and was devastated by wild animals, is now covered in greenery.

With the help of the Himachal government and the Horticulture Department, he was provided with plants, a drip irrigation system, vermicompost polythene to maintain moisture in the plants, fencing and necessary medicines under the HP Shiva Project. Ajmer Singh received a five-day training at the Horticulture Department's Neri College in Hamirpur, which included training on plant cuttings, disease identification and treatment. Horticulture Department officials also visit the cluster to inspect the plants and provide technical guidance.

Bhopal top cop’s phones with sensitive data snatched in high security area

AGENCY
BHOPAL, SEPT 25

In a massive security breach in the heart of Bhopal's ultra-secure Char Imli zone, unidentified bike-borne men snatched two mobile phones from Madhya Pradesh's Inspector General (Intelligence and ATS) Ashish late Tuesday night. The incident occurred around 10 pm, when the 2005-batch IPS officer was taking a post-dinner stroll with his wife.

Sources confirmed that one of the snatched phones contained sensitive and confidential data. Police recovered one device, dumped from the crime scene within 20 minutes. The snatcher likely abandoned it after realizing its advanced security features. But the second phone, believed to contain intelligence inputs, remains unrecovered, sending security agencies into overdrive.

A tracker confirmed its movements before it was switched off near Kolar Guest House.

Crime Branch and personnel from multiple police stations have been pressed into action. "We are working with extreme caution, given the possibility of confidential information being compromised," a senior officer said. CCTV footage showing three men on a motorcycle has become the central lead in the manhunt. Two of the suspects have already been rounded up for questioning, while the third remains at large.

Investigators are also probing whether the same gang carried out a similar phone-snatching incident in Shivaji Nagar later that night. However, the victim, reportedly a student, did not lodge a police complaint.

Char Imli houses the residences of the state's DGP Kailash Makwana, police commissioner Harinarayanchari Mishra, and former home minister Narottam Mishra, among several other cabinet ministers and IAS-IPS officers. That even this VIP enclave is not immune to street criminals has sent shockwaves across the state. Officials said that the stretch, where the incident occurred, had non-functional streetlights and outdated, often defunct CCTVs. Despite assurances of increased patrols and tech upgrades, residents remain unconvinced. "If an IG can be targeted in front of his own home, what security do ordinary citizens have?" asked a Char Imli resident.

Youth with tractors come forward to help farmers

ARVIND PATHAK
SULTANPUR LODHI, SEP 25

In the Baupur Mand area, tractors running in large numbers to remove the sand and silt deposited in the fields by the floods present a unique sight. Young men from various districts of Punjab have brought their tractors here. More than 75 tractors are working simultaneously to clear the sand from the farmers’ fields. The appeal made by Rajya Sabha member and environmentalist Sant Balbir Singh Seechewal to people across Punjab to provide diesel has begun showing results. Youth groups are arriving in Baupur Mand with convoys of 15–20 tractors, often carrying along tankers capable of storing 2,000 to 3,000 liters of diesel. These young volunteers stay in the Mand area for three to four days, setting up temporary camps and spending their days removing sand from the fields. It is worth mentioning that on the night of August 10, the breach of a temporary embankment in Baupur Mand caused flooding that completely destroyed the paddy crop in 17 villages. Around 3,500 acres of paddy fields were wiped out. Water remained standing in the Baupur Mand area for 30 consecutive days, which not only ruined crops but also caused significant losses to farmers’ livestock. Today, Sukhwinder Singh Neki, sarpanch of Sidhwan village, contributed 2,300 liters of diesel. He shared that in response to Sant Seechewal’s appeal, his children living abroad decided to send diesel to help the farmers. Today, 2,300 liters of diesel reached Baupur Mand.

Police launches strong anti-drug campaign in Yamunanagar under SP Kamaldeep Goyal’s mentorship initiative

RAHUL KOHLI
YAMUNANAGAR, SEPT 25

Drugs have hollowed society from within, with the younger generation increasingly falling prey to this menace. Families are losing peace and social progress is being derailed. To combat this challenge, Yamunanagar district police has rolled out one of its most impactful initiatives yet under the guidance of Superintendent of Police Kamaldeep Goyal — the “Mentor Program.” Its aim is to eradicate drug abuse from the roots and guide youth towards a constructive path.

Under this campaign, five-member committees have been formed in cities and villages. These mentors guide youth and connect them with sports, employment and cultural activities to divert them from drugs. Addicts are linked to rehabilitation centers and counseling. The mentors are also tasked with promptly informing the police about drug suppliers. Another focus is awareness drives in schools, educating both children and parents about the harmful effects of drugs.

District coordinator Advocate Sushil Arya explained that the program, titled “Sahi Rah 2.0,” is being run in five phases. Its core objective is to identify addicted youth, provide them care, treatment and timely medicines. The results are already visible as many youngsters are returning to sports like cricket, football, kabaddi, volleyball and focusing on their studies again. This initiative has also brought the police and society closer, with people now freely sharing information related to drugs. SP Kamaldeep Goyal stated, “The fight against drugs is not just the responsibility of the police, but of every family and every community. If each mentor guides his or her society onto the right path, we can save future generations from this menace.” SP Goyal personally visited the Civil Hospital de-addiction center, interacted with recovering youth, encouraged them and boosted their morale. He emphasized that the program offers them a fresh start and a dignified life ahead.

Several social organizations have now joined hands with the police, spreading awareness, guiding youth and preparing families to deal with this issue. Under Additional SP Amarinder Singh, intensive drives are being held to educate people about the ill-effects of drugs, while action against peddlers has been stepped up. The Mentor Program has emerged as a strong collective effort in Yamunanagar, uniting police and society against drugs. With growing public support and visible transformation among the youth, SP Kamaldeep Goyal’s initiative is set to become a model in the fight against drug abuse and promises a healthier, drug-free future for the district.

Festivals are like oxygen, adding sweetness to relationships: SP Chauhan

SHIV KUMAR SHARMA
KARNAL : SP Chauhan, convener of the Navchetna Manch and known for his sensitive outlook and social awareness, highlighted the importance of festivals, calling them "oxygen for human life." He said that festivals not only teach the seriousness of relationships but also offer new experiences and guide people to walk on the path of truth.

Chauhan remarked that in today's materialistic age, money has overshadowed relationships, making festivals even more significant. He stressed that festivals remind people of the value of affection, respect, and togetherness, which are missing in modern life. "A person today has everything except peace of mind, respect for relationships, and satisfaction," he said, adding that true joy comes only when one adopts the principle of giving before receiving.

Referring to cultural traditions, he said that earlier generations had the wealth of relationships, which was evident in the celebrations from Raksha Bandhan to Diwali. But in the age of artificial intelligence, even relationships are becoming artificial, and people must preserve them by celebrating festivals with unity and love.

Chauhan urged people to imbibe the teachings of Lord Krishna in the Bhagavad Gita, as the present era needs the wisdom of "karma before results" more than ever. He emphasized that festivals are vital in keeping India's culture alive and should be celebrated wholeheartedly to spread sweetness and prevent the rising trend of loneliness and despair.

India set to lead global green hydrogen push

India is rapidly emerging as a global leader in the hydrogen industry, with a strong focus on green hydrogen, Dave Ernsberger, Co-President of S&P Global Commodity Insights said on Thursday."India's journey in developing hydrogen capabilities, taking a leadership role in the global hydrogen industry, and a special emphasis here in India on green hydrogen as well, is truly impressive," Ernsberger said while mentioning India's progress in clean energy.He highlighted the significance of the National Green Hydrogen Mission, calling it "a really important part of the global journey towards cleaner energy, energy independence for countries like India and more beyond."The Union Cabinet approved the National Green Hydrogen Mission on January 4, 2023, with an outlay of Rs 19,744 crore. The overarching objective of the Mission is to make India a Global Hub for production, usage and export of Green Hydrogen and its derivatives, by targeting production of 5 MMT per annum of Green Hydrogen by 2030.

With abundant renewable energy resources and robust industrial infrastructure, India is well-positioned to lead, he said. "India is in an excellent position to really lead the world in developing green hydrogen, and hydrogen in general, given that really strong asset base," Ernsberger noted.He emphasised that collaboration will be critical to advancing the sector. "Collaboration between the private sector, the public sector, government leadership, and traders, and more beyond, supply chains, will really be what propels this new industry forward," he said.India's green hydrogen ambitions are seen as a cornerstone of its clean energy transition, aiming not only to meet domestic demand but also to become a key exporter in the future.On September 11, Union Minister of New and Renewable Energy Pralhad Joshi inaugurated the 1st Annual Green Hydrogen R&D Conference organised by Ministry of New and Renewable Energy in New Delhi and launched a new Rs 100 crore Call for Proposals to support start-ups in hydrogen innovation.The scheme will provide up to Rs 5 crore per project for pilot projects in innovative hydrogen production, storage, transport and utilisation technologies. At the conference, 25 start-ups are showcasing their innovations, ranging from electrolyser manufacturing to AI-driven optimisation and biological hydrogen solutions.

US acknowledges "turbulence" with India but maintains positive trajectory

The United States and India are working through a period of diplomatic friction amid what appears to be a pattern of mixed signals from Washington that has created an increasingly "hot and cold" dynamic in one of America's most strategically important relationships.

A senior State Department official has acknowledged "turbulence" in the relationship but stressed that US-India ties remain "on a positive trajectory" despite President Donald Trump's public expressions of frustration.

The admission comes when ANI questioned how India interprets the seemingly contradictory messages emanating from Washington, where officials, including Secretary of State Marco Rubio, emphasise the strategic importance of the partnership while simultaneously imposing trade restrictions and publicly criticising New Delhi's policies.

Presidential Transparency"The President is not shy about when he is frustrated with countries. You'll see it on Truth Social. This is one of the most transparent administrations in history," the official said, referring to Trump's characteristic directness on social media platforms.

Despite this frank communication style, the administration maintains that India remains "a good friend and as a partner, and as really a partner of the future."High-Level Diplomatic ActivityThe importance both nations place on their relationship is evident in the frequency of high-level engagements. Secretary of State Marco Rubio's first official act after taking office was to meet with the Quad grouping--comprising the US, India, Japan and Australia--followed immediately by bilateral talks with Indian External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar.Prime Minister Narendra Modi was among the first foreign leaders to visit the White House after Trump's inauguration, meeting the President in the Oval Office within two weeks, the official added.

"When you step back from this brief moment, and look at the relationship, it is really on a positive trajectory, and it's only expanding," the official noted.

Trade and Energy Challenges The current tensions centre primarily on trade disputes, with the Trump administration imposing additional tariffs on India over various commercial issues. Officials have also pressed India to reduce its energy imports from Russia as part of broader efforts to restrict Moscow's revenue streams during the ongoing war in Ukraine.

Speaking about External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar's meeting with Secretary of State Marco Rubio in New York on September 22, 2025, on the sidelines of the United Nations General Assembly High-level Week, the official confirmed the Russian oil issue was discussed."The Russian oil issue was absolutely discussed as it's discussed in every single engagement we have," the official said. "He's been clear with our European partners. He's been clear with India."While no specific commitments were disclosed from recent discussions, the administration continues to raise the matter in diplomatic exchanges.Personal DiplomacyThe personal relationship between Trump and Modi appears to remain strong. The two leaders held what officials described as an "incredibly positive" phone conversation last week on Modi's 75th birthday.

The Trump administration is preparing to nominate Trump's close aide Sergio Gor as ambassador to New Delhi, who is described as "one of the closest people to the president," underlining the significance placed on the bilateral relationship.

Future Engagement PlansOfficials suggested that further meetings between Trump and Modi are likely, with one noting, "I'm sure you'll see the two meet. They have a very, very positive relationship."Plans are also underway for a Quad Summit involving the four Indo-Pacific partners, potentially scheduled for later this year or early 2026.The current diplomatic tensions reflect the complex nature of US-India relations, where strategic partnership goals must be balanced against specific policy disagreements. While Trump's direct communication style has created some friction, both sides appear committed to maintaining and expanding their cooperation.The frequency of high-level meetings and the priority given to India in the new administration's diplomatic calendar suggest that Washington views the relationship as too important to be derailed by current disputes.

US breaks promises in every matter, cannot negotiate with such a party: Khamenei

Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei has once again ruled out the possibility of engaging in negotiations with the United States over the country's nuclear programme, accusing Washington of consistently violating its commitments."The side we're facing [the US] breaks their promises in every matter. They lie, issue military threats, assassinate people, and bomb nuclear facilities. We cannot negotiate and make agreements with such a party," said Khamenei. Earlier on Tuesday, Tehran reaffirmed that it will not directly negotiate with the United States over its nuclear programme, with Khamenei describing talks with the US as "a sheer dead end," even as diplomatic discussions continue on the sidelines of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA), Al Jazeera reported.The Supreme Leader's remarks, broadcast on Iranian state television, followed Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi's meeting with diplomats from Germany, France, and the United Kingdom, known as the E3, as well as European Union foreign policy chief Kaja Kallas. The talks focused on the reimposition of sanctions, scheduled to take effect in the coming days.Resuming negotiations with the US remains a key sticking point. During his UNGA speech, US President Donald Trump had declared that Iran would "never possess a nuclear weapon," describing Tehran as the "world's number one sponsor of terror.""The US has announced the result of the talks in advance," Khamenei said in his address. "The result is the closure of nuclear activities and enrichment. This is not a negotiation. It is a diktat, an imposition."The statement comes shortly after the UN Security Council rejected a resolution to extend sanctions relief for Iran. The E3 have accused Tehran of breaching its nuclear commitments, including amassing a uranium stockpile more than 40 times the level allowed under the 2015 nuclear deal--the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA)--from which Trump unilaterally withdrew in 2018, as per Al Jazeera.The JCPOA, originally signed between Iran and world powers including the US, lifted sanctions in exchange for limitations on Iran's nuclear programme. However, Trump's so-called "maximum pressure" policy reimposed sanctions in 2018, a stance largely continued by the Biden administration despite initial opposition.European nations have indicated they may extend the sanctions deadline if Iran resumes direct talks with the US, allows UN nuclear inspectors access to its nuclear sites, and accounts for more than 400 kg of highly enriched uranium monitored by the UN's nuclear watchdog.Tuesday's UNGA-side meeting, however, yielded little progress, with German Foreign Minister Johann Wadephul noting it "didn't go particularly well."

A reflection on KIIT's 21st annual convocation

The 21st Annual Convocation of KIIT-DU, held from September 26–28, 2025 marks a proud moment in our institutional journey. This Convocation is particularly special as it has been planned over three days to smoothly accommodate the large number of graduating students along with their parents.

It is being graced by Nobel Laureates from Tunisia and Sri Lanka, distinguished jurists Justice Abdulqawi Ahmed Yusuf and Justice Dalveer Bhandari from the International Court of Justice, and eminent dignitaries from around the world. These two Nobel Laureates join an illustrious legacy of twenty-two Nobel Laureates who have previously graced our campus with their presence, sharing their wisdom and insights with our academic community.

As I draft this piece, I am reminded of how a modest dream has grown into a global centre of learning in such a short span of time - 28 years as an institute and 21 years as a University. Today, KIIT, with 23 schools, serves as an educational home to over 40,000 Indian students and 2000 international students from 70 countries. KIIT Engineering ranks among the best globally in Times Higher Education Rankings. KIIT Law School is among the top 10 law schools in India. Kalinga Institute of Medical Sciences (KIMS) is ranked 24th among Indian medical colleges. KIIT School of Biotechnology (KSBT) has been recognized as a Centre of Excellence. The Technology Business Incubator (TBI) ranks as India's top private bio-incubator and fosters innovation and start-ups.

Placements have been a hallmark of KIIT since inception, with leading national and international companies recruiting from our campus. Many of our students also pursue higher studies in world-class universities. I understand intimately the struggles that families face when investing in their children's education. Having once been a student with limited financial resources but unlimited dreams, I recognize the importance of creating an environment where economic circumstances never become barriers to educational achievement.

The university is home to excellent classrooms, labs, facilities, the 2,600-bedded KIMS super-specialty hospital, a seven-storey central library and a 22-storey research and innovation tower. State-of-the-art auditoriums, including one with a seating capacity of 5,000, provide vibrant spaces for learning and exchange.

Sports are integral to our philosophy of holistic education. With 24 Olympians pursuing their studies at KIIT, we are proud to be India's leading hub for sports excellence.

Our global reach extends to more than 100 countries with over 350 MoUs with leading universities, innovative twinning programmes, and partnerships with UN Volunteers and American Council of Young Political Leaders (ACYPL).

Marketing longevity in India: Hype, hope and business of anti-aging startups

Abstract :- Never has aging become more lucrative. Startups in India are already selling the dream of aging slowly, looking good while you do it and being healthy. From DNA kits that inform you of your "biological age" at face powders promising you young cells, the anti-aging business is buzzing. Indians especially urban professionals are intrigued, hopeful, and sometimes distrustful. Beneath the shiny commercials and endorsements from famous faces, this stock market reflects a deeper human story: our ageless fear of decline and our growing hope that science will keep us young longer.

Introduction: -India has always had native practices of combat age either through yoga, Ayurveda, or home remedies handed down through generations. But nowadays, the story has changed. Instead of merely "living well," the promise involves "living longer, better." Walk through a high-end mall in Delhi or scroll through Instagram, and you will see advertisements about longevity clinics, cellular-resetting supplements, and AI-enabled apps with claims of keep track of your own health span. For Indians aged their 20s and 30s, such products less concerned with fighting wrinkles and more with achieving peak performance. For middle aging professionals appeal to a more subdued worry: the possibility of waning energy, independence, and vigour too soon.

Here the longevity business thrives on human aspiration and insecurity and the everlasting optimism that one day aging can be slowed or actually reversed. Anti-aging industry globally totals billions of dollars, and India is catching up fast. New-age Startups are placing themselves halfway between the laboratory and the lifestyle. They offer everything from individualised vitamin regimens and advanced skin treatment to alternative therapies like stem cells and genetics.

For startups, longevity is usually the "next big thing." Investors are listening, influencers are driving the hype, and customers are interested enough to purchase. A 29-year Bangalore old IT professional, e.g., may hold back from investing in gold, but she may willingly spend on supplements claiming to gain her "10 healthy years." However, the room also contains contradictions. While some of the startups actually invest in research and consult with health professionals, others feed off fuzzy prospects and pseudoscience. Costliness is also a hindrance although high-end longevity clinics appeal to the wealthy, the average middle-class Indian asks if miracles of this nature are destined only for those who pay.

Ultimately, longevity marketing has a very intimate nature. Individuals are not going to buy books or pills tests-they buy insurance. A 55-year-old business executive signs up for a genetic test because He doesn't really understand the science, but since he fears heart disease from his family. A 26-year-old social influencer begins recommending anti-aging powders after receiving free samples, sparking interest among her fans.

But the deliberations often bring out doubts. Is it really possible to "turn back the clock"? Are these companies offering solutions, or just selling hope? In a country where access to fundamental health care resides uneven, longevity products could generate a significant gap between the elites and the others. What makes this a human story isn't the science itself, but the emotions fear of decline, the desire to stay strong for loved ones, the hope of making it through long enough to see your as their grandchildren grow. And it's this mix of desire and fear that powers the longevity market both powerful and fragile.

Conclusion :-Indian anti-aging commerce finds itself at a turning point. It embodies aspiration, innovation, and courage promises. And yet it also mirrors our deepest fears of passing time. For the present, longevity startups are selling hope rather than assurance.

The real proof will come when this movement grows into something more than hype something decent, moral, and actually good for the common people. Until then, the anti-aging business of India will remain both an expression of our desires and a reminiscence of the age-old truth: we may not be able to stop time, but we will never stop trying.

Lado Lakshmi scheme app launched; Eligible women to receive Rs 2,100 per month: Shyam Singh

RAHULKOHLI

YAMUNANAGAR -- Agriculture and Farmers Welfare Minister Shyam Singh Rana said that Haryana Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini launched the Deen Dayal Lado Laxmi Yojana mobile app from Panchkula. He said that this day was to remember this great personality whose life was a unique example of service and dedication.

This day is the birth anniversary of Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyaya. He was a great man who understood the soul of India and gave the philosophy of Integral Humanism. The Cabinet Minister said that his Antyodaya principle was a lamp that first illuminates the person standing at the lowest rung. Antyodaya means the upliftment of the last person in society, the poor farmer, the working woman, and the rural youth in turn is the upliftment of the nation. He used to say that India's progress was incomplete until villages were developed and Gram Swaraj was established. His ideas gave the BJP the foundation of Integral Humanism, which today guides nation building. He dedicated his entire life to serving the last person in society, Antyodaya.

He said that today's occasion inspired us to take inspiration from his thoughts and move forward towards nation-building. For the past 11 years, under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi at the Centre and now Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini in Haryana, Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyay's philosophy of Antyodaya has been the focus of not only planning and programs but also their implementation. The Cabinet Minister said that they all knew that the attitude towards daughters in their society has been challenging at times. In the past, the birth of a daughter was often a cause for concern rather than a joyous occasion. However, today the Haryana government has a clear resolve to change this thinking. In Haryana, the nationwide Beti Bachao Beti Padhao campaign, launched by Prime Minister Narendra Modi from the historic land of Panipat on January 22 has been successful, and today the sex ratio has increased.

He said that in our manifesto during the 2024 Assembly elections they had pledged to provide financial assistance of Rs 2,100 per month to women. For us, our manifesto is as sacred as the Gita. It is our duty and our responsibility to live up to its every word, says he. In the 2025-26 budget, the Chief Minister announced the Deendayal Lado Laxmi Yojana, setting aside a budget of Rs 5,000 crore which is being formally launched on Thursday in all 22 districts of the state.

Jimmy Kimmel gets standing ovation on return with emotional monologue

Jimmy Kimmel got a large standing ovation in his return to late-night TV on Tuesday with chants of "Jimmy, Jimmy" from his studio audience, reported Deadline. The programme was abruptly pulled off-air last week after Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Chair Brendan Carr and several affiliate networks raised concerns over remarks Kimmel made during a monologue referencing the MAGA movement's reaction to the assassination of conservative commentator Charlie Kirk.The suspension sparked a national conversation on freedom of speech and government involvement in media, with sharp divides between supporters of former US President Donald Trump's administration and the long-time TV host, who have had repeated public clashes over the years.It was a moment of joy for his audience to see him back, and they welcomed him with a standing ovation.In a very emotional monologue, Kimmel started his first show after a week's suspension by ABC with a reference to Jack Paar when he quit and returned to The Tonight Show in 1960. "As I was saying before I was interrupted...," he said, reported Deadline. Kimmel, in his first show since September 16, expressed gratitude towards his fans and even those who "don't support my show and what I believe, but support my right to share those beliefs."

He added, "Our government cannot be allowed to control what we do and do not say on television," as quoted by Deadline. While referring to Charlie Kirk, he had tears in his eyes, "It was never my intention to make light of the murder of a young man," he said."I don't think there's anything funny about it. I posted a message on Instagram of the day he was killed, sending love to his family and asking for compassion, and I meant it. I still do. Nor was it my intention to blame any specific group for the actions of what it was obviously a deeply disturbed individual. That was really the opposite of the point I was trying to make, but I understand that to some that felt either ill-timed or unclear, or maybe both, and for those who think I did point a finger, I get why you're upset. If the situation was reversed, there's a good chance I'd have felt the same way. I have many friends and family members on the other side who I love and remain close to even though we don't agree on politics at all, I don't think the murderer who shot Charlie Kirk represents anyone. This was a sick person," he said, as quoted by Deadline. Kimmel added that Jimmy Kimmel Live! is not important, but what is important is "that we get to live in a country that allows us to have a show like this.""I've had the opportunity to meet and spend time with comedians and talk-show hosts from countries like Russia, countries in the Middle East, who told me they would get thrown in prison for making fun of those in power, and worse than being thrown in prison, they know how lucky we are here.

Our freedom to speak is what they admire most about this country, and that's something I'm embarrassed to say I took for granted until they pulled my friend Stephen [Colbert] off the air and tried to coerce the affiliates who run our show in the cities that you live in to take my show off the air. That's not legal. That's not American. That is un-American," he added, as reported by Deadline. Kimmel also didn't stop or hesitate in making Donald Trump jokes. He referenced the fact that President Trump said that JKL! didn't get good ratings. "I do tonight," he joked. "He did his best to cancel me. Instead, he forced millions of people to watch the show. That backfired bigly. He might have to release the Epstein files to distract us from this," as per the outlet. Despite recent controversies, Kimmel remains a respected figure in the entertainment industry. His sudden suspension came as a shock to many within and outside ABC.

Emma Watson misses acting, not "soul-destroying" process of selling films

Actor Emma Watson said that she misses acting but does not miss the "soul-destroying" process of promoting and selling the films she has worked in the past, reported Deadline. "In some ways, I really won the lottery with acting, and what happened to me is so unusual," said Watson "But a bigger component than the actual job itself is the promotion and selling of that piece of work, this piece of art. The balance of that can get quite thrown off. I think I'll be honest and straightforward, and say: I do not miss selling things. I found that to be quite soul-destroying," she said."But I do very much miss using my skill set, and I very much miss the art. I just found I got to do so little of the bit that I actually enjoyed," as quoted by Deadline.

She said rehearsal time on a project tends to be short, "but the moment you get to talk through a scene - or I got to prepare and think about how I wanted to do something - and then the minute the camera rolls, and getting to just completely forget about everything else in the world other than that one moment - it's such an intense form of meditation. Because you just cannot be anywhere else. It's so freeing. I miss that profoundly. But I don't miss the pressure," she told the outlet.Watson also mentioned she was "working on something that I've never done before," so stay tuned.Although she put her acting career on hold, she said she "is maybe the happiest and healthiest I've ever been.""I think what's interesting about being an actor is, there's a tendency to sort of fracture yourself into multiple personalities," she said."I'm not just talking about the roles you play, but having the weight of a public persona, that needs constant feeding and sprucing and glamorising. It's very energy-intensive stuff. And shedding the multiple identities has freed up so much space, I think, for me to be a better sister, daughter, friend, granddaughter and then artist. And someone who's trying to do some critical thinking of her own," as reported by Deadline.

Zee TV's upcoming show Jagadhatri to feature Sonakshi Batra and Farman Haider in lead roles

CHANDIGARH: Across India, countless women are fighting battles the world cannot see. Some take place in boardrooms, some in classrooms, and many within their own homes, where their voices are often dismissed. Yet, women today rise, building identities that no force can erase. Zee TV's upcoming fiction show Jagadhatri is born from the same spirit. It follows the journey of a young girl who is subdued and overlooked at home but is courageous and relentless as a special undercover agent fighting crime. While taking on the world's darkest forces, she embarks on a deeply personal mission: to uncover the secrets surrounding her mother's death and reclaim her lost identity in a house that never truly saw her. Bringing a fresh pairing to television screens, Sonakshi Batra takes on the titular role of Jagadhatri, with Farman Haider joining her as Shivay, her closest college friend.

Jagadhatri lives a life of duality. At home, she is invisible, submissive, ignored, and unloved, but as the Agent JD, she is fearless, sharp, and unstoppable. She is someone who captures the contradiction many women face: powerless in the eyes of their families, yet unstoppable when they embrace their true selves. She is breaking the societal shackles that try to define what a girl can or cannot do. On the other hand, Shivay is a charming and humorous person outside, but he hides a lot of pain. He is an orphan, and just like Jagadhatri, he is often overlooked. Jagadhatri understands Shivay in ways others don't. During their secret missions, he stands beside her, not just as a friend, but as a loyal fighter and quiet supporter. His courage reminds us that women's strength grows even stronger when true allies choose to believe in them.

Sonakshi Batra said, "I am so excited to play Jagadhatri; she is not just a character; she is a reflection of the contradictions women live with every day. At home, she is dismissed and unseen, yet when she steps into her identity as Agent JD, she becomes bold and relentless. She represents the silent strength of women who are often underestimated, but who carry within them the power to break every shackle society places on them."

Sargun Mehta reveals the 6-month casting journey behind Ganga Mai Ki Betiyan and says, "We have had 35 characters casting, it was the toughest we've ever had"

CHANDIGARH: Zee TV is all set to present another powerful story with its upcoming fiction drama, Ganga Mai Ki Betiyan. Adapted from Zee Kannada's acclaimed Puttakana Makkalu, the show traces the emotional journey of Ganga Mai, a mother left by her husband for not bearing a son, who chooses to raise her three daughters with strength, dignity, and grace, set against the soulful backdrop of Varanasi. The show celebrates the resilience of women and the unbreakable bond between a mother and her daughters.

Producer-actor Sargun Mehta, who runs Dreamiyata, reveals that what makes Ganga Mai Ki Betiyan stand out is not just its moving storyline but the sheer scale and depth of its characters. With nearly 35 characters carefully cast over a span of six months, the show has been one of the most challenging yet fulfilling journeys for her as a producer. Sargun admits that this project is especially close to her heart, not just as a producer but as a storyteller, because every role, big or small, has been shaped with equal love and importance, making the world of the show feel authentic and alive.

Sargun Mehta, Producer from Dreamiyata, said, "There are very few shows that television allows you to meet a multitude of characters, each with their own unique story and depth. We're particularly proud of how this show is crafted from multiple perspectives, making it a rich, layered experience. I think we have had 35 characters casting, It was the toughest we've ever had, taking about six months, but we found the perfect actor for every role, even the smallest ones. The idea is that the entire world of the show comes alive, not just the lead characters. I'm really fond of several actors, and every time I see their scenes, I smile. I'm excited to see if the audience feels the same way. We are all excited, and we've put our heart and soul into this, and we can't wait for everyone to see it!"
